STARK'S POINT, March, 1895.

I have much pleasure in testifying to the value of the Fertilizers sold by you. I used last year five tons, of Bradley's Potato Manure on twenty acres of potatoes, with a good deal of satisfaction, averaging nearly 200 bushels per acre from the whole field. Its dryness and mechanical condition seem to me to be perfect. I used it in the Planter without clogging, while other fertilizers that I used were too damp to be used at all in the machine. I got good value for my investment, and shall use it in increased quantities.

She looked at her sister interrogatively.

"Of course, if you want to," said Mrs. Miller, "but it is so warm to bake and there's cold bread and lots of cookies." "I don't mind the heat," the girl said, laughingly, as she closed the door and went

From her window Lucinda saw him and leaning out she called to Bessie, who was playing in the yard, to "tell Mr. Stebbins she was not quite ready but would be in a few minutes." Bessie ran joyfully out, for she liked Joe, as she always called him, and after delivering her aunt's message begged him to take her 'just a little ride."

"All right," said Joe, good-naturedly. Give me your hands," and catching her up he seated her by his side and drove off. Bessie was delighted. She chatted gaily about any and everything, while Joe, his thoughts intent on what he wished to say to ucinda, was silent. The child was disturbed. She did not like this silence. "Joe," she said, "what makes you so still? Don't you like me?" Then before he could answer she exclaimed, "Oh! Joe, do you know what a dog in a manger is?"

Joe laughed. "You midget," he said, 'What put that in your head?' "Why, mamma said she spised 'em; they was allays round keepin' folks away," said Bessie. Joe was quick witted.
