Mer Rival.

A New York despatch says: There dwells in this city a very wicked young man and his name is Alfred Kayne. He lives in apartments with other wicked young men, and belongs to the semior class of Columbia College. He has a smooth face, unlike the usual type of villain, and the constant study of metaphysics at the college has filled him with clear ideas on such subjects as love, hate, revenge, how to inspire them; how to make them valued. The curriculum of Columbia College, however, contains no course by which a young man may learn how not to singe his wings in the flame of a siren's beauty.

siren's beauty.

This wicked youth saw Lillian Russell and succumbed. He had learned that by gifts This wicked youth saw Lillian Russell and suocumbed. He had learned that by gifts is the fire of passion frequently kindled. He sent Lillian flowers. She, it is said, accepted them carelessly. The wicked youth was snubbed, and returning to the college he looked up his old Greek authorities and studied the theory of revenge. His idea was to humiliate Lillian by elevating a lovely rival. He was cruel. He knew the sex too well.

well.

On the one hundredth performance of "La Cligale" the smooth-faced Juan got together $1,000, gave it to John Scallen (who may as well be advertised with the others) and told him to convert it into flowers and send the flowers to Attalie Claire right under the Russell's nose.

flowers to Attalie Claire right under the Russell's nose.

It was a pathetic moment. There was poor little inoffensive Attalie groaning beneath a floral deluge, while the blondestargot two brutal little nosegays. The wicked youth was not satisfied. Again he went to Mr. Scallon, gave him another $1,000, and asked him to make a cornucopia to send to Miss Claire in Boston. The tragic denouement is known. Lillian declined to allow the flowers to go upon the stage; she was guashing of teeth, and possibly tearing of hair, and the exquisite truelty of wicked Mr. Kayne was a complete success.

Manager French, however, wouldn't mind a few more Columbia stadents behaving in the same way, and Floriat Scallen is not perceptibly grieved. As for Columbia College, it repeives a most beneficent advertisement, for the effect of its curriculum is distinctly seen.

CUT HIS OWN TONGUE OUT.

Terrible Act of Gambler Said to Have Been Prompted by Remorse.

A Los Angeles, Cal. despatch says: One of the greatest mysteries of this city has been that of the tongueless han, which has just been solved. Last November a priestly-looking man hired a room at the lodginghouse at the corner of Fifth and Broackws, One morning he was found in his room-blood issuing from his mouth, and a blocky rasor in his hand. On examination it was found that he had out out his tongue with the razor. Bloody tracks to the door, out in the hall and the bath-room indicated that he had other wound healed he disappeared. He was thought to have been a Catholic priest. It now turns out that his name is deorge Wilson. He goes garbed as a priest, but he is a professional gambler. His family is wealthy and live in New York. His father has just died and left an estate of $150,000, 650,000 of which was left to him. The seate cannot be settled up until George has been from and a control of the family. This statement suggests that the man's act of outting out his tongue was prompted by remorse.

d by the Explosion of a Lamp at A London cable says: During a magic lantern performance for children on Friday evening in a building located on Gray's Inn road, W. C., a lamp used in the entertainment was accidentally upset and broken. The oil ignited at once, and in an instant the place caught fire. A panic ensued among the large number of children present, and a mad rush was made for the door. The greatest excitement prevalled, and the screams and shouts of the terrified children, as they desperately fought to escape from the place, were heartrending. A number were knocked down and trampled upon, but with the aid of the few adults who were present at the performance, and a number of persons who had been attracted to the spot by the shouting of the children, all were got out of the building. Twenty little ones were more or less injured, and fears are entertained that two of them will die from the terrible bruising and crushing that they received.

To BupHicate the Tunnel.

A Port Huron despatch says: The St. Clair Tunnel Company has purchased considerable land immediately adjacent to the site of the present international tunnel, and, it is said, will begin operations for the construction of another tunnel inside of sixty days. The contemplated underground parage will be similar to the present one, without the deep excavations at either of the approaches. It is plainly evident that the boring can be more rapidly accomplished and with less expenditure of money than has marked their previous undertaking. The new tunnel will be used for the westward traffic, while the old will be utilized for eastward business. It is anticipated that the new passage, will be completed inside of, twelve months. The new tunnel will be located 150 feet north of the present one.

