12 Boys Drowned

Were Waiting for Bath House to Open When Walk Gave Way.

Lawrence, Mass., July 1.—Yesterday afternoon, while about 40 boys, aged from 9 to 15 years, were waiting for the Municipal bathing house, in the Lawrence River to open, they amused themselves jumping up and down on a narrow wooden walk leading over fifteen feet of water to the bathing house. Suddenly the supports at the foot of the incline sank. A few moments later the walk extension dropped like a trap door and the boys rolled into the water.

There is a swift current at the point, drawn by the falls a quarter of a mile below, and the lads were caught in this. Many of them could not swim.

The strongest ones, who could swim, saved themselves, and several others were pulled ashore. Five unconscious forms were brought from the water, and two of these resuscitated.

The boats and crapping irons were brought and the riverbed was dragged. When the work ceased last night twelve bodies had been recovered.

Women on the Wing.

Ladies Who Fly Describe Their Sensations.

The isaping of a manifesto the other day by the Women's Aerial League initiating a national crusade for the provision of aerial weapons, recalls the fact that the first woman who ever ascended in an aeroplane is believed to be a Ghent lady, who accompanied Henry Farman on a flight outside her own city in 1908.

The first certificated woman pilot in the world was the Baroness de la Roche, who, after breaking her shoulder by running into a clump of poplar trees during practice, obtained her brevet at Hanoi, going thence to St. Petersburg, where the Tsar personally congratulated her upon her skill. In July, 1911, while she was leading in a big race in France, her machine suddenly dropped to earth like a stone. Her life was despaired of, but after a long convalescence she began flying again in February, 1912.

Exactly who was the first Englishwoman to fly in an aeroplane is uncertain, but the honour lies between Mrs. S. E. Cody, wife of the pioneer aviator, and Miss Bacon, daughter of the well-known balloonist. The former made several flights with her husband during his earlier experiments, and the latter at Rheims in 1904 made her initial aeroplane trip.

Taught Her Son to Fly.—"It is," says Miss Bacon, "a glorious buoyant sensation without a parallel and therefore indescribable, but it is delicious beyond words."

Prominent among British lady aviators is Mrs. Marjorie Hewlett, wife of the popular novelist. Mrs. Hewlett holds the record of being the only mother in the world who has taught her own daughter to fly. He is Lieut. F. E. T. Hewlett, R.N., who gained his brevet last year. Mrs. Hewlett holds the view that in a few years women will be starting off in their aeroplanes just as unconcerned as they do now on their motor-cars.

The first time I went on an aeroplane," Mrs. Hewlett says, "I quite imagined it was stationary. The sensation when I realised the motion was the most glorious I have ever experienced. At first I was a little bit afraid, but the performance actually had the effect of strengthening my nerves."

To the mere man in the street such a view might at first appear quixotic, but Miss Trotter Davis, who has crossed the Channel in an aeroplane more often than any other lady, pays aviation a similar compliment.

"I could hardly bear to look over a view might at first appear quixotic, but Miss Trotter Davis, who has crossed the Channel in an aeroplane more often than any other lady, pays aviation a similar compliment."

So far as is known, the only Scottish woman who has yet flown in Scotland is the daughter of Professor Biles, a founder-member of the Royal Aero Club.

During the Lanark meeting, Miss Biles had a passenger flight with Drexel. The sensation of motion she described as "almost that of floating, with the air and the earth rushing by at a tremendous speed," the motion downward being "like descending a long toboggan."

One of the best known French aviatresses is Mlle. Helene Dutrieu, who, as the "human arrow," performed daring leaps of forty-five feet through space on a bicycle in the ring-halls till the police prohibited the feat as dangerous.

Mlle. Dutrieu rejoices in the nickname of the "bantam of aviation." She only weighs as much as a small boy.

