

Coll - Parl - speech from the throne 1931.
Exhibit 4B

D17724

On September 17th, I again referred to the futility of hoping to extend trade within the Empire by tactics such as the raising of the tariff against Britain on the eve of the Conference, or of extending the market for Canadian wheat by any process of bargaining or "blasting". I think what was prophesied at the time has turned out to be true, pretty much to the letter. See Revised Hansard page 315. (Unrevised Hansard page 340)
