Presents Fifth Avenue Colors For Spring, 1924

Fashion-right colors in merchandise for the coming season given in the order of their present popularity.

FIRST GROUP, STAPLE COLORS SECOND GROUP, HIGH COLORS -The four best staple colors for spring are given in the first group on the color card. They will form the neutral background for newer shades in the high colors.

BLACK WITH TOUCHES OF WHITE continues its run as a fashion favorite. Lustrous black silks, that add to fashion's slenderness, especially the satins and shimmering alpacas. With perhaps a few pearls here, a gardenia there, or a bit of contrasting white satin or lingerie trimming-to relieve the background of black.

NAVY, OF COURSE, is always important and this year especially so because all the blues are receiving a great deal of attention from Paris dressmakers. Navy is used for the little frock of twill. Navy three-quarter length coat or costume suit of twill. Then there are a few of the new tailleurs in this practical navy blue.

ALL THE TANS (of which the golden tan is one of the smartest) are particularly good in soft woolens for topcoats. They are good also in satin or novelty crepes, for both sports wear and formal dresses. And they are best of all for new tailored suits when these suits are of covert cloth or men's suitings.

LIGHT GRAYS continue their inconspicuous popularity for top-coats and flannel dresses and for the formal three-piece suit or gown of crepe.

THE DARK OXFORD GRAYS in covert cloth or men's suiting are very strong for the mannish tail-. . . .

N.B.—The new colors may be seen at Silk Counters.

-The high colors form the foreground of fashion's pictures for spring. These high colors stand out. Fashion emphasis is placed upon them. Although the staple colors predominate in numbers, all the high colors are receiving so much attention already that it is certain they are very important. Especially for sports clothes and for informal wear. The Breath of the Avenue has covered the Palm Beach and early spring showings, with the purpose of finding out which colors are emphasized and their relative order of importance.

A count of the high-colored garments shown is taken by one group of reporters. And the relative numbers of the different colors are noted. This count is checked by another group of reporters.

The percentages vary slightly at

OUT OF ALL THE HIGH-COLORED GARMENTS SEEN. 30% are green, 25% are blue, 12% are Oriental reds, 3% are pink and flesh tones, 2% are miscellaneous orange, etc. And 28% are yellow. (Yellow is considered last because it is distinctly a color for resort

ALMOND GREEN has been the leading high color for over a month. This green is, as you know, a hold-over from last spring.

AND NOW THE SOFT BLUES (of the various porcelain shadessome of them have a greenish caste) are creeping up on the greens. The blues are newest of all and are receiving rapid recognition. They are already ahead of green at some shops. The medium blues, which, except as trimming details, have been out of the running for so long, ought to be ready for a come-back.

the light neutral shades which are, of course, the background of sum mer colors.) THE PINKS, CORALS AND

FLAME TONES are far behind, but they are newer for day-time wear and they will probably increase in done. For evening the pink shades are important both for southern

FINALLY THESE HIGH COLORS are important in printed crepes, in conventionalized floral designs. These floral-printed crepes are quite often of Chinese inspiration with designs copied from the embroidered flowers on old Mandarin coats. Prints in all the high colors and staple shades shown will play their part in the spring color scheme.
