Purely Local and Exceptional. There was very little discussion in the county during the campaign. The opposition candidates, for obvious reasons, did not do much talking, while I only addressed personally some four or five meetings, and was absent from the county a considerable portion of the time. I am free to realize that I could not foresee the possibility of York county selecting the opposition candidates on either personal or political grounds in preference to the government ticket. I am thoroughly satisfied that the result has followed upon one of those spasms of public feeling which occasionally spring up with great suddenness, and which when they have passed away, leave a good many regrets behind them, even on the part of those who have been subject to their influence."

"Another important influence was the apathy that prevailed among our friends. No one thought it possible that this county would choose four men of the description of the opposition candidates to represent the county in the legislature, and it was impossible to make any friend of ours believe that there was any ground for anxiety as to the result. As very conclusive evidence of the existence of the apathetic feeling to which I have referred, there is the fact that there were polled in the neighborhood of a thousand votes less than in either of the last two elections. The absentees were certainly not those who were opposed to the govern-ment. I might also say that the ordinary influences which appear to enter quite freely into elections nowadays were applied with more than the usual force in this con-

A FEW PRESS OPINIONS.

Privilege and Honor [St. Andrews Beacon.]

If York is anxious to follow the banner of the opposition leader (and it will lead them in some strange places) there are other counties in the province that would feel it a privilege and an honor to be represented by a man of such attainments as Will Accept a Seat

[Albert Maple Leaf.]
The defeat of Mr. Blair in York has called forth a general expression of regret, and some six seats have been placed at his disposal. What course the attorney-general will pursue we cannot at present state; it seems altogether probable however that he will accept a seat and give to the government the advantages of his excellent abili-St. John Telegraph. The great Atkinson, the author of the terse description of Messrs. Alward and Stockton as "blind guides and unprophetie Nebos," has lost his seat in Carleton county Since this famous phrase was uttered Atkinson has become a tame follower of thes blind guides, which will account for his defeat. Moses climbed Mount Nebo once too often, for he never came back, and this is what seems to have happened Dr. Atkinson Ballot Box Stuffing.

There has been ballot box stuffing in Carleton. In one poll fifteen more ballots came out of the box than there were names on the list. Unfortunately for Dr. Atkinson he got a majority in the district. The Sun is very desirous that this vote should be taken with the rest, and Dr. Atkinson declared elected. Such a decision by the sheriff would be a crime. The time has come when a stop should be put to stuffing ballot boxes in this province. There is a ballot boxes in this province. There is a gang of repeaters who have succeeded in York and St. John and also tried it in Kings with varying success. The only way Here we have another clean sweep, no to end such a disreputable business is to And the present is a good time to commence.

Can't do Without Him [Woodstock Sentinel.]

The attorney-general is, perhaps, scarcely in a position which admits of following out his own personal views, as to his immediate future. It may be supposed that he would prefer, submitting to the verdict of his county, to retire for a time. But his party may prefer certain claims under pressure of which he may feel it incumbent to seek election in some other county than York. Of course he has abundant and illustrious precedents. Sir John A. Macdonald rejected by his long served constituency in the interests of his government and of the country took a seat for another county. Mr. Blair may do the same. Just now it would seem to be of prime importance that he should enter the house. The country can't do very well without him; so all parties would declare.
