Berlin, via London. Sept. 29.—Germany will persevere until victory is hers, the Reichstag was told yesterday by Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, according to the full text of his speech, which was published here today. The chancellor declared that this year's harvest had made Germany's position much more secure than was the case last year. In his attack upon Great Britain, he declared that that country was above all Germany's "most egotistical, fiercest and most obstinate enemy.

"A German statesman," he said, "who would hesitate to use against this enemy every available instrument of battle that would really shorten this war-such a statesman should be hanged.'

ALL FRIGHTFULNESS BEING USED

The chancellor declared his contempt for those circulating reports that all Germany's means of fighting were not being employed to the fullest possible extent. He added that in order to disappoint the enemy, "who is on the watch for every breach of our inner determination," he would not give details.

'When in August, 1914," he went on "we had to draw the sword we knew we had to protect our hearths and homes against a mighty and almost overwhelming coalition. Ardent, and until then unknown and often ignored, patriotism flamed up in all hearts defying death and certain victory. Today, after two years of MAJOR W. N. ASHPLANT, late city fighting, struggling, suffering and dying, we know more than ngineer of London and brother of Ald. ever before that there is only one watchword, namely, 'Persevere and win.' We will win. Last winter there was pusillanimous anxiety as to whether our foodstuffs would suffice. They have sufficed. This year's harvest makes us much more secure than was I the case last year.

WHINES ABOUT SUPERIOR NUMBERS.

The chancellor said that he realized the troubles of the people TAKEN TO ALLIES The chancellor said that he realized the troubles of the people co-incident with the war, and that he shared the deep sorrow for the fallen and mutilated. "I bow my head," he went on, "before the heroism with which women and men, without distinction Budapest, the speech of Count Michael After the transaction of routine business, the speech of Count Michael After the transaction of routine business, the speech of Count Michael After the transaction of routine business, the speech of Count Michael After the transaction of routine business, the speech of Count Michael After the transaction of routine business, the speech of Count Michael After the transaction of routine business, the speech of Count Michael After the transaction of routine business, the speech of Count Michael After the transaction of routine business, the speech of Count Michael After the transaction of routine business, the speech of the Opposition, in the least of the Opposition, in the last of the Opposition of the Op the Fatherland. Still more sublime and still greater is the defiance of death with which our sons and brothers in the field withstand the violent assaults of the enemy, who, superior in numbers, are fighting with the utmost bravery. World history, human history, has never before seen the like.

The chancellor declared that the German people again had an opportunity to show their appreciation of the heroism of the army by subscribing to the new war loan. He asserted that the nation firmly believed in the assurance of victory and was ready for any sacrifice.

FEELS NEED OF "SILVER BULLETS.

"I know we can also rely on the fighters behind the front, Hydra in the small hours of the morning he said, "to give all their available money to support the gigantic work of our fighters in the field. With elenched fists but open hearts we will stand behind them, one man and one people.

Concluding his speech, the chancellor exclaimed: "Germany will not be permitted to think of peace while her house is burning. She must first extinguish the fire.'

After the chancellor had concluded the Reichstag adjourned until October 5.
