WELL THAT'S A GOOD JOB!

and it will last, too

The way to estimate the cost of keeping your house properly painted is to divide the cost of paint and labor by the number of years the paint will last.

Brandram-Henderson's "English" Paint is the paint of longest service - the 100 per cent pure paint - because it contains 70 per cent Brandram's B. B. Genuine White Lead and 30 per cent White Zinc, ground in pure linseed oil, turpentine and drier for all paints that can be made on a white base.

Figure its cost, not merely by the space a gallon will cover but by what it will keep covered. To the painter the formula of B-H "English" gives a feeling of confidence from the start.

A beautiful booklet of color-schemes is ready for distribution. Call today.

A Contradiction

(Editor the Guardian).

Dear Sir,—My attention has been called to an item in Saturday's Daily Mail stating that Miss Edith Russell, who was taken to the hospital on the previous Thursday, went to St. John's unaccompanied. I beg to say that the statement is false. Miss Russell was accompanied on the train by her mother and a young man named James Fleming, and everything that could possibly be done for the young woman was done by me. You will oblige me by contradicting the statement in the Daily Mail. Yours truly,
JOHN MARSHALL,
Relieving Officer.

Disorders in Ireland

Omagh, Tyrone County, July 1.—The rival volunteer forces—Ulster and Nationalists—came into collision here to night. Fierce fighting followed. Several civilians and policemen were injured. The disorders were quieted by a constabulary charge in which batons were used.

THE SHARMAN

These are some of the things that occurred to us as we read the few lines announcing the drowning of the Sharman. We know the accidents will happen to all of us, but the question is, are we always (when danger surrounds us) as continually does it, as careful as we should be in preventing accidents?

Hatcher's crowning is another warning to seamen to protect themselves from accidents of this kind, and a call to the authorities to see that the lives of our sailors are protected in every possible way.

A Sailor Drowned

Fred Pardo, master of the schooner Linda Pardo, which arrived at Brigus from Sydney recently with a load of coal, reports that one of his crew, Robert Hatcher, aged 32, married, of Grand Bank, was drowned on the 18th inst. through being washed from the jibboom.

It is generally understood among sailors that it is due to carelessness on the part of the captain or wheelsman when a man is washed overboard from a jibboom. When it is necessary to send a man out on the jibboom the vessel should be "kept away," which allows her to "run easy." If this is not attended to and the vessel comes "to the wind" the danger is great because of the dipping of the jibboom.

We are not saying that there was any carelessness in this case, neither do we know if an investigation was held. We do know, however, that another precious life has been "snuffed" out, and a wife and possibly children are left to mourn and struggle along without their bread-winner. Will an investigation be held? Or will the drowning of this poor fellow be simply recorded in the press? The man was in a dangerous position, a place where numbers of sailors lose their lives every year. Was the vessel handled properly while Hatcher was on the jibboom? Was every attempt made to rescue him after he fell in the water? Were there lifebuoys on board and were they utilized as they should have been?
