

THE EARTH BUBBLE.

What's just this or that poor little impulse, which for once had play-trustified...

Owen Capelle was a literary man who wrote for a living. The expression is not redundant; it is merely accurate.

With Owen Capelle, literature was at once an art and a business. It was an art because he worked at it reverently, conscientiously, with a considerably degree of talent...

It may not be uninteresting to the reader to learn, and it is certainly necessary to this narrative to explain just what Owen Capelle wrote.

It must not be supposed, however, that Owen Capelle was famous. He was moderately well-known to a limited circle of readers.

One day in the springtime, it happened that a conversation took place between Mr. Marble, of the publishing firm, and a certain Great Author, of which Mr. Capelle and his affairs formed the subject.

He sprang up out of the easy-chair, thrilled with the thought of the pleasure which this chance idea had mapped out before him.

At first, he felt an almost frantic haste to get to his desk and begin writing. The whole thing seems to be of such stuff as dreams are made on, and in such a momentary pageant which might fade and leave no rack behind.

As he turned away from the window toward the desk, two thoughts struck him almost simultaneously. One was: "This will never do for the public."

And the other was: "But it is only for myself!" During the month that followed, Owen Capelle wrote several hours a day, rapidly, with perfect ease and with the keenest of pleasure.

Thus, by an accident, Capelle had stumbled upon the misadventure of a lifetime. As for the book which he created, it would not be easy to name any class in literature to which it could be said to belong.

It was not a novel, nor a fairy story, nor a poem, yet it partook of the nature of each and all. Its style was peculiar as its plan, teeming with quaint figures and mystic allusions, the force and meaning of which could be felt perhaps by none save the writer himself.

It bore the name of "The Earth Bubble," from the utterance of Banquo on the vanishing witches: "The earth bath bubbles as the water has, and these are of them."

This title had come to him with the first thought of the plan, and it seemed through every part of the work. At the end of the month the book was finished—a bulky pile of finely written sheets of paper.

When the visitor had departed, the author of "The Earth Bubble" settled himself again to enjoy the reading of his plan, and had told him this thing at the price he named. It is certainly different from my usual style—which is what he demanded.

Such thoughts as these caused the unique elements of the book to stand out more vividly to his notice as he read, and in now dimly diminished the pleasure which it gave him.

And then Mrs. Capelle and the little Capelle returned to the city, and dull every-day life began again. "The Earth Bubble" was laid away in an obscure corner amid a heap of rejected MSS.

Now there is a certain class of people with whom decisions do not decide. Owen Capelle belonged to that class. He has decided, of course, not to sell "The Earth Bubble," or any other manuscript to Mr. J. Cecil Hicks.

At last the visitor spoke: "I want you to write a book for me—that is, to be published in my name. I will pay you more for it than any publisher will give you for your own work."

At first, he felt an almost frantic haste to get to his desk and begin writing. The whole thing seems to be of such stuff as dreams are made on, and in such a momentary pageant which might fade and leave no rack behind.

As he rode back from the depot, after putting Mrs. Capelle and a liberal contingent of small Capelles on board the train, the story-writer said to himself: "What shall I do with it?"

His wife had warned him to keep away from his study, that he might not be tempted to do any writing. Instinctive steps, however, led him into the workshop.

Stretched out in an easy-chair, a large pipe filled with fragrant tobacco, he reconnoitered the situation, discussing with himself, one after another, the various uses to which the vacation might be put.

The problem was to find something to do, which he should enjoy doing, and yet which should not be work in an easy enough matter for most mortals, but, as it happened, rather a perplexing one for Owen Capelle.

"It will not do for me to take a run out into the country, for I shall find myself instinctively picking up material wherever I go. It would be work in disguise."

"Or suppose," he continued, in a vain endeavor to lull to a different track, "I make use of this blessed gift of days to read, solely with a view to my own pleasure and amusement."

"No," to come to business, said the visitor. "In the first place, I must ask you to regard this conversation as strictly confidential, for if it should get out, it would make a laughing-stock of me."

"I was not at all busy," said Mr. Capelle, in that peculiar tone of voice which clearly proclaims the falsehood. "Perhaps you do not remember me," said Mr. Hicks; "your brother-in-law has introduced me to you quite a number of times."

"Quite a number of times" is good," thought the writer. He said aloud: "I remember you very well."

"Now, to come to business," said the visitor. "In the first place, I must ask you to regard this conversation as strictly confidential, for if it should get out, it would make a laughing-stock of me."

"I was not at all busy," said Mr. Capelle, in that peculiar tone of voice which clearly proclaims the falsehood. "Perhaps you do not remember me," said Mr. Hicks; "your brother-in-law has introduced me to you quite a number of times."

"Quite a number of times" is good," thought the writer. He said aloud: "I remember you very well."

"Now, to come to business," said the visitor. "In the first place, I must ask you to regard this conversation as strictly confidential, for if it should get out, it would make a laughing-stock of me."

"I was not at all busy," said Mr. Capelle, in that peculiar tone of voice which clearly proclaims the falsehood. "Perhaps you do not remember me," said Mr. Hicks; "your brother-in-law has introduced me to you quite a number of times."

"Quite a number of times" is good," thought the writer. He said aloud: "I remember you very well."

"Now, to come to business," said the visitor. "In the first place, I must ask you to regard this conversation as strictly confidential, for if it should get out, it would make a laughing-stock of me."

"I was not at all busy," said Mr. Capelle, in that peculiar tone of voice which clearly proclaims the falsehood. "Perhaps you do not remember me," said Mr. Hicks; "your brother-in-law has introduced me to you quite a number of times."

"Quite a number of times" is good," thought the writer. He said aloud: "I remember you very well."

"Now, to come to business," said the visitor. "In the first place, I must ask you to regard this conversation as strictly confidential, for if it should get out, it would make a laughing-stock of me."

"I was not at all busy," said Mr. Capelle, in that peculiar tone of voice which clearly proclaims the falsehood. "Perhaps you do not remember me," said Mr. Hicks; "your brother-in-law has introduced me to you quite a number of times."

"Quite a number of times" is good," thought the writer. He said aloud: "I remember you very well."

When the visitor had departed, the author of "The Earth Bubble" settled himself again to enjoy the reading of his plan, and had told him this thing at the price he named. It is certainly different from my usual style—which is what he demanded.

Such thoughts as these caused the unique elements of the book to stand out more vividly to his notice as he read, and in now dimly diminished the pleasure which it gave him.

And then Mrs. Capelle and the little Capelle returned to the city, and dull every-day life began again. "The Earth Bubble" was laid away in an obscure corner amid a heap of rejected MSS.

Now there is a certain class of people with whom decisions do not decide. Owen Capelle belonged to that class. He has decided, of course, not to sell "The Earth Bubble," or any other manuscript to Mr. J. Cecil Hicks.

At last the visitor spoke: "I want you to write a book for me—that is, to be published in my name. I will pay you more for it than any publisher will give you for your own work."

At first, he felt an almost frantic haste to get to his desk and begin writing. The whole thing seems to be of such stuff as dreams are made on, and in such a momentary pageant which might fade and leave no rack behind.

As he turned away from the window toward the desk, two thoughts struck him almost simultaneously. One was: "This will never do for the public."

And the other was: "But it is only for myself!" During the month that followed, Owen Capelle wrote several hours a day, rapidly, with perfect ease and with the keenest of pleasure.

Thus, by an accident, Capelle had stumbled upon the misadventure of a lifetime. As for the book which he created, it would not be easy to name any class in literature to which it could be said to belong.

It was not a novel, nor a fairy story, nor a poem, yet it partook of the nature of each and all. Its style was peculiar as its plan, teeming with quaint figures and mystic allusions, the force and meaning of which could be felt perhaps by none save the writer himself.

It bore the name of "The Earth Bubble," from the utterance of Banquo on the vanishing witches: "The earth bath bubbles as the water has, and these are of them."

This title had come to him with the first thought of the plan, and it seemed through every part of the work. At the end of the month the book was finished—a bulky pile of finely written sheets of paper.

When the visitor had departed, the author of "The Earth Bubble" settled himself again to enjoy the reading of his plan, and had told him this thing at the price he named. It is certainly different from my usual style—which is what he demanded.

Such thoughts as these caused the unique elements of the book to stand out more vividly to his notice as he read, and in now dimly diminished the pleasure which it gave him.

And then Mrs. Capelle and the little Capelle returned to the city, and dull every-day life began again. "The Earth Bubble" was laid away in an obscure corner amid a heap of rejected MSS.

