EUROPEAN LANGUAGES.—Thirteen different languages are spoken in Europe, of which the English, French and German are the chief. The Italian and Swedish rank next, while the Spanish and Polish even are really rich in literature. They may all be classed in three great families—Latin, Teutonic, and Slavonic—each spoken by about seventy-five millions of people. The religious of Europe correspond strikingly to this division of languages. Those who speak the languages comprised under the Latin, as the Italian, French, Portuguese, and Spaniards, mostly Catholics. Those who speak the Teutonic are chiefly Protestants; while those who use the Slavonic belong to Greek church.

Father Matthew's Seal represents a fountain bursting from a rock, with this motto: "Drink from the bubbling fountain—drink it free; 'Twas good for Samson, and 'Tis good for thee."

Nothing is more noble than fidelity; faithfulness and truth are the best endowments of the mind.