Very diamal reports continue to arrive of the effect of the death, of the Duke, of Clarmon upon the London theatrical sesson. It is the absence of the fashionable world from the high-priced orthestra-stalls that is poculiarly left. A fortnight sage on fewer than eight theatres were closed.

A loaded bomb was discovered on Thursday night outside the Spanish consulate in Messias, Sicily. The face attached to it was burning, but was quickly extinguished, with remarkable presence of mind and courage, by the finders. The police were alarmed and immediately began a search for the dynamiters, but no arrests have yet been made. The men are supposed to be members of an Anarchiat society actung in sympathy with the Anarchists in Spain.

THE SENSATION OF THE HOUR.

one of the most horrise induces have on annals of crime in this Province has been committed. The victim, a stranger and unknown man, was set upon in a village tavern at the dead of night by a lot of lawless and drunken ruffians and murdered in coldblood. That to hide their crims the murderers oremated the remains. The whole story seems improbable, were it not that it is vouched for by good authority. About eight miles out from this place is the village of Loretto. Loretto, like most country villages, is situated at cross-roads and is composed largely of a tavern and a store. The tavern aloins a store, and does a thriving trade for so small a place. The surrounding country is given up to farming, but a number of undesirable characters infect the section. Law is an unknown quantity to many of the latter, and might is right with them. Rows and murders have been committed in the locality on several occasions.

THE WAR COMING.

The Shippers' Federation to Fight the Organized Labor Unions.

A London cable says: A committee of the Shipping Federation, which aims to break up the seamen's and other allied unions, is on the point of completing a gigantic long projected scheme for the absorption of all the industries connected with the shipping. The committee's overtures have met with marked success. They have found that numerous employers of labor in different branches of the shipping industry are anxious to be rid of the present isksome conditions, owing to which they find themselves greatly under the men's thumbs. It is tacitly understood that when the details of the desired co-operation are finally settled the Shipping Federation will throw off the mask and declare a war which will decide the question of supremacy between the unions and the employers.

Becrease in Crime.

The report on the common jails, prisons, and reformatories, presented to the Ontario Legislature, announces that during the past year there was a decrease in crime, the number of committals being 1,837 less than last year. Of this number there was a decrease of 1,153 adult males and 176 females. The number of boya under 12 years was 40 less; girls under the same age, 18 less. Total committals 10,423, as against 11,310 in 1890. The most notable decrease is in Toronto, the number of committals during the year being 3,371, as against 3,994 in 1890, or 615 less.

The story of the attempt at robbery, as far as can be gathered, is this: The express messenger, be it understood, will not be allowed the train when it pulled out of Syracuse, and climbed on top of the express car. He was provided with a hooked rope. Fastening the hook in the alight cornice of the roof on one side of the car he let himself down on the other, and around the car he looked in the glass of the side door and saw the express manager in in front of one of the safes, which was open, making up his bills. He smashed the glass with his revolver, covered the messenger, and shouted to him to hold uphis hands. Instead of doing this, McInerney reached for the signal cord with one hand and for his revolver with the other. A bullet smashed the hand on the cord, but not before it had given the signal that aroused the conductor. Then McInerney first on the robber and put a bullet through his cost. Then the robber shot the messenger, and a desperate struggle took place, which did not end until the train was stopped for the first time near Weedsport. It is evident some. last fall.

A Spanish Steamer, Wrecked and All Mane's Browned.

A London cable says: What is likely to prove the gravest maritime disaster which has occurred since the teapestones weather of the past week set in is reported from the Cornish coast. A large vessel, whose name is unknown, but which is supposed to be a Spanish steamer, has been wrecked off Penzance, and it is feared all hands who were aboard of her are lost. Already brief despatches tolling of the tragic and horrifying somes which attended the disaster have been received. It is learned that a boat containing six men, which had set out from the vessel for the shore, was capsized almost immediately in the blinding gale. The boat was next aren keef upward, but none of her crew could be seen, except two men. The first of these was dinging to the boat in desperation. He was seen to be twice washed off. The second was swimming in an effort to reach safety. The efforts made by the coast guard to help the two men proved too late, and both were drowned. Two boats from the wreck and a quantity of wreckage have come ashore.

