

SCHOOL PICNIC A BIG SUCCESS

rosy-cheeked children. So impressed was he with this fact that he referred to it in nearly all his public addresses. He would have found texts for many sermons on this theme had he been at the picnic yesterday, for a brighter, healthier, happier bunch of kiddies could not be found.

Did they have a good time? There was not a dull minute from the time they rose from their cots yesterday morning until they were tucked away at night.

The Fun Begins. Early in the morning they started for Springbank.

They sang and cheered and jibed their elders on their way down to their heart's content.

Every street car load seemed bigger and noisier than the rest. At noon, the park was swarming with the children, and there were soon eagerly engaged in their contests.

The liberal prize list gave the different schools plenty of opportunity for competition of all kinds, and the prizes were widely distributed.

At 1 o'clock the "grown-ups" took it into their heads to go to, and from that time until well on in the afternoon, there were immense crowds of grown-up youngsters on their way to have a real holiday with the "kiddies."

For real, downright enjoyment, the average man prefers the school picnic to any other, and the crowd of elders was larger than ever.

Shortly after 1:30 the programme, when the lunches had been disposed of, was in full swing.

The Programme. The schools were divided and each school given a section. The large Springbank grounds were scarcely large enough to hold the immense throng.

Many of the larger boys tired of the contests, and went down to the river, and fished or had a swim or some pebbles in the water.

Some got trophies for their chase, one boy leading home a half-dozen large carp to prove to his fond parents that he was an angler worthy to be a disciple of Frank Walton.

The whole scene was a panorama of beauty, and was one long to be remembered.

The school games were as interesting as usual. The competition in every class was keen. There were many miniature Longhorns unearthed, and the speed shown was great.

Races were on the programme for every sort of person, even to a race for the staid lady school teachers, and they raced well.

The Feature. The great feature of the afternoon's sport was the baseball match between the "Mas" and "Pas". The "Mas" were the principals of the public schools, and the "Pas" were from the board of education and the Collegiate.

Such a game it was. But about the costumes!

The "Mas" were dressed in a becoming "Mother Hubbard" dress, trimmed with real Honiton lace a la Princess. That is as near as the writer can get to it, but it must be admitted that the "Mas" were things of beauty and a nightmare for ever. They made Joseph's well-known raiment look as quiet as a Quaker's dress.

The "Pas" were becomingly gowned in overalls, with straw hats perched rakishly over the north eye. The color scheme was blue, while the playing was lurid.

When the demon athletes appeared clothed in the lurid garments, the band led them to the scene of mortal combat. They paraded the ground and gave the girls a treat, when Umpire "Tommy" Gillean, the worst umpire in captivity, assigned them their places.

The word assigned is used advisedly here, as the players, with few exceptions, knew where they were going.

Ex-Ald. Gillean. Umpire Gillean's garment was a far-fetched creation. It looked like a cross between a summer suit and a dressing case, but it went all right. The demon athletes lined up as follows:

"Mas"—Ma Copeland, c.; Ma Bryant, p.; Ma Edwards, lb.; Ma Brown, 2b.; Ma Campbell, s.; Ma Wyatt, 3b.; Ma Snelgrove, l. f.; Ma Althouse, c. f.; Ma Walker, r. f.

"Pas"—Pa Downing, 2b.; Pa Stuart, 1b.; Pa Muggan, p.; Pa Graham, 3b.; Pa Overholt, r. f. and p.; Pa Taylor, c. f.; Pa Riddle, c.; Pa Hamilton, 2b.; and Pa McVicar, r. f.

A Pitching Duel. My, such a game. It developed into a pitching duel between "Rube Waddell" Bryant, the demon south-paw, and "Christie Matthews" Muggan, the celebrated smoke ball artist. Ma Bryant lasted longer than the other demon pitcher. Pa Muggan was driven to the stables in the fourth innings on account of some tall hitting by the enemy, and a tired feeling. He was succeeded by Pa Overholt, who lasted one round. Pa Downing was then put in, but the Mas whaled his salivated slants to the meadows beyond.

The most marvelous work of the afternoon was done by Ma Snelgrove, who made a three-base slam and stole home while Pa Graham was blaming the rest of the contingent for playing ball so badly.

A Brilliant Play. The most brilliant play of the day was when Ma Brown, by an almost superhuman effort, dived deep into the hay, grabbed the sliding liner, touched second, and by a great throw, beat the fast, but perspiring, Pa Graham at the bag. This was a play.

Ma Edwards, at first, was very graceful, but had on a beautiful pair of overalls, but all he caught was his breath.

Pa Graham was strong on adjectives, but his fielding average was .923. Pa Taylor struck out more often than any person else, and did some great springing to the lunch counter.

Pa Muggan was a great pitcher, but he went to the well once too often. Ma Copeland received for the winners. He was strong on receiving the curves of the demon southpaw, but long on receiving the compliments of the ladies.

Pa Downing looked like a real ball player, and it was rumored that he would be heavily fined for even looking like a player.

Umpire Gillean's work was as faultless as the playing. His voice showed signs of wear after the first minute or two, but he managed to keep on shouting until the going down of the sun.

The Score. The score was as follows: R. H. E. Mas.....023555-18 23 13 Pas.....024502-11 7 9

Batteries—Bryant and Copeland; Muggan, Overholt, Downing and Riddle.

The Baby Show. The next greatest feature was the baby show. The one mistake made was in this show. It should have been earlier in the afternoon.

There was a large number of babies on the grounds early in the afternoon, but they became restless, and the larger part of them were taken home before the show took place.

When they did line up there were only six babies shown. They were a good lot, were these kiddies, and Judges E. J. MacRobert and Rev. D. S. Hamilton had a hard time coming to a decision.

They gave a judgment worthy of Solomon, however. Two youngsters were tied for first place, James W. Wootton, West London, and Mary Louise Wyatt, daughter of Principal Wyatt, of the Wortley road school.

The other four babies—Alfred Oatridge, of the Pine Line road; Wilfred Downing, Wilson avenue; Jack Black, 491 Horton street, and Ralph Williams, Kensington street, were adjudged even for second place.

Every child received a prize from the chairman of the board of education, Hon. C. S. Hyman, an interested spectator of the games in the afternoon.