Unique in its way is the entrance of Miss Mathilde Moisant into aviation. According to all traditions this charming American should dread the very thought of aerial navigation, as her brother was dashed to death in her presence while flying in December, 1910.

Though small in stature, Miss Moisant is big in spirit. Some time ago the police were informed that she had been flying on a Sunday and set out to apprehend her for contravening a Statute by-law. But they had reckoned without their host. Just as the representatives of the law have in sight Miss Moisant started her engine and cleared off into the air out of their jurisdiction.—P.W.

Horse Takes Fright.

DRIVER IN DANGER.

While Herbert Martin was driving his horse along Water Street to-day, one of the wheels came off the cart. The sudden jolt frightened the animal which bolted. The driver was thrown out and somehow landed under the wheels of the cart. Acting promptly, Constable Busey quieted the horse, released Martin from his dangerous position and brought him into the Bank of Montreal. Dr. Roberts, who was summoned, found that the victim was badly bruised and shaken up but no bones were broken. Later the man was driven home. After resting a few days he will be all right again.

Diana Ashore in Straits

To-day a report was going the rounds of the city that the s.s. Diana, Capt. Waite, having on board the MacMillan Expedition party, bound to Crocker's Land, was ashore in the Straits of Belle Isle. The owners of the vessel, Messrs. Job Bros., had no knowledge of the matter but the report was confirmed by the accompanying message received by Deputy Minister of Customs, LeMessurier, from West St. Modiste. The message came via Cape Ray, and read: "S. S. Diana ashore at Belle Bay, below Red Bay." No further particulars of the happening were received.

While we try to furnish the complete information that is consistent with clearness when speaking of securities in this column, yet of necessity we are prevented by space limitations from treating them as fully as we would like. These little talks serve their function in introducing you to some certain security on our list, but they cannot present ALL the facts. Therefore, to properly judge whether any security we mention is just the one you want or not you should let us send you the complete information that we always have available and which we would consider a pleasure to mail you on request. We have reference now particularly to the Maritime National Investment Fund, which we have been speaking in this column for the past fortnight.

On its own merits this attractive issue is well worthy of your selection, aside from the 50 per cent. Common Stock Bonus. ## Where True Happiness is Found

The dance and the whirl go on,
And the jealousy and the strife;
And the Summer comes and the Summer wanes,
And the autumn of it all is life.
And some would give their kingdom for love,
And some would give their earthly all
Just to be young again.

But 'tis neither the love nor the gain,
Nor the youth that has vanished past;
Nor the sun, nor the dew, nor the heat, nor the rain,
That brings happiness at last.

It is only the love of God,
Filling wide the heart of man;
It is only the lips that gently speak
In the praise of all His plan.

It is only an uplifted face
And a hand that is stretched to all—
But somehow the love, and the youth,
And the gain,
Are there without striving at all.

The Little Rosewood Casket.

In a little rosewood casket that is resting on the stand, There's a package of old letters, Will you go and bring them, sister, and read them all to-night? I have often tried, but could not, for the tears that dimmed my sight.

Come up nearer to me, sister, let me lean upon your breast; For the tide of life is ebbing, and I faint would be at rest. Bring the letters he has written, he whose voice I've often heard; Read them over, love, distinctly, for I've cherished every word.

Tell him that I watched his coming, when the noon-tide sun was high, And when at evening the angels hung their star-lights in the sky; And when I found he came not, tell him I did not chide, But spoke in love about him, and I blessed him when I died.

Tell him that I was supported, not a word of censure spoke; But his silence, and his absence, this poor heart hath nearly broke; And when in Death's white garments, you have wrapped my form around, And have laid me down to slumber in the quiet churchyard ground, Place the letters and the picture close beside my pulseless heart; We for years have been together, and in death we will not part.

I am ready now, my sister, you may read the letters o'er; While I listen to the words of him I'll never see no more. And ere you shall have finished, should I faintly fall asleep, Fall asleep in death to wake not, dearest sister, do not weep.
