An Open Prospect.

The statement made by British Trade Agents that the immediate expenditure of thirty-five million pounds sterling, in the purchase of food stuffs for Russian relief, opens up a prospect for the disposal of the one hundred thousand quintals or more of last year's catch of codfish yet unsold. And if this lot could be gotten rid of at figures netting a reasonable profit, there would be little difficulty in following up with sales of new fish. It is undeniable that a certain proportion of fish must be sent into Russia amongst the other food supplies. And Newfoundland exporters are in a position to negotiate a sale of their holdings stored in Mediterranean ports very speedily, providing they at once move to have the matter taken up by the Government of the Colony with either the British authorities or the American Russian Relief Committee, whose organizer at Washington is Mr. Herbert Hoover, late Food Controller. There is a lot to be said in favor of the follow-up communication of Mr. W. White, published in yesterday's Telegram. Our fish, as he states, is the nearest big lot of food to Russia and could be shipped there without any unnecessary delay, while consignments of other food purchases made on this side the Atlantic for shipment, must necessarily take a longer time to reach their destination. The opportunity is there to effect a deal which would be profitable to all concerned, and fish going into Russia would afford immediate relief, particularly as it would enable the peasants in obtaining a change of diet from the staple of food, and which, according to dispatches from London, they are hoarding up for their future private use. Fish, properly cooked, and bread will sustain life indefinitely, and it would be greatly to the advantage of the South Russian people if cargoes could be sent to Crimean ports for immediate distribution. It but requires initiative, we think, on the part of the exporters themselves to make this fait accompli.

Millions of hungry Russians are being driven to the cities in search of food, and the fear of Divine Vengeance upon holy Russia is said to out-terror even the terrors of starvation. Twenty million people in the once prolific and fruitful land of the Czar are calling upon humanity to save them from hunger and its attendant horrors. Drought has dried up the streams, opened crevasses in the parched land and left these millions little more than dying vegetation to stay the pangs of hunger. The huge wheat belt, extending from the region of Samara on the Volga River to Perm is being denuded of its population, men, women and children fleeing from their homes in a panic-stricken exodus and moving westward. The sole cry of these starving masses is Bread, and an appeal from the head of the Orthodox Russian Church to the Archbishops of Canterbury and York asks that bread and medicines be sent immediately. That appeal is about to meet with response. The most pathetic feature of all is the millions of little children, who must die miserably if not instantly looked after, yet who if they survive the terrors of famine and disease, will be but broken and weak specimens of humanity unfit to carry on the duties required of them, and mainly the developers of a race of imbeciles and idiots. But before relief can be sent into stricken Russia, there has to be a change in methods of the Government of the Soviet, which has not yet sent out any official call for help. Controlling every system of transportation it may be that officialdom would refuse to permit the passage of food from sea to interior, or even to permit it to be landed at all. But the cry of the starving millions must have its effect, and with negotiations proceeding for permission to the world to help Russia, even the rulers of "Lenine's Paradise of Atheism" cannot hold out against overwhelming sentiment, but will finally have to open Russian ports and Russian railways to the cargoes of food supplies that are even now being gathered in the producing countries of two hemispheres.

To-day's public message from Washington declares that a complete agreement on the question of Food Relief for Russia has been reached at Riga. All that remains to be done now is the acquisition of whatever supplies are deemed necessary for immediate shipment.

Held Over.

In consequence of pressure upon space to-day, the fourth installment of the Review of 1921 House of Assembly Proceedings, has to be held over until to-morrow.

Trinity.

The day after Canon Lockyer posted his items for last week, whilst working in the cemetery, he was put out of action by a bad attack of sunstroke. Though the symptoms looked serious for a while—yet after nearly a week in bed he is up and about again, but still altogether too unsteady to prepare items for this week.

Orphans Entertained.

The orphan children of Belvidere were given an outing at Topsail yesterday afternoon through the kindness of a number of well known ladies and gentlemen. The little ones numbering 160, and in charge of the good Sisters, left the city by motor cars shortly after 3 p.m., and on arrival at Topsail, spent a very enjoyable hour on the beach, afterwards being treated to ice cream, candy and fruit by their kind entertainers. The outing was thoroughly enjoyed by the children and they are deeply grateful to their kind benefactors. Return to the city was made at 5:30 p.m.

Both Sisters and children are deeply grateful to those who so kindly sent their motor cars to convey the orphans to the picnic grounds, and who did so being Mr. M. P. Cashin, Hon. M. P. Gibbs, Messrs. T. Smyth, J. J. Duff, M. P. Paul, W. Howlett, B. McGuire, J. H. Monroe, Dr. V. P. Burke, J. J. Lacey, Mrs. C. J. Cahill, Mr. J. J. Mullaly, Mrs. J. V. O'Dea.

Cochrane St. S. S. Picnic.

Cochrane Street Sunday School picnic was held at Brookfield yesterday. A special train with four hundred scholars, teachers and friends left the depot at 10:45 a.m. and duly reached the grounds, which were ideal for picnic purposes, the weather was delightful and everything went with a swing. Games were indulged in, such as football, races, etc., the tents were well supplied with ice cream, fruit and drinks and found many ready customers in the young folk. At 4 o'clock tea was served and all did ample justice to the good things provided by Mr. F. B. Woods and the Hon. S. Miller, president of the picnic grounds, and immediately won the good-will of the scholars, for he came laden with a bountiful supply of prizes for racing. This kind act on the part of a member of the congregation cannot soon be forgotten. The pastor, Rev. C. H. Johnson, M.A., and Rev. James H. Johnson, were also present. Return home was made at 8 p.m., all voting it to have been the best outing held for some years.

