Hovel features Fraser & DeBolt - Best of Canada's unknown?

Elaine Lefebvre

Fraser and DeBolt, Canadian composers and performing artists virtually unknown in their own country, will be appearing at the Hovel nightly from September 20 - 24.

Allan Fraser and "Daisy" DeBolt, met at the Mariposa Folk Festival in 1968 and eventually married. They toured American campus coffee houses in concert with Juillard trained violinist, Ian Guenther (formerly of Lighthouse) until the pair signed a recording contract with Columbia Records in New York.

Their first release in January 1971, entitled "Fraser and DeBolt, with Ian Guenther" was hailed by critics at home and abroad for its original, distinctive new style.

A series of concerts and club dates throughout North America followed their second album, "Fraser and DeBolt with Pleasure". It was released in the Spring of 1973 and again caused a sensation among critics for its sound combination, originality, and superb musicianship.

Following the Winnipeg Folk Festival in August they accepted an invitation from the Polish Government to represent Canada in the 14th International Song Festival in Sopot on the Baltic Sea, where they were received with deep interest, respect and then sustained applause. Following this success at this important international showcase, they returned to Winnipeg and performed at the Ting Tea Room, where response was so good as to encourage them to continue west for future performances.

Future plans for the pair are tours of Algeria, West Germany, Sweden and Russia. They plan to release their third album "Aha" about Christmas.

Tickets for their Edmonton performance are on sale at the Hovel at $2.00 for members and $2.50 for non-members.
