

Call It Sadism

by PETER OUTHIT

The fact is, initiations ARE becoming easier; as a matter of fact, freshman "orientation" has become so painless that its supposed victims buy new suits and look forward to it! Long gone are the "good old days" when Frosh were greeted with frozen stares and utter disdain. Today they are WELCOMED into our halls—a situation which, to most middle-aged alumni, is just another indication of a younger generation gone wrong.

There are, of course, a few throwbacks to the old regime. In California, Frosh must still climb a greased pole or drop fully dressed into a sea of mud; and even at King's College, whose laboured austerity stems directly from ancient England, there is a vicious entertaining initiation week. It is, unfortunately, confined to the darkened interior of that place; all we Outsiders are permitted to see is the never-to-be-forgotten sight of girls without makeup; it's frightening in its simplicity!

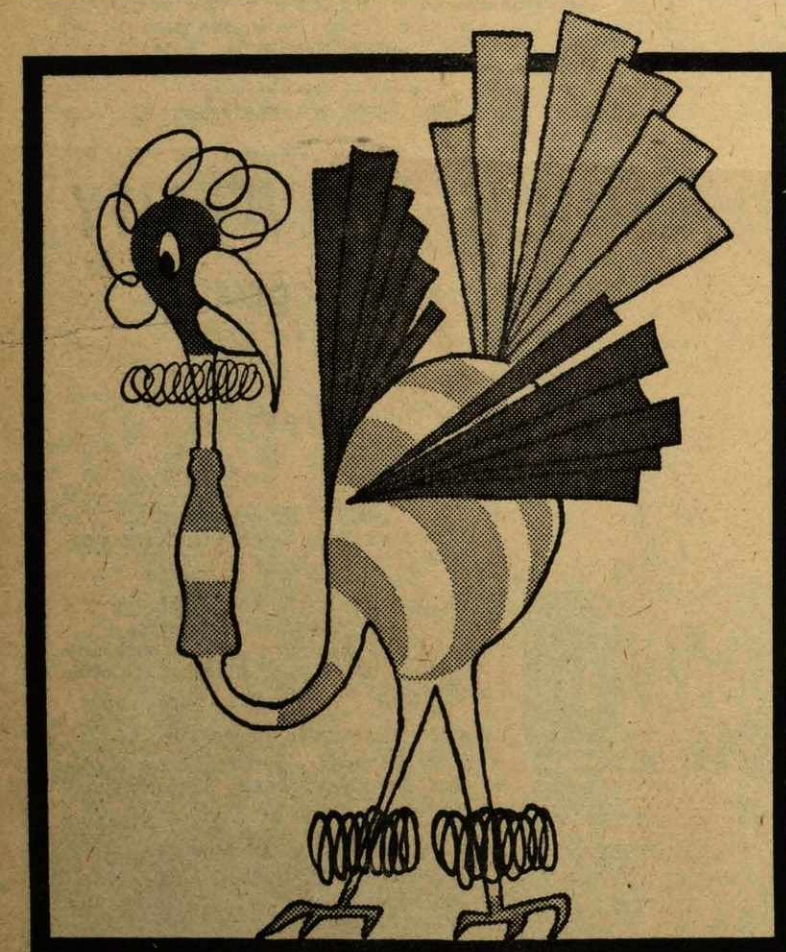

It must be admitted that those entering Dalhousie today with misgivings are soon pleasantly surprised. For our once-proud university, which joyfully led the whole East in the destructiveness of its hazing has undergone a great grey face-lifting.

On the surface, hazing appeared disorganized; but in actuality the flaming youth involved sat up many a night in their collective bathtubs, devising great new tortures. "A sack of flour, a pail of soot, and thou, dear freshman, beside me . . ." was the theme of many an early Autumn riot on the football field. And these brass knuckled clashes were, happily, not confined to the comfortable dark; scrimmages broke out while classes were changing or in progress. In short, individual initiative ruled the day.

Among the Freshmen, protective associations sprang up. Frosh travelled in tight little knots, sat facing the door, and wore their guns low. For a slight fee, large new unregistered freshmen appeared: truck drivers, amateur wrestlers or local bouncers replete in Dal beanies and placards, who led their lighter but more learned charges into action. Sophomores were thus fairly regularly routed, and were driven to the Junior ranks for fresh reserves. In those days Juniors were a sort of Sophomore elder society once removed, whose vocal engagement usually overshadowed any real physical aid. Seniors tended to side with the Freshmen, but whether this was due to mentality, or sentimentality, we do not care to suggest.

The fine old system of initiation just described is dead and darn near buried. Yet styles change . . . and I sometimes wonder if the twenties freshman, blackened and bruised, had not attained something which today's shining youths, balancing teacups or freshettes on their several laps, may never appreciate.

Anyhow, a warm, watery welcome to Dalhousie. Have fun!

Rara Avis

It's a rare bird indeed who doesn't care for the good taste of Coke! In fact, you might even call him an odd ball. After all, 58 million times a day somebody, somewhere, enjoys Coca-Cola. All these people just can't be wrong!