Now there is a certain class of people with whom decisions do not decide. Owen Capelle belonged to that class. He has decided, of course, not to sell "The Earth Bubble," or any other manuscript to Mr. J. Cecil Hicks.

At last the visitor spoke: "I want you to write a book for me—that is, to be published in my name. I will pay you more for it than any publisher will give you for your own work."

At first, he felt an almost frantic haste to get to his desk and begin writing. The whole thing seems to be of such stuff as dreams are made on, and in such a momentary pageant which might fade and leave no rack behind.

As he turned away from the window toward the desk, two thoughts struck him almost simultaneously. One was: "This will never do for the public."

And the other was: "But it is only for myself!" During the month that followed, Owen Capelle wrote several hours a day, rapidly, with perfect ease and with the keenest of pleasure.

Thus, by an accident, Capelle had stumbled upon the misadventure of a lifetime. As for the book which he created, it would not be easy to name any class in literature to which it could be said to belong.

When the visitor had departed, the author of "The Earth Bubble" settled himself again to enjoy the reading of his plan, and had told him this thing at the price he named. It is certainly different from my usual style—which is what he demanded.

Such thoughts as these caused the unique elements of the book to stand out more vividly to his notice as he read, and in now dimly diminished the pleasure which it gave him.

And then Mrs. Capelle and the little Capelle returned to the city, and dull every-day life began again. "The Earth Bubble" was laid away in an obscure corner amid a heap of rejected MSS.

Now there is a certain class of people with whom decisions do not decide. Owen Capelle belonged to that class. He has decided, of course, not to sell "The Earth Bubble," or any other manuscript to Mr. J. Cecil Hicks.

At last the visitor spoke: "I want you to write a book for me—that is, to be published in my name. I will pay you more for it than any publisher will give you for your own work."

At first, he felt an almost frantic haste to get to his desk and begin writing. The whole thing seems to be of such stuff as dreams are made on, and in such a momentary pageant which might fade and leave no rack behind.

As he turned away from the window toward the desk, two thoughts struck him almost simultaneously. One was: "This will never do for the public."

And the other was: "But it is only for myself!" During the month that followed, Owen Capelle wrote several hours a day, rapidly, with perfect ease and with the keenest of pleasure.

Thus, by an accident, Capelle had stumbled upon the misadventure of a lifetime. As for the book which he created, it would not be easy to name any class in literature to which it could be said to belong.

It was not a novel, nor a fairy story, nor a poem, yet it partook of the nature of each and all. Its style was peculiar as its plan, teeming with quaint figures and mystic allusions, the force and meaning of which could be felt perhaps by none save the writer himself.

It bore the name of "The Earth Bubble," from the utterance of Banquo on the vanishing witches: "The earth bath bubbles as the water has, and these are of them."

This title had come to him with the first thought of the plan, and it seemed through every part of the work. At the end of the month the book was finished—a bulky pile of finely written sheets of paper.

When the visitor had departed, the author of "The Earth Bubble" settled himself again to enjoy the reading of his plan, and had told him this thing at the price he named. It is certainly different from my usual style—which is what he demanded.

Such thoughts as these caused the unique elements of the book to stand out more vividly to his notice as he read, and in now dimly diminished the pleasure which it gave him.

And then Mrs. Capelle and the little Capelle returned to the city, and dull every-day life began again. "The Earth Bubble" was laid away in an obscure corner amid a heap of rejected MSS.

Now there is a certain class of people with whom decisions do not decide. Owen Capelle belonged to that class. He has decided, of course, not to sell "The Earth Bubble," or any other manuscript to Mr. J. Cecil Hicks.

At last the visitor spoke: "I want you to write a book for me—that is, to be published in my name. I will pay you more for it than any publisher will give you for your own work."

At first, he felt an almost frantic haste to get to his desk and begin writing. The whole thing seems to be of such stuff as dreams are made on, and in such a momentary pageant which might fade and leave no rack behind.

As he turned away from the window toward the desk, two thoughts struck him almost simultaneously. One was: "This will never do for the public."

And the other was: "But it is only for myself!" During the month that followed, Owen Capelle wrote several hours a day, rapidly, with perfect ease and with the keenest of pleasure.

