

BOYS MAKE ESCAPE FROM INDUSTRIAL

Londoner and Tilbury Pal Get Away from Mimco School in Night Attire.

A Toronto dispatch says: "Two boys escaped from the Victoria Industrial School at Mimco a 10 o'clock this morning in their nightclothes and without boots. Their absence was discovered within a quarter of an hour, and a number of the officers connected with the school started in pursuit."

"Soon after the boys went to bed other boys in the dormitory with John Roberts and Albert Jenkins heard them planning to escape. Evidently arrangements had been made by Roberts to have clothes placed in some convenient spot. Soon after midnight the boys crawled to the window. This they opened and dropped on the snowy ground, some distance below. Footmarks were found under the window, but they disappeared on the roadway a short distance away."

"Roberts is 17 years old, tall and light-haired. He is no stranger at the escaping game, having been found before. That time he was found in London. He has been committed from this point several times for theft. He is an all-around bad boy."

"Albert Jenkins is slightly younger, but is much more powerfully built than Roberts. He comes from Tilbury and is by no means a stranger to the police of the province. He has been a wanderer, judging from the places where he has been convicted."

Roberts is an incorrigible who was sent down from London. He was recaptured only a week ago at the Grand Trunk depot and returned to the institution.

CARNEGIE TALKS OF HIS LATEST

Thinks New Spelling Would Help Towards Era of Universal Peace.

Hot Springs, Va., March 26.—Andrew Carnegie made a statement today giving his views on the proposed reform of English spelling. He said: "From Claucaer's time and before till now our language has been constantly changing and improving, not under any rule or system, but simply as occasion has required new words and new spellings. The great Oxford dictionary, now under publication, gives the history of each word and shows that the words creep into our language in the most haphazard manner. A new word expresses a new want or an old want better than the word in use did, and so forces itself into use. Nothing can bar it out, while the word invented with the strictest regard to rule may apply in vain. What is slang one year is correct English a few years later. This is our language enriched. It is a slow process, but a sure one. All the struggles of pedants and purists are helpless against it."

"The organized effort I have agreed to finance is not revolutionary—far from it. Its action will be conservative. Word after word it will endeavor to improve the spelling and the language; slowly, of course, but hastening the pace if possible; that is all. The colors who are disposed to ridicule the effort themselves use words, and especially spellings, which their predecessors of a century ago would have denominated as degrading to literature. The editors of the next century will in turn marvel at the uncouth spelling of our present writers. Since our language has been constructed through unceasing change literary men should welcome new words and new spellings with favoring eye, since it is by these alone that further improvement can come. Scholars denounce a plan for plough, for instance. But plough has been accepted. So with many words that will readily occur to readers."

"Our language is likely to prevail in the world, and we may hope it is to become finally the universal language, the most potent of all instruments for drawing the race together, insuring peace and advancing civilization. The English has the greatest difficulty in acquiring it because of its spelling. This is at least his chief obstacle, for its grammar is easy."

"Hundreds of scholarly men have agreed to use improved spelling for twelve words. These words are already well settled in actual use. Other simplifications will be suggested. If meritorious they will be accepted. Teachers have assured me that children would be saved more than a year's instruction if our spelling were simplified."

ATTACKED BY A RAT

A peculiar accident happened to a lady at the Grand Trunk depot on Sunday morning about 4:30. She was enjoying a doleful doze on one of the benches in the ladies' waiting-room, pending the arrival of a train, when a rat—a wise old rat—espied her, and climbing up on the bench, bit a piece out of her lip. The lady, not accustomed to such violent caresses, screamed for help. The night police came and chased the rat away. The woman's lip swelled considerably, and Dr. English was called. Her injuries were dressed, and she was able to go on her way. Her name could not be learned. So ladies enjoying a slumber in the station should put a rat trap—not a seal—on their lips.

Gibbons, K.C., chairman of the Canadian section of the commission, stated today that the report of his section had been handed to the Government, but it would not be treated as confidential for the present. "On April 25," said Mr. Gibbons, "the Canadian section will meet and will move a series of resolutions, covering its view of the whole problem."

SOME RELIEF FOR JAPANESE MISERY

Abatement of Winter Helps, But Many Are Still in Peril of Storm.

Tokio, March 26.—The misery and suffering in the famine region has been slightly relieved by the prompt and liberal aid from foreign sources and by the abatement of the rigors of winter. The local authorities are trying to provide work for the able-bodied, but the extent of work is inadequate, and thousands are still on the verge of starvation. Many parents are forming their children, sending them to the already crowded Okayama Orphanage. One child who has arrived here, a girl of six years, was found treasuring a package of dirty old newspapers, which contained a postal card with the address of her parents, who had told her to mail the card on her arrival at the destination. The severity of the suffering undergone by the children is clearly depicted in the faces of those who are compelled to leave their homes, where the food consists of flour mixed with raw and weeds. The mixture is beaten into a paste, which contains only 25 per cent actual food value. The Government has remitted the tax in the famine districts, but this will not afford immediate relief. The liberal contributions from foreign sympathizers are already effective, and the relief in the form of food and clothing is commanding the heartfelt appreciation. Another appeal for aid is presented by the sufferers from the recent earthquake in South Formosa. The local government is busy providing food, caring for the injured and removing and burying corpses, several hundred of which are buried under debris.

RESCUE OF ORDER

Driver Got It From Father Who Was Butler to Sir Geo. Munday.