The Advocate's Modesty

Shakespeare says "That nothing so becomes a man as modest stillness and humility." Unfortunately, the Bard of Avon did not live to make the acquaintance of the Advocate. That paper, finding this is the last falling into disrepute, had on Wednesday an editorial which was full of flowery phrases concerning itself. There is only one excuse for self praise, and even that is a poor one. When one can find no one who will say a good word for one, then and only then, is it permissible to praise one's self. But under these circumstances it is the height of bad form. This the Advocate possibly does not realize. And on what plane does that paper place itself?

Champion of the truth, indeed! Imagine the Advocate setting itself up in that capacity. Ananias could far more justifiably have laid claim to being virtuous. The Advocate has told a great many journalistic falsehoods in its day, but when it states that its word would be taken before that of any other local journal, it caps them all. We have a humorous weekly paper. Now it seems that we are to have a daily comic paper.

The influence of the Advocate! Ye gods! To think that the Advocate of the city should be so arrogant as to exercise any influence. How the editor of that paper must have laughed when he wrote that article, speculating as he did so, how many would believe this latest advertisement. The editor of the Advocate must have written his modest editorial on Tuesday night, when Luna in all her glory was sailing across the heavens. It would require the very best stretch of the imagination to picture the Advocate as impartial and truthful. But after all, self-praise is no recommendation.—COM.

Police Court.

A 19 year old domestic of Cuddihy Street, who was arrested for safe-keeping, was ordered sent home to her father. The boy is quite a loose and disorderly girl, arrested at 3 a.m., was fined $5 or 14 days. A young housewife of the Higher Levels, who had left her husband about three months ago on account of his cruel treatment, summoned him this morning for the support of his child, an infant of 18 months. The custody of the child is to be given to the father, who will maintain and support it.

A resident of Allendale Road was sued by his young wife for desertion. The hearing was adjourned until to-morrow.

Landed Sick Boy.

The banking schooner Harold Conrad arrived in port this morning from the Banks to land the captain's son, who is very ill. The boy is quite young, being about 10 years of age. He was taken to Hospital in the ambulance. The 1700 qts. of fish and left the Banks two days ago.

A. A. A. Sports.

The Newfoundland Amateur Athletic Association Sports, which take place in St. George's Field next Wednesday afternoon, are the fitting wind up of the season's athletic meet. All the contestants are now in the pink of condition, so that each event will be keenly contested and good times will be made. These sports are an epoch-making event, because they are the beginning of a new era for Newfoundland. They are the first to be held under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Association, which has just acquired the Paradise Ground for its headquarters. Medals, specially designed for the Association will be ordered, official records will be kept, the winners will later be presented with certificates from the Association which will be recognized throughout the sporting world. Mayor Morris, under whose Mayoralty the grounds are passed over, has kindly consented to open the sports. We predict a large attendance. All that is now required is a fine day.

Dogs Destroy Valuable Property.

Mr. D. J. Galway, whose residence is near Mundy Road, was both surprised and sorry to find his moving van when going to his fowl house to get some eggs for his breakfast, he found fifteen dogs had broken into the floor destroyed by mongrel dogs, or may be by a class that are termed thoroughbred. There is a great deal of damage done by these dogs, and Mr. Galway is very angry to say that if any of the dogs leave their parental home another time, they will be shot. He is now, should they invade his poultry yard.

Enjoyable Social Function.

A delightful dance was given last night by Mrs. W. B. Fraser for her daughter, Miss K. Fraser, who has recently arrived home from school. The dance was held in the C.C.C. Hall and over 100 couples had been invited. The hall room was brilliantly lighted and was decorated with flowers. The C.L.B. C. Band under Capt. A. J. Solomons, led the music in a manner which added to the enjoyment of the evening.

Obituary.

JOHN McNAMARA.

The sudden passing of Mr. John McNamara, Customs Broker, which took place at his home on Patrick Street last midnight will be learned with regret by his many friends in the city. For some time Mr. McNamara had been suffering from heart disease, but not of a nature to prevent him from pursuing his avocation. Yesterday he attended to his usual duties at the Customs House, and appeared to be enjoying his customary health. During the evening he did not complain of being ill and retired at his usual hour. Shortly after midnight, however, he was seized with a sudden pain near the heart and Doctors Tait and Carnell were hurriedly called. Rev. Fr. Kennedy was also summoned and administered the last rites of the church, and shortly after he breathed his last. Deceased began his business career with the firm of James Fox and Sons with whom he was accountant for several years, afterwards starting a small business for himself at Cape Breton. Some years later he became Sub-Collector at Badger, and on the death of the late Arthur J. Piquers some eight years ago was named as broker at the Customs House. Left to mourn are his wife formerly a Miss Grace of Cape Breton, his daughter, Miss Agnes, who is attending school, also two daughters, Margaret and Mary both at home. Hon. F. McNamara and Mr. A. McNamara the Jeweller are brothers of deceased and Mrs. A. O'Driscoll, Willeby Bay is a sister to all of whom the Telegram extends sympathy.
