WHAT SHOULD CANADA DO IN THE WAY OF A NAVY?

Members of the Canadian Club Discuss This Question of Interest.

Ald. Martineau of Montreal disappointed the Canadian Club yesterday and a scratch discussion was substituted on the question, "What should Canada do with regard to the British navy?"

J. E. Atkinson opened the discussion. He had found that blue books ranked with time-tables as puzzles and figures were hard to obtain.

Canada had entered into nationality, establishing a position as a quasi-independent nation in giving a preference to British, and he expected that Canada would appoint her own commissioners and negotiate her own treaties in future, subject only to British confirmation.

But Canada was indebted to Britain for many advantages, and the people of the United Kingdom paid $70,000,000 a year to maintain the British navy, behind which our commerce crossed the seas without let or hindrance.

John A. Cooper rose with diffidence to discuss a question which had already been settled by Col. Denison, J. Gaston Hopkins and others. A navy was a dangerous thing, much more so than single-tax or trades unionism.

W. D. Rundle agreed that a navy was a dangerous thing. It would be very dangerous for England if Russia had a navy and she had none.

Chairman Howell thought we could not retain our self-respect until we did contribute something to imperial defence.

It is expected that the Right Hon. John Morley, who is in New York, will address the club on Saturday.

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY.

Neckwear!

It wouldn't be as if we couldn't show you "something different" in fine furnishings—

Everybody says brown and green and navy ties because just now they're the "hits" in shade fashions—

But— No house in the city—yes, this side of New York—can show you the exclusive novelties in these self-same colors in the line of basket weave effects we're showing—

They're then the best thing in "4-in-hands" and "Ascots" and the same old "Pop" price—50c

Do you know we sell everything in evening dress except from the "Swallow tail suit" to the white "bow tie."

CROWNING ACT OF FOLLY.

New York American: The firing on the English fishing ships off Hull by the Russian Baltic fleet is an act of war against England, and unless Russia quickly disavows and apologizes, the English channel squadron will sweep the Russian fleet from the sea.

It is the crowning deed of folly that his cowed Russia since her ill-fated war with Japan. The theory that Russia must to bring about a general war sounds absurd, but it is no more absurd than would the story of this last act appear told the day before it occurred.

SIMPSON COMPANY, LIMITED

STORE CLOSÉS AT 5.30 P. M. Tuesday, Oct. 25

Absolutely Imperative!

The fact of selling Furniture for less than present factory cost is bringing us an avalanche of business from all over. We're as fond as anyone of making a reasonable profit, but the conditions have been against us for once, and you get the benefit. The precise statement is that we vacate the Mutual Street Rink the end of this week, and its entire contents must be sold quickly, for the reason that we've no room to store it. We're sorry to have to lose, but doubt and hesitation can't be factors in this business. When it becomes absolutely imperative to make a sacrifice we do it gracefully, and if you and your neighbors don't profit by it, you've only yourselves to blame.

The time to come for these things is this week. Everything is marked "Rush," and there isn't a moment to lose. Wednesday we emphasize Bedroom Furniture.
