In the skies ? Little hands in the long and weary strife Of a toiling life, Will they win ! Will they early learn to bless ! Rescue from distress ? Will they fear to sin? For the true, the good, the right, Wil they bravely fight?

Strew along the path of night Golden sands? Little feet, Entered on a thorny way; Will it lead to day And renows ? As its rugged steeps are trod, Will they climb to God, And a seraph's crown ! Where the loving Saviour goes,

Pinding friends or foes. Will they follow till life's close. As is meet? May they wear an angel's guise, In the upper skies ! Little bands,

May they, doing God's commands. Rest in fairer lands ! May these little feet Thee, dear Saviour, run to meet At Thy mercy-seat : And with joy for sine forgiven, Press to heaven !
