But it is of far more consecuted that Canada should develop on the gathering in the city of a labor. It belongs to all. The gathering in the city of a code. Argument will be heard to-day ing. But it is of far more consequence that Canada should develop on right lines, even if the rate of progress be slower, than that the welfare and future of the country be imperiled to oblige some of its mentors who have visions of vast profits earned for them by the Asiatic immigrant. Canadians will prefer reinforcements of their own stock and blood and the best energies of the Dominion and provincial governments should be gliven to that end.

Is not produced by labor. It belongs to all. The gathering in the city of a convention, or a fair, or a circus, gives value to that franchise. There are governments within governments. And one of these franchise corporations is only another government for the people to support. They possess the sovereign power to tax the people for private benefit. That sovereign power or its to distinct classes—the privileged and the unprivileged. But we have no right to have classes here. All should be equal before the law. KIPLING ON ASIATIC IMMIGRA- and eloquent spokesmen regards the Conservative party of to-day as Killed on the Railway. In his address to the Canadian Club of Victoria, B.C., Rudyard Kipling took occasion to touch upon the problem of Asiatic immigration. His judgment upon a question of this kind is of exceptional value along his construction of the conservative party of to-day as "the conservative party of to-day as "the sick man" of English politics and sees no chance of its ever returning to power on its present lines. "Upon the official program, he said the other day, "we have hitherto offered, there is no chance population of the Railway.

Killed on the Railway.

Beverley Findlay in September, 1906, was acting as a brakesman on a line of the Canadian Northern Railway running west from Port Arthur. Findlay was on a flat car that was being pushed ahead of the train, when, it is alleged, thru negligence. a handcar genius remarkable for his receptive- we know it, let us face it in its full damages for the death of his son, but notwithstanding his poetic but mis-leading personification of Canada as the other social reforms which he con-"Our Lady of the Snows"—is warm-siders the workingmen are ready to No Commission. ly interested in the Dominion and its accept from either of the regular polifuture and concerned that it should tical parties. The advice of a disinterested friend whose qualifications and attainments lend weight to his counsel, at all times deserves serious attention. Certainly it, is worth much more consideration than is that of another class of countain the country of the people. That franchise grows in value, and that growth depends not on what the owners do, but on what the whether or not, upon the findings of

BRITISH POLITICS.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman has now fairly launched his campaign against the house of lords, and by it he must stand or fall, since anything short of carrying it to a successful issue could not but vitally damage the local part of the possess sovereign power and others do not. Now, this inequality is sure to destroy liberty. Other nations have been destroyed by this very thing. The same causes always produce the same effects. When James H. Jackson, an agent of the Bell Piano and Organ Co., went to obtain possession of a piano from the residence of Mary D. Rice on St. Clarence-avenue he was refused permission to touch it. He further alleges that the door of the house was locked from the outside to prevent his going out and that a member of the family threatened to call police officers to eject him. The Season's Stately Blacks

The One Style That Dame Fashion Has At No Time Frowned Upon.

The wondrous progress in its weaving and dyeing is exemplified in OUR GREAT SHOW-ING OF BEAUTIFUL BLACK DRESS MATERIALS FOR 1907's AUTUMN-WINTER SEASON.

Perhaps in no other dress material should we advise the "dyeing" be given so much consideration, for after going to the expense of buying and having it made up, many blacks become "rusty" in a month or so of wear.

Only a few countries-France, England and Austria, perhaps—have mastered the art of dyeing fabrics black to be "proof against time," and our stock, is from these "Wizards of the Looms" -the very best manufacturers of black dress goods in the world.

We invite you to look at these fabrics--give them any test you think of, or can learn of. We credit them with being the best of their class in quality and to be dyed as only the world's experts can dye them--Lustrous, Fadeless, Perfect

For Street, Reception, Visiting --- For Tailored or Semi-Tailored Costumes --- we suggest the following, all pure wool goods:
