BRANTFORD HOMES SADDENED BY GREAT MARINE TRAGEDY

(From Yesterday's Last Edition)

Of the Brantfordites who were on board the ill-fated steamer bound for England, were Mrs. Bert Green, wife of Bert Green, an employee of the Brantford Carriage Company, who resides on Niagara street. Mrs. Mary Ann Hobbs, wife of the late William Hobbs, 8 Emily street, and Miss Louise Hobbs, her daughter. They were on their way to the Old Country to visit Mrs. Hobbs' sons and daughters in the old country. Miss Sarah Hobbs, a sister of the late Mr. Hobbs, resided at 13 Brighton Place. She has two brothers and two sisters. Alfred Hobbs, employed at the Watrous Engine Works, Ernest, employed at Good, Shapley & Muir's factory, Miss Clara Hobbs, of this city, and another sister in Edmonton, Alta. Mrs. Samuel Howell and Lillian, her ten year old daughter, were also on board. They were bound for England where Mrs. Howell hoped to recover from her continued ill-health. It was their intention to remain at the old country where Mr. Howell, who is an employee in the Cockshutt Plow Co., was going to join them sometime in the near future. One son, Edward, remained with his father with the intention of going to England with him. Mrs. R. J. Steele and her children, Nora and James, and her sister-in-law, Miss Lillian Steele, were on the ship. Mr. James Steele, her husband, has been employed for the past three years as motorman on the Grand Valley Railway. Mrs. Steele and family were bound for Austalia, via England, where they intended visiting friends for a few weeks, where Mr. Steele, who, until recently, was employed at Watson's Mills, was returning to her home in Manchester. She had been out here only since last May.

Mrs. D. White, a widow, who resided at 21 Chatham street with Miss Andrews, and who did considerable nursing for Drs. Bier and Ashton, was on her way home in compliance with her late husband's wish to visit her relatives there. She has a son, Mr. E. White, of 103 Aberdeen Avenue, and an employee of the Massey-Harris Company. She was connected with the Salvation Army, although not active.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Longley and infant baby were very well known here. Mr. Longley was connected with Coles Shoe Store, where he made many friends. Mrs. Longley was a daughter of Wm. E. Day, Insurance Agent of this city, and had been married about a year and a half. They resided on Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lawlor and son, Herbert, 16 years old, who resided at 120 Arthur street, were also in the wreck. They were bound for the Salvation Army conference in London, and also to visit Mrs. Lawlor's aged parents. Mr. Lawlor was employed in the Massey-Harris Co.'s moulding shop, having been employed there about seven years. Previous to that he was employed at the Buck Stove Works. He was an active member of the Salvation Army having played the big drum for some time. A son, Thomas, who resides at Flint, Mich., is on his way to England via the Olympic from New York, and had intended meeting his parents in London. Another son, James, resides in Flint also. Mr. Wm. Garthwaite of Minter Avenue is a brother of Mrs. Lawlor.

Mr. Charles Rutherford, the men's furnisher, had a brother, Fred, on board the boat. He is also a brother of Mr. Wm. Rutherford of this city. He is well known in this city, having been born here and resided here for a number of years. Leaving this city he went to Hamilton, where he worked for some time, finally going to Montreal where he took over the management of Ogilvie's druggists store.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET

Samuel Woodworth, the son of a modest Massachusetts farmer, was born in Scituate, that state, January 19, 1785. While the family were poor and had no luxuries, their lot was no worse than that of the ordinary New England family, and they lived in comparative comfort.

Young Samuel received the usual education of the country boy of his time, began writing verse at an early age—and was apprenticed at the age of fifteen to the printing trade.

While his life was a succession of ambitions, attempts and failures, his fame rests secure on his faithful portrayal of the old-fashioned well and weather-beaten well-swept, universally to be found in the farms of that day.

While living in New York City, on Duane street, he came home one July day, nearly overcome with the heat, and with nothing to drink but the tepid water of the city—ice being unknown in those days in the summer months—he exclaimed to his wife: "What would I not give this moment for a long draught from the old oaken bucket hanging in my father's well!" "Samuel!" replied his wife, wouldn't that be a good subject for a poem? Forthwith he sat down—the thronging recollections of his childhood crowded thick upon him—and that charming idyl of bucolic New England sprang into deathless life and fame. The music is said to have been adapted from an ancient Scottish melody by Frederick Smith. Woodworth died in 1859.

This song, like so many of the heart lyrics of an elder day, is found in the famous song collection called "Hearts Songs"—which the Courier is offering nearly free of cost to its readers.

The Changing West

The Western Canada of to-day is very different from the Western Canada of five years ago. Most people realize this in a sort of a way, but it is safe to say there are few living outside of the Western Provinces who fully understand how swift are the changes that are building a nation out of sparsely settled provinces. This matter is dealt with in an extremely interesting way by the May issue of the "Canada Life Echoes" which has just come to hand. This issue takes the form of a special Northwest number and it contains much information about the Western Provinces that is not generally known, and also a tabulation of the grain production, etc., of each province which should be not only of great interest at the moment, but also of much value for reference as occasion may arise.

usually interesting photographs of Western life and scenes are scattered throughout the publication and there is also an article on the migration of three million acres of land by the Canada Life Assurance Co., and, while they last, copies can be sent on request to Schindler, Thompson, Agents, Canada Life Assurance Company, Commercial Street, Brantford.

You needn't keep on feeling distressed after eating, nor belching, nor experiencing nausea between meals. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures dyspepsia—it strengthens the stomach and other digestive organs for the proper performance of their functions. Take Hood's.