Thus, by an accident, Capelle had stumbled upon the misadventure of a lifetime. As for the book which he created, it would not be easy to name any class in literature to which it could be said to belong.

NEWS OF THE OLD WORLD

BRITISH NAVAL OFFICERS' ACTIONS IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

The Legality of the Proceedings to Be Tried in a Court of Law—The Heligoland Case—The Proceedings in the House of Commons.

LONDON, July 28.—In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Ferguson said that as the legality of the actions of the British naval officers in Newfoundland will be tried by a court of law, it was not desirable to state under what imperial law of prerogative the Crown office instructions had been framed.

The Heligoland bill passed the third reading in the House of Commons to-day. The Muenchener Zeitung says Bavarian barriages will meet Prince Bismarck at Esslingen and will be placed at his disposal as in former years.

Martial law has been proclaimed in the Kron quarters of Constantinople, which is patrolled. Several arrests have been made. A terrible Railway Collision.

MANCHESTER, July 28.—A fearful accident happened at 3 1/2 this afternoon in the new Manchester ship canal which will entail heavy loss of life. Two workmen's trains, through some unexplained stupidity of a switchman, collided. Ten workmen were instantly killed and sixty others wounded, of whom at least thirty will die.

Vienna's Beauty Contest. VIENNA, July 28.—The following directions have been given for those ladies who wish to compete in the International Beauty Contest here: All competitors must send photographs, with their addresses, to the committee. Those who are admitted must attend in evening dress, or costumes representative of the country from which they come.

The Visit Postponed. BERLIN, July 28.—Prince Bismarck's proposed visit to England has been postponed. He will go to Kissingen in the middle of August.

Robbing the Dead. LONDON, July 28.—A sensation is reported from Landshut, in lower Bavaria, over the discovery that the cemetery keepers have been robbing the bodies of the rich dead during the past two years. Clothes, ornaments and even hair have been stolen, while the costly caskets have been replaced by plain pine coffins. General examinations have been ordered and the ghouls have been arrested.

Brigands Killed. CANEA, Crete, July 28.—A detachment of gendarmes surprised a number of brigands in a cave on this island and killed and wounded four of them. One gendarme discovered large stores of ammunition and provisions.

MEN OF GREENWOOD. Canadian Foresters Hold Their Annual Demonstration at Hamilton. HAMILTON, July 28.—About 3500 Foresters from Toronto, Brantford, Galt, Stratford, London and other points joined the local body to-day in the celebration of the 15th anniversary of the institution of the order. The organization stands to-day second to no other of its kind. On its membership rolls there are inscribed the names of upward of 750,000 members. In its treasury there is stored away $25,000,000, and all over the civilized globe there are found courts of the order. On the membership list are found the names of 36 peers, 14 sons of peers, 5 bishops, 40 baronets, 6 judges, 30 knights, and no less than 221 men of the British Parliament, besides innumerable persons of rank and title in the colonies and foreign countries.

The Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo men were at work to-day filling up the gully and leveling up the line for the three tracks at the entrance to the Bay-street tunnel. There will be two tracks in the tunnel.

At the meeting of the City Council to-night Ald. Ryckman presented a scheme for the annexation of part of the Township of Barton. Three small boys named Melrose, Mandel, John Harris and James Powell were convicted at the Police Court this morning of tapping John H. Kerr's till. Sentence was reserved.

Prof. Grant preferred a charge against John Meadows and his son of using insulting language. Defendants had called the "professor" a "nigger." The Police Magistrate dismissed the case.

Explosion of High Mines.—The Dominion Rifle Association Meeting. OTTAWA, July 28.—Fire took place in Bates' grocery wholesale store to-day. It occurred through the explosion of high wines. W. Bates, son of T. Bates of St. Catharines, endeavored to extinguish the flames that his life was despaired of. He was taken to the Protestant Hospital more dead than alive. A young man named William Petrie was to-day convicted for attempting to displace a switch in the Canadian Pacific Railway yards here.

The Dominion Rifle Association meeting in September will last four days this year, instead of a week, as formerly. The number, both of matches and competitors, will be as large as usual, but the saving in time will be effected by the use of additional targets, and by having the marksmen shoot in three instead of pairs as heretofore. The number of targets has been increased from 25 to 33.

