Said to Have Been Decoyed to the House of a Prominent London Physician for the Purpose of Being Operated Upon.

New York, Nov. 16 .- A special cable from London to a New York afternoon paper says: "The American embassy here is having some trouble investigating a strange story of the alleged kidnapping of an American citizen which, despite its probability, compels inquiry. A respectable man, describing himself as John Garner, a school master of Harrow road, brought to the embassy this morning a letter addressed to the American ambassador and superscribed: "Will the find-er deliver immediately, for God's sake!" Mr. Garner said that he found the letter on the sidewalk in Harley street, which is mainly occupied by leading physicians. He knew nothing further about it. Ambassador Hay opened the letter and found a lucid narrative, which was signed by Henry S. Clay. It declared that the writer was a resident of Boston, and that he had been decoyed some days ago into the house of a prominent physician, who is an ardent vivisectionist. Since his entry into the house he has been confined in a garret. A little food had been given to him, but opiates had been mixed with it. The writer says he was convinced that his captor intended to perform an operation on him, and he implored the ambassador to London, Nov. 16 .- A special dispatch procure his release. In conclusion he from Shanghai says: Serious tension said that he would throw the letter exists between Japan and Russia owing from a window in the hope that some one would find it and deliver it to Col. A watch is being kept on Mr. Garner lest the letter turn out to be an attempt at blackmail, but he has claimed no reward for delivering the letter, and appears to be entirely rational.

The will was dated Oct. 14, 1895. The plaintiffs are all the children of the testator, and defendants are four grandchildren of the testator, the widow, sister and brother all of whom are beneficiaries named in the will. The plaintiffs claim that since the spring of 1894 the testator had been of unsound mind, having many delusions, and constantly talked incoherently. While in this condition he made other wills, which he afterwards burned. The last one, which it is now sought to set aside, devised his farm to four infant grandchildren, subject to certain legacies in favor of his daughter, his wife and brother and sister.
