"Political motives," she said to herself; "I don't quite understand them. I wish how I wish that he was here to welcome me. It seems odd"—she would not say unkind—"to leave only this funny old woman to welcome me after so long a fourney, and no fire." She shivered.

No tea! Elsie was too tired and weak to be exactly hungry, but she would have liked to have hot tea and a good warm fire. Instead, the funny old woman took her through a scantily-furnished salon, or parlor, paid the finest Franch better. her through a scantily-lurnished salon, or parlor, into the timiest French kitchen. The floor was of red tiles, the atmosphere was stifling, there was a very small, uncomfortable looking sofa covered in red cretonne; there was a large pillow and a couple of dark blankets. She found that she was expected to accommodate herself toc ircumstances and to make herself as comfortable as sne could in this comfortless bed. The old woman lit the gas and cnattered very fast. She hoped, she said, that the next day she would perhaps be able to make ar-

She would perhaps be able to make arrangements that would be more comfortable to mademoiselle; but her other rooms were let, with the exception of this kitchen and the salon through which mademoiselle had passed.

Elsie could not understood much more than half of what the old dame said. She was, however, so utterly tired that she felt thankful even for the hard, miserable sofa, on which she could scarcely turn. The old woman left her at length, with directions to lower the gas when she was undressed, and to bolt both the doors if she felt disposed, and Elsie bolted them safely as soon as the old creature was gone.

them safely as soon as the old creature was gone.

The first thought that struck her when she was alone was that her father must be very poor, much poorer than she had imagined, to provide so badly for her on her arrival. The question of pounds, shillings and pence had never, up to this time, troubled Elsie particularly; she knew she was not rich, and that she was qualifying herself for a governess, "or something of that sort," as she vaguely expressed it to herself; but she had always possessed all the necessaries, and even some of the comforts and refinements of life; now she was hungry; her couch had no sheets; she was perished with cold, and there was no fire. How was she to wash and dress in the morning? she asked herself this plain question in a sort of apathy, for she was too tired to be over-anxious about a difficulty still some hours removed from her.

In her traveling bag were necessaries for the night; she undressed, lay down, and her youth stood her friend—her youth and her fatigue; kind sleep came and sealed up her white lids almost as soon as her head touched the pillow. It was then about half-past one. At half-past six, just when Elsie was in the deepest depths of what Tennyson calls the "gulfs of sleep," a loud shaking and rattling of the door, a high screeching voice arounsed her from confused yet pleasant dreams of Charteris Court and the countess, of Lord Hammond, Miss Bracegirdle, and Basil Byrne. She had not dreamt of Owen Hammond. We seldom dream of those we wish to dream about.

Elsie was obliged to get up then, after her long and fatiguing journey. There was no help for it, none whatever; besides, it was something to find a room with water and soap and towels ready for her use. Elsie threw her coak over her found the room and locked herself in. It was not deficient in a certain kind of comfort. There was a nice bed, a good carpet.

It is in the more old-fashioned rooms in houses on the continent that one understands how small an amount of furniture or decoration is thought needful. There are hotels where they charge you at the rate of an English half-crown for a tough steak; where the brick floors of the salons are carpetless, the table is of plain deal, the chairs of white, unvarnished wood; where there are neither couches nor cushions nor curtains. Such a rooms was this. Madame Jotte, however, brought Elsie some hot boiled coffee and milk, with some rolls, butter and an egg. As soon as she had breakfasted, Elsie took the liberty of following Madame Jotte to her tiny kitchen, and putting

A SIX-DAY WALKING MATCH. Philadelphia, Oct. 8.-A six days' goas-you-please walking match was started in Industrial Hall after midnight yesterday in which some of the best-known professional pedestrians in the country are walking for fame and money. The successful men will receive 50 per cent of the gate receipts, to be divided as follows: First man, 35 per cent; second man, 20 per cent; third, 15 per cent; fourth, 10 per cent; fifth, 8 per cent; sixth, 6 per cent. EQUALED WORLD'S RECORD. New York, Oct. 8.-Arthur Kent, of the Pastime Athletic Club, has equaled the world's record of 4% seconds for a sprint of 40 yards, on the grounds of the Pastime Club, in this city. He was paced by a club mate, to whom he gave a liberal handicap.