Sad Disappointment for Newport. HALIFAX, July 28.—It is now stated by Halifax authorities here that the warship Wales, in command of Prince George of Bermuda this morning for Halifax direct. The flagship Bellefleur, with Admiral Watson and Sir John Rose on board, sailed from St. John's yesterday for Newport, and will be joined on route by the Canada and Partridge, which left this morning. It is said that Prince George had no intention of going to Newport.

The Baseball Score. NATIONAL—Pittsburg 2, New York 4; Cincinnati 1, Boston 4; Chicago 13, Philadelphia 4; Cleveland 4, Brooklyn 4. AMERICAN—Athletics 6, Toledo 7; Rochester 3, Louisville 12; Syracuse 1, St. Louis 12; Brooklyn 4, Columbus 2. PLAYERS—Buffalo 12, Philadelphia 9; Pittsburg 4, New York 6; Chicago 7, Brooklyn 6; Cleveland 4, Boston 4.

Only a Sister. "My sister and I each tried a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters with great success for bilious headache. We recommend it to all as a specific for headache." Miss CAROL SCHREIBER, Baden, Ont.

Minard's Liniment cures Burns, etc. Regulate the Liver and Bowels by the judicious use of National Pills, they are purely vegetable.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Mr. Nancy Sullivan has seen one hundred and five summers, and says this is the hottest she remembers. Her home is near Inlay City, Michigan, and she boasts of being the oldest person in the State. She was born in Dublin, has proofs as to her age, and is an sound mentally as ever. She has a son seventy-two years old, who lives in the neighborhood, and her daughter-in-law is seventy.

Party Politics. When party politics run high bad feeling and bad blood are often caused, but all parties agree that when bad blood arises from ordinary causes the only satisfactory cure is Burdock Blood Bitters, nature's blood purifier. Recommended by the medical profession.

A Washington attorney offered to get the editor of the Charlotte, Mich., Tribune a pension. (The editor was ten years old when the war broke out.)

C. C. RICHARDS & Co. Gentl.—I have used your MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family for some years and believe it the best medicine in the market as it does all it is recommended to do. DANIEL KIRKSTEAD, Casan Forks, N. B.

John Mader, Mahone Bay, informs us that he was cured of a very severe attack of rheumatism by using MINARD'S LINIMENT.

Rev. J. W. Arney, of Saranac, Mich., is a rushing exponent of Methodism. He can preach and sing; his family make a good singing band that plays Sunday nights in the church; he owns two fast horses, one worth $500 and the other worth $400, and has secured a race track on which he will conduct some lively speeding July 20. His congregation will have him stay with them another year.

A child saved. My little boy was taken very bad with diarrhoea; he was very delicate and got so low we had no hope of his life, but a lady friend recommended Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and although he could only get a few drops at a time he got well. It saved my child.

Mrs. Wm STEWART, Campbellville, Ont. Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc. A midwife of Odessa sued a certain Mr. Viltcher for her fee, as she had assisted his wife at the delivery of a child. Being questioned by the judge why he refused to pay his bill, Mr. Viltcher said that he did not feel as though he should be paid anything because the baby was a girl.

Wilson's Fly Poison Pads. One of these pads will kill more flies every day for a month than can be caught upon a large sheet of sticky paper. A 10c packet of Wilson's Fly Poison Pads will last a whole season. Sold by all druggists.

The La Grange, Ga., Graphic says:—"There is a negro in Perry by the name of Alfred Swift who was struck by lightning recently. The bolt struck him on the elbow on the right arm, ran up his arm, round his body, down both legs, tearing both of his shoes to pieces. The marks of the lightning are as plain as on a pine tree."

History of 15 Years. For fifteen years we have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry as a family medicine for summer complaints and diarrhoea, and we never had anything to equal it. We highly recommend it. SAMUEL WEBB, Corbett, Ont.

A twelve-year-old girl living at Crosswell, Mich., fell into a gutter crock in which there was four inches of water, and was drowned before help reached her.

Trouble at Malta. Mrs. W. H. Brown of Malta, Man., states that her children and two others belonging to her neighborhood, were cured of the worst form of summer complaint by one bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, nature's specific for all summer complaints.

Dallas, Oregon, claims to handle more wool direct from the producer than any other city in the United States. Large wagonloads come to town every day, and 5,000,000 pounds will be handled this season.

