Barns Burned in County, and Churches Were Damaged

It was some storm! The city esaped serious damage, but the county phones knocked out, and the elements lightning commenced before midnight when the slumbering populace were awak ned by the fierceness and proximity of the electric atmosphere. Night operators at the telephone office were driven to cover, firemen were awakened as the blue flames shot in over the wires and gave a daylight illumination good for several seconds This kept up for over at hour. In the northern section of the city the electric current seemed close enough to be dangerous. It removed half a dozen bricks from Brant Ave saved by a fraction. Meanwhile the rain poured down. The fiercer the lightning and the heavier the thunder the greater was the downpour.
