

The Peace Jubilee at Boston.

Correspondence of N.Y. Tribune. The Coliseum is built on the Back Bay, where it takes in the open space known as St. James Park, and even extends beyond the boundaries of that distinguished pleasure ground.

The performance opened a little after 3 o'clock. Long before that hour the singers had taken their places, the fiddlers were all in their seats, and Dr. J. H. Wilcox sat patient at the organ.

chorus is packed closely, yet it covers an area of about 300 feet square—that is to say, the voice of the rear ranks has 300 feet further to travel than the voice of the front rank, and if both start precisely at the same moment, one will come in a fifth of a second after the other.