There he is again, first on my nose, then in my ear, and I dare not open my mouth for fear he should fly down my throat. Hello, John, jump over to the drug store and buy a packet of Wilson's Fly Poison Pads, I can't stand this any longer. Price 10c. Sold by all druggists.

The following is a good definition, or perhaps more accurately speaking, a good description of what a table foot would be: "The desiderata in a good marketable table foot are soon reckoned up, i. e., a large, solid-bodied bird, deep neck or breast, broad chest, and narrow stern frame, round and compact, flesh of a fine grain or texture, and of a clear white color." We should add with a nice golden skin and rich yellow shanks, and nothing would be wanting.

Freeman's Worm Powders destroy and remove worms without injury to adult or infant.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

NEWS OF THE WO

Buffalo claims a population of 500,000. A revolution has broken out in Ayres. The clockmaker's strike in New York is settled. The Irish rifle team won the E. M. Cup. Spanish warships have been sent to Central America. The gold exports from New York amounted to $1,254,000.

There are fears of a potato famine in the West. The Siberian cattle plague is in the Province of Riazan in Russia. The Earl of Jersey has been Governor of New South Wales.

An incendiary fire at Spokane destroyed property valued at $150,000. Russia has increased the tariff on starch, glassware, wax and codlin. Appearances indicate that Lor Churchill will again be in the limelight.

Innocent rains have done a amount of damage to crops in F. Rev. Dr. Moulton has been elected of the British Wesleyan Conference. Fifteen hundred journeymen in Chicago have struck for two hours Saturday.

A dispatch from Spokane Falls the town of Wallace, Idaho, is to be No particular. Nineteen persons were killed property destroyed by a cyclone of Glendora, Mass., school. Rioes and bur crew of sixteen were on a voyage to Ireland.

John D. Fiske, a lawyer and manager, was shot and killed stills in the town of Edwars. The Uruguayan parliament will compel the payment of the custom duties in gold.

Work on the St. Clair tunnel very rapidly. A meeting today was held at Point Edward. Paris is alarmed over the d a man sick with cholera has l the hospitals there since July. President Diaz says Mexico troops for establishing a maintain the strictest neutrality.

The New York striking becoming turbulent and demanding violence to enforce their two. In a yacht race at Duluth, Minn. was struck by a cyclone from bottom. Two men were drowned. Thirty-two Arabs, who at Delphia, Pa., on the steamer from Liverpool, will have to the Chicago City Council. A Richmond despatch says scheme as a possible form of the Force Bill is not general South.

M. Roche, the French Minister, will distribute copies of his Bill among the French Congress. Mr. Baker, the Wesleyan Premier of Tonga, has been a minor threat of his Russian papers are but Russo-French alliance, which press William's coming visit. Ignorance of the Russian language in Iowa there will be a honey crop this year. The flowers and the clover are tans far yielded nothing.

The Chicago City Council postponed, and it is now the matter will never come to be adjudicated privately. Dr. Peters is to receive a pension of $10,000 a year, probably be entrusted with an expedition into the interior. A despatch from Sankir swept over that place re-demolished the chimney down, to be a great success.

At St. Joseph, Mo., the John O'Meara, who weigh upon her twin daughters killed them both. The months old. Large cargoes of Canada riving in Scotland, and is expected next month been taken for city bringing against. Frederick Douglas, who has just arrived in New were no indications of when he left Haiti and possibly to be a great success.

The Stevedores' Union cleared a boycott against Allan line, plying to Mexico and Hull and London York, for employment in the manufacturing. River, Mass., have agreement with the other England and cut off the during the last two miles south-east of Loch named Yago boat. Poor severely with a shov teeth died in the field.

The town of Ham had been almost totally d inhabitants are home ing condition. Pro have been sent from ferors. The Queen has presed the library of the Among the books are history of Windsor Castle of the Great Seal isan exceptional marl

Two heavy freight i. e., Le Shores and lided near Tigertown, and Buckley, Braken known brakeman wer engines and nearly all struck.

The trial of the act by Viscount Dunlo, e carry, against his wil marriage, was known as Bolla Bilton, has o co-respondent is I wealthy denier in bri is an absolute denial

The Armenian B among those killing his death has aroused highest pitch of e country is in a stat is at a standstill. The Kurds, under the order, patrol the cot over they got. The room offers the pers lum in P. r.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.