WHOLE OF EGYPT IN VIRTUAL REVOLT

Churchill Says Situation is So Dangerous That Government Has Had to Appeal to Men to Return and Save Comrades from Being Murdered.

London, March 25.—Defending the military service bill in the house of commons today, Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary for war, declared that the whole of Egypt was in a virtual state of insurrection. The position was so dangerous, he added, that the government had to appeal to men on the point of demobilization to return and save their comrades from being murdered.

The declaration by the war secretary was brought about by the remarks of Sir Donald MacLean, who had said that Great Britain was grossly over-insured with respect to the strength of the army. Mr. Churchill asked if he followed what was taking place in almost every country at the present time and, if so, how could he say that there was over-insurance in keeping 900,000 men for every purpose, including ten divisions on the Rhine and four divisions in the home country, less than the number kept here in the peaceful days before the war?

A bulletin issued by his physicians at Mentone, France, says he went there two months ago suffering from a protracted bronchial and laryngeal catarrh resulting from an attack of influenza last year. He has made rapid progress as the result of the more favorable climatic conditions and rest. The statement says that it is essential that he do not return to England at present.

White Promises Policy.

Sir Thomas White, speaking for the government, declared the resolution to be a want of confidence vote. He promised that the tariff policy of the government would be announced in the near future, and he believed that it would be satisfactory to its constituents in the house. Hon. T. A. Crerar and Hon. Frank B. Carvell made no secret of their low tariff views, but pointed out that the resolution was out of place if not out of order, and that its adoption would mean a general election. Mr. Carvell intimated that in any event he would stay with the government until demobilization had been completed.

Curiously enough most of the government support in the debate came from low tariff men and former Liberals, like Dr. Michael Clark of Red Deer, Hon. W. S. Fielding and Mr. Lewis Thompson of Qu'Appelle. Dr. Clark denounced the resolution as insincere, and intended merely to embarrass the government.

Debate on the Tariff.

A debate on the tariff opened this afternoon when an amendment by Mr. McMaster of Bromo, a motion for going into committee of supply. There were five main points raised in Mr. McMaster's amendment which was lengthy, the points were:

1. Repeal of the extra war duty of five per cent on goods from Great Britain and of seven and a half per cent on goods coming from other countries.
2. Acceptance of the reciprocity agreement with the United States, with the elimination of duties on foodstuffs.
3. Elimination of duties on machinery needed for the farm, mining, fishery and lumber.
4. General downward revision of the tariff made after careful investigation and with the object of relieving the consumer, and of bringing more revenue into the coffers of the state.
5. In moving his amendment, Mr. McMaster held that with the exception of necessary legislation in regard to factories and so forth, there should be as little interference by the state as possible. More revenue should be created by allowing people to carry on their business in their own way.
