Music and Drama

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE" the delightful musical comedy of romance and youth, is announced as one of the forthcoming attractions at the Grand Opera House. This musical comedy has met with unqualified success in all parts of the country. The following is clipped from one of the Portland, Oregon papers:

If you hear some folks whistling an insinuating little tune, with a smooth drag followed by a skipping lilt you know he was one of the lucky ones who saw and heard "When Dreams Come True" yesterday afternoon or evening. Much

BAD COLD? TAKE "CASCARETS" FOR BOWELS TO-NIGHT

Get a 10 cent box. Colds—whether in the head or part of the body are quickly overcome by urging the liver to action and keeping the bowels free of poison. Take Cascarets to-night and you will wake up with a clear head and your cold will be gone. Cascarets work while you sleep; they cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels.

Remember the quickest way to get rid of colds is one or two Cascarets at night to cleanse the system. Get a 10-cent box at any drug store. Don't forget the children. They relish this Candy Cathartic and it is often all that is needed to drive a cold from their little systems.

is said nowadays about the "tired business man" and his need for light entertainment for evening recreation and care for brain lag. After hearing the dross of the past few seasons, which lived for a day and expired, it is a wonder that the "tired business man" didn't become exhausted. "When Dreams Come True" is a first class musical show with a high class company and needs not the customary press notices of "100 days in New York" etc. The performance as seen last night is sufficient in itself—in company, story, costumes and scenery.

Costs and Tenors, managers and owners, have assembled a clever cast and a hard working, excellent singing chorus. If it doesn't make good, and a few dollars, then the public doesn't want merit. The music is all good, but there is one melody, "When Dreams Come True," which pops up throughout the show and sets everyone in the audience humming or swaying in time. "When Dreams Come True" is a dancing show, everybody dances, chorus and principals. The program specifies that all the dances are copyrighted, and from the number of encores demanded, dance lovers in the audience might easily have mastered many of the steps. "When Dreams Come True" deserves a successful season. That is more than can be said of many a "tired business man" production.

The Grand "September Morn" comes to the Grand Opera House this week, matinee and night, with nearly half a hundred talented artists, including a chorus of remarkably pretty girls, composing one of the best singing and dancing ensembles ever offered in musical comedy. Fun runs rampant in "September Morn" from the rise of the curtain and entrance of that splendid funmaker, William Moore, who has the part of his life, and who is ably assisted by a cast of representative musical comedy purveyors. This is LeCompte and Fleisher's biggest production and they have fairly outdone themselves in casting and mounting this popular merry affair.

Ruth Wilkins, chief and charming, imbues "September Morn" with an airy freshness that is charming. Leslie Jones, James Baber, J. J. Patton and Billy Murphy are also members of this comedy along with the other favorites who were recently seen in the various parts in "September Morn" at the La Salle Opera House, Chicago.

Liners Building work in St. John shows a substantial gain. Mr. A. B. Cogg, M.P., of Sackville, visited Moncton last week. Frank S. Lister was re-elected president of the Fredericton Labor Council.

He was just a little butterfly, but like many a boy and many a girl he was clumsy. He would fly into thorny things and tear his wings. And the worst of it was—even when he did tear them badly he didn't seem to care. He just went on flying with his yellow rags fluttering in the wind.

I doubt if he ever would have had them fixed if he hadn't tumbled into a thistle and tore them so badly on the spikes that he could hardly get out and when he did get out he could hardly fly. That was when he began to feel a little frightened.

"Well!" said an old grandfather butterfly. "You are a sight and no mistake. I've never seen such a butterfly. And I've been in the world more butterfly years than most. The thing for you to do is to hunt up little old Granny Grundel in the fairy forest. She mends the leaves on the trees and maybe—mild, I don't say she will—but maybe she will mend you up a bit with her pine needles. Dear knows you need it."

So the yellow butterfly flew off to hunt old Granny Grundel, and believe it or not as you choose, he flew with a limp! He was just a bundle of rags, and when he lighted on the fence of Granny's cottage in the fairy forest, Granny could hardly believe her eyes.

However, she was grandmotherly and kind, and when the butterfly told her his errand she bustled off to her workbasket and came back with her pine needle and some fairy silk.

"Never in my life," said Granny Grundel, staring over her spectacles, "have I mended a butterfly, but I'm willing to try."

And she set to work. She worked and worked and worked. Why, the foolish fellow was in shreds.

"No use talking," said Granny. "You've gone and done it this time. Your wings are ruined. I can't pretend to mend 'em."

And then that foolish, clumsy butterfly was really frightened.

"But I can't fly!" he said.

"You should have thought of that before you went tumbling around into spiky things," said Granny severely, but for all that she looked at him with a grandmother pucker on her forehead. She was sorry in her heart for him. He did look so ragged and forlorn. And presently Granny laughed. She laughed again and then she hurried around the cottage to her garden and came back with a fairy buttercup.

What did Granny do? She took two buttercup petals, tacked them neatly over his ragged wings and off he went, beautifully mended and flying finely. And after that he was perfectly careful.

GIRLS' DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

This illustration shows a little dress of simple loveliness for a child up to 10 years of age. It is just the thing for wear at home or school.

The body part is in long waisted effect, with side front closing to denote smartness and with the lower edges gathered where a wide belt of contrasting goods covers the joining of the skirt, with seven plaits in each half and a neat panel front.

The always fashionable contrasting goods for the collar and cuffs makes other trimming unnecessary, but adding a bow tie takes nothing from the excellent lines of such frock. A pocket may be inserted if you like or a patch pocket placed in the left or right front above the belt.

Linen, St. Nicholas cloth, cotton poplin and the like make satisfactory tub frocks. Plaids, checks, serge and wool mixtures are fine for school dresses. The development of this dress is easily possible in a couple of hours at most. The dress pattern, No. 8,034, cuts in sizes 4 to 10 years. To make in size 6 requires 2 1/2 yards 36 inch material, 3/4 yard 36 inch contrasting goods. Or 2 1/2 yards all one material. To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.