Mr. Hardy—To consolidate the Municipal Act.

Mr. Mowat—To amend the law relating to mortmain for charitable uses.

Mr. Gibson presented to the House the estimates of the province for the year ending Dec. 30th, 1892.

Mr. Speaker kept the chair for some time awaiting the arrival of a message from the Lieut. Governor.

Mr. White, speaking in French, asked the Attorney-General if he had any business to bring before the House. If not, inasmuch as he had not had occasion to discuss political union fully the other day, as the matter had been sprung upon him, he thought he would bring forward a motion of that kind, as this was the proper opportunity. There would be an opportunity for Mr. Speaker to give his opinions on the subject. The House was all the time addressing him. He might now address the House. He would just add that when he brought in his motion a condition would be that it would be voted on by secret ballot, brought in his motion a condition would be that it would be voted on by secret ballot, so that the members could express their opininions freely without fear of the consequences.

Mr. Evanturel (in English) said that he remembered the occasion when the leader of the Opposition gloried in the fact that he had a French-Canadian behind him, but his feelings had changed. He lived wide apart from his honorable friend from Essex, and he was sorry that so far he had been unable to make his acquaintance. He was also sorry that although he spoke French he could not understand the language of the honorable member from Essex, and he was sure that his constituents in the east would be sorry also. (Laughter).

Mr. Mowat then presented the message from the Lieut. Governor, being the estimates for the coming year.

The House adjourned at 4.05 p. m.

Something About the Parents of the Dead

"We steamed around the blasing hulk in the hope of seeing a boat containing the crew. Then we steamed to leeward for 12 miles, but no sign of boat or raft could be discovered. We laid around as long as possible, but no boat could live in such a sea as was running at that time.

"When we reached Gravesend the scratch crew was immediately discharged, Capt. Irwin went to the London agents of the owners of the Locdiums, which was then reported to be missing. The burning vessel was of American build, and the description of our captain seemed to leave no doubt that it was the Locdiums which we had seen. He learned that the captain had his wife on board. We saw the vessel in lat. 48, lon. 42, about 1,200 miles west-south-west of Queenstown." he had undertaken the task of presenting the dreary old bill of fare. They were to-day as usual confronted with the usual deficit, and no apology whatever was made for it. They took the usual failure on the part of the Province, it might be of his hon. friend, to be that they were unable to meet the obligations which the Province had been obliged to make from year to year. They had also the usual borrowing of money to meet the obligations, and they had the usual old paper surplus presented to them to-day.

Mr. Harcourt—The bonds mature in 1893.

A year ago they would be sold at $210,000. paper surplus presented to them to-day.

Mr. Harcourt—The bonds mature in 1893.

A year ago they would be sold at $210,000, but as the date of their majurity approaches they consequently depreciate in value. We say that if sold now they would bring $205,000.

Mr. Clancy then contended that these bonds were in reality only worth their par value. Continuing, he said that sums owing by the Dominion should not be capitalized to show a surplus any more than the Crown lands and the timber limits and other resurces should be capitalized. If the imaginary amount held by the Dominion were subtracted from the surplus the actual surplus would be found to be $729,150, with the sum of $19,000 the surplus of the year, which was the smallest annual surplus in the history of the Province.

Mr. Mowat moved that the debate be adjourned till Tuesday. Carried.

The House adjourned at 6.01 p. m.

End of an Old Fend.

A Frankfort, Mich., despatch says: Chas. Sutherland, of this place, known better among marine men as. "Capt. Charley," was shot through the brain on Saturday night by E. B. Stranble, an old fend being the direct cause. There are now under arrest as being implicated Mrs. Stranble, wife of the alleged murderer, Chas. Wegner, juu., and A. A. Smith. Strauble, who is a sloon keeper, was being tantalized by some boys rapping on his window, and, rushing out and encountering Sutherland, abused him, thinking he was doing the rapping. Sutherland slapped his face, and in return received the fatal shot.
