by Manager Fleming was the decided opinion given by Controller Hocken last night.

"I think as Cortroller Spence did last year that it would be useless to accept any such proposition," he said.

"The company having the service in their hands could discredit any effort by the city. An essential part of the recent arrangement was that the company should provide extra Carlton cars pany should provide extra Carlton cars the soil so well for the growth of to ake care of the passengers from the Yonge cars, but no cars were added. I don't think it would be any use for the city to operate one or two routes as every route hinges upon the lost"

The controller believed the service could be improved 25 per cent. by running the College-street cars down Mc-caut-street, and along the practically dead south Queen-street tracks to the Victoria-street loop and taking the Witchester cars down Yonge-street and this is one way to do it.