CRICKET. THE INTERNATIONAL MATCH. Philadelphia, Oct. 8.-The final cricket match between the English eleven, captained by B. J. T. Bosan-quet, and the All-Philadelphia team, was continued on the grounds of the Germantown Cricket Club, at Man-heim, yesterday. When stumps were drawn on Saturday the Philadelphi-ans led the visitors by 189 runs, and it seemed as though the English were facing almost certain defeat. The weather was decidedly cold, but the wicket was in excellent condition. The Philadelphians were all out their second inning for the total of 186 runs, a total for two innings of 490. The Englishmen then needed 333 runs to avert defeat. The Englishmen were all out in their second inning for 103 runs. The Philadelphians thus won the match by 229 runs.

TO TRY AGAIN

Sir Thomas Lipton Would Like to Have Another Yacht Race.

New York, Oct.7.-Sir Thomas Lipton s far from satisfied that the recent yacht races have conclusively demonstrated the Columbia to be the better boat. And it is now more than evident that he would be glad to arrange for another race. In conversation with a press reporter on board the Erin today Sir Thomas said: "Knowing we are whipped, I still believe the Shamrock the better boat. Remember, I am not disparaging the other boat or the New York Yacht Club in the least. But the fact is that the other boat in the last two races got the best of the wind, while we did not. The other boat simply profited by getting puffs of wind that we did not be the two did not be two did not did not did not be two did not di hat we did not happen to have. I may add that there were certain little fea-tures about the condition of the Shamock which might probably have been mproved on the last day of the race. but there is no fault whatever to be found with her handling." "Then you would like to have another race?"
"Yes. I think it would be well to arrange another race." "This fall?" "Oh, no, nothing would be done now before another year." "How about the proposition to race with exchanged crews?" "That never was my proposition." Shall you take the Shamrock home, or would you leave her here in the event of another prospective race?" "That, of course, is all undetermined yet. My plans for the immediate future are entirely unsettled, except that shall remain in Chicago probably a week. How long I shall remain in this country is undetermined."

Windsor, Oct. 8 .- The report of Asessor Black fixes the total of the asessment of Windsor property at $5,-487,250, an increase over last year of $190,000. The amount of exempted property is $875,000. The increase in the street railway property is from $26,000 to $88,000, due to the change in the law requiring the rails and wires to be assessed at something near their real value. Mr. Black gives the pepulation of Windsor as 12,642, which is an increase over last year of 513. The Dominion census gave the population of Windsor last summer as 12,154.

The Penobscot tribe of Indians, which numbered 245 in 1880, is now about 400 strong. Maine appropriates annually $8,000 for their benefit.

Paine's Celery Compound has added years of peace, free from the infirmi-ties of old age to thousands of lives. It stimulates the vital powers; it keeps the body free from pains; it gives perfect action to the kidneys; it keeps up nerve force; it builds strength and makes life happy and enjoyable. Multitudes of people, reduced in strength, sleepless, nervous, and apparently near he end of life, have joyfully testified to rapid gain in vigor with regular and refreshing sleep.
Mr. George Crawford, London, Ont.,

writes as follows: "After using eight bottles of Paine's Celery Compound, I wish to let you know the results. I had a painful fullness and an unnatural heat in the top of my head, and it felt as if something was rolling through it. I had dizziness, I slept little and irregularly, was troubled with restlessness and uneasy dreams, and my appetite was bad. I am now vastly changed by the use of your medicine; I sleep well and relish my food, and my nervous system is greatly renewed. I feel my whole system better. I cannot expect at 79 years of age to be as I was at 30, but Paine's Celery Compound has done wonders for

THEY WERE TOO ENTERPRISING

Newspaper Men Arrested at Philadelphia for Kidnapping and Robbery.

Alleged Agents of the Law and Order Society Held for Conspiracy, Highway Robbery, Assault and Battery and Kidnapping.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.-Charged with kidnapping a woman and holding her a prisoner for four days, robbing her of jewels worth more than $2,000 and compelling her to sign blank checks for large sums of money, is the story which the police unfolded when they announced the arrest of two newspaper men, a stenographer in another newspaper office, and a barber, all of whom are charged with complicity in the

The men now locked up at the central police station are Howard K. Sloan, Henry Wallace, society editor of one of the morning newspapers; J. Knight Findlay, of Wayne, near here, stenographer of another morning paper, and a barber employed in one of the most prominent shops of the city THE VICTIM.

The victim is Mabel Goodrich, proprietress of an establishment in North Tenth street. Last Monday Mrs. Goodrich went to police headquarters and told a story of kidnapping and robbery so daring that the police at first doubt-ed its truth. She said that a young man who represented himself as a resident of Germantown, had been a frequent visitor at her establishment. Last week she said, he proposed a drive through Fairmount Park, and she consented to Fairmount Park, and she consented to go. At a lonely place in the park the carriage was stopped by a man whom she said represented himself as D. C. Gibbony, the secretary and attorney of the Law and Order Society of this control of the Law and order society of the secretary and attorney of the Law and order society. city. This man, she went on to say, told her that he had a warrant for her arrest on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, but that the matter could be fixed up. He was invited into the carriage, and the next moment she

Mrs. Goodrich was kept a prisoner from Tuesday night until Friday night without anything to eat or drink, and was taken on another long drive, blindfolded, to a house, where she was kept from Friday till Monday. In the latter place, the men, who were masked, stripped her of her jewelry, and at the point of a revolver comand at the point of a revolver compelled her to sign bank checks for various amounts of money, sums of which she had deposited in the Third National Bank. She did not sign for more than she possessed, but they compelled her to promise that she would make up the deficiency when they released her. She said a man they released her. She said a man took her on another drive and put her out of the carriage at Tenth and Poplar streets, about a mile from her house. With other information the woman gave them the detectives hegan to work on what they thought was fairy tale

WORKABLE CLUES. They got several clues which led them to a fire house in North Wayne, fifteen miles from this city. The fire company s a volunteer organization, and the key to the place was kept in the nearest dwelling. The nearest house was occupied by a family named Findlay, and there the police learned that one of the sons, J. Knight Findlay, had been home but little during the past two weeks. Setting a description of him the police returned to the city, and found the young man, who is only 21 years of age, n the office where he is employed. CONFESSED

He was charged with the crime, and roke down, and implicated three others. Findlay said he had impersonated he coachman, that Sloan, the unemployed reporter, acted the part of Atorney Gibbony; that the barber played the part of the rich Germantown resident, and that Wallace, the society editor, had rented a house in Germantown, where Mrs. Goodrich was to have been held a captive. He told the same story as narrated by the woman. IN COURT.

Howard K. Sloan, Henry E. Wallace, . Knight Findlay and Oscar S. Dunlap were brought before a magistrate and committed without bail for a further hearing next Monday. The wo-man was the first witness against the prisoners, and identified each of them. She then told the remarkable story of her abduction, confinement and robbery, as detailed in these dispatches. THE PLUNDER.

Mrs. Goodrich concluded her testimony by stating that she had been robbed of her jewelry, valued at $2,590, and cash amounting to $70, and forced to sign checks for $500. After a check for $155 had been cashed she had been released she said. released, she said.

been to assist Sloan in placing Mrs. Goodrich in the hands of the Law and Order Society. He had not been told of the intentions to rob the woman. Wallace was the only prisoner to testify. He said Sloan had suggested to him the plan by which Mrs. Goodrich was to be about the interests of the Law and ducted in the interests of the Law and Order Society, which organization would reward them for their services. Later, Wallace said Sloan made the proposition to rob the woman. Wallace refused to become a party to the robbery, he declared, and said, fur-ther, that he did not see Sloan from that time until the day of his arrest.

A GREAT "SCOOP." In answer to questions, Wallace said the suggestion to capture Mrs. Goodrich for the Law and Order Society was made by a newspaper man who had not been arrested. Counsel for Mrs. Goodrich asked that the prisoners be held on charges of conspiracy, highway robbery, assault and battery, and kidnapping. This was done, excepting in the case of Wallace, who was held for conspiracy and kidnap-ping, the penalty for which, as countsel announced, is life imprisonment.

Muscular Strength.

There is this to be borne in mind in these days, when so many young men are giving so much attention to muscular development, in gymnastic and athletic exercises, that there cannot be permanent muscular strength where there is not blood strength.

Hood's Sarsaparilla gives blood strength, promotes digestion and assimilation, and builds up the whole system.