London, March 26.—The lucky omnibus driver who owned Lord Nelson's "General Memorandum" to his captains at the battle of Trafalgar had it for many years without knowing its true value, though he knew it was valuable. His father was butler to Sir George Munday, who served with Nelson. Sir George exacted a promise from this favorite servant never to leave his service, and at the same time gave him a desk containing papers, saying they would be valuable some day. On the death of his father the driver received the desk, which in recent years has been in the care of his daughter.

A chance question from a passenger who asked him if he had even been to Merton Abbey, where Nelson lived, prompted the driver to say that he knew something about Nelson.

"My father," he said, "was the admiral's driver. He gave him an old desk with letters in. One, I know, bears on the battle of Trafalgar."

The passenger asked to see the letter and said he would give £10 and a suit of clothes if he liked it. Surprised at this big offer the driver next day consulted another passenger, who advised him to send it to Christie's. He did so, and it was sold for $18,000.

FAMOUS ENGLISH ENGINE

Sixty-Four-Year-Old "Lord of the Isles" To Be Broken Up.

London, March 26.—After having been preserved as an antique work since the abolition of the broad-gauge track in 1892, the engine Lord of the Isles has been condemned to the scrap heap. She was the last remaining locomotive of Brunel's famous "white elephant" railroad.

Designed 64 years ago by the late Sir Daniel Gooch, the Lord of the Isles, with her big driving-wheels, tall chimney and abundant brass work, stood as the model of all the subsequent broad-gauge express engines.

She resembled a monument to British engineering genius, for after her last journey had been run she was sent on show to the Chicago World's Fair and the great Paris Exhibition, gaining medals at both.

In these days of great locomotives and long passenger journeys, people are apt to look down upon the sturdy engine. The broad-gauge engines, however, certainly had the quality of speed.

It is still handed on as a tradition among Great Western veterans how, in the early forties, a broad-gauge locomotive raced against time from Bristol to Paddington—the limits of the then existing line—a distance of 17 miles.

This urgent journey was to enable a bill to be deposited in Parliament before the house adjourned; and so the legend runs, the distance was covered in just over an hour.

TEXAS AFTER STANDARD

Lone Star State Will Put Anti-Trust Law Into Action.

Dallas, Texas, March 26.—A special from Austin to the News says: Press dispatches stating that counsel for the Standard Oil Company had admitted that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey held in trust the stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of St. Louis, and the Republic Oil Company have aroused considerable interest here in view of the fact that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company is doing business in Texas, and in view of the affidavits which were made when its permit to do business in Texas was issued. The News says it has authority for the statement that the attorney-general's department proposes to take up the matter of enforcing the anti-trust law of Texas as soon as pressing business now in hand can be disposed of.

GREAT EXPENSE IN LONDON HOSPITALS

Increasing Number of Operations Adds to Cost of Running Institutions.

London, March 26.—The Hon. Sydney Holland, chairman of the London Hospital, advocates, in a letter to the Times, the establishment of a hospital where patients will be able to pay according to their means and to receive the advantages of the highest developments of surgical science, which they can at present obtain only in hospitals supported by charity.

He points out that in recent years hospital expenses have increased largely, owing to the advances in medical and surgical treatment. The operating theater has been revolutionized, new methods of treatment have been introduced, and operations are far more numerous.

The London Hospital affords the most striking example of this increase, which is caused by the necessity for maintaining the institution at the highest pitch of disease-fighting efficiency.

The secretary told an Express representative yesterday that twenty years ago anaesthetics for operating purposes were administered in 532 cases in the year, and that was considered a large number. Last year the number was 15,442.

As part of the reconstruction, the cost of equipping an operating theater—of which there are thirteen, with an average of slightly more than forty operations a day, in the London Hospital—is about $350.

The most elaborate safeguards have to be provided for the theater, which is a heavy expense, and the theater is filled and warmed before admission through gauze surfaces.

Before an operation the doors are closed hermetically, and the theater is filled with steam from a high-pressure hose. This takes about a minute and a half, and another minute and a half serves to fill the theater with a supply of absolutely clean air.

Every knife used for the smallest operation has to be cleaned and set, before being used again, by a machine which sterilizes it with steam.

Head Salesman on Small Salary Who Passed as Society Swell.

New York, March 26.—The World says: Through the arrest of John Wilmer Martine, head salesman in a Fifth avenue haberdashery, a rather unusual record has come to light. According to the police, he worked each day from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. for $32 a week. After business hours he was a welcome guest in the homes of some of the well-to-do families in this city.

Larceny, it is alleged, enabled him to live far above his means. For two years or more, it is charged, he has stolen systematically and without coming under suspicion. A trip to Europe led to his arrest. Martine added somewhat to his income by work as a parlor entertainer. He got $25 a night for this, and so pleasing was his personality, that he seldom failed to convert his patrons into admiring friends. He managed entertainments at the West Side Y. M. C. A., where he was highly esteemed.

Martine came to this city from Baltimore about ten years ago. He is 28 years of age, and, as Sherry's, Demmon's and the Walcott-Jacobs, he is known as one of the smartest dressers in town. He was known at these places as a society man. In the West Side police court yesterday Martine was brought to answer a charge of grand larceny preferred by his employer, W. A. McLaughlin, a haberdasher. Martine was charged with the theft of $500. According to the police, he managed to live at an expensive rate by stealing from his employer and selling the goods to friends and acquaintances at about three-quarters of the price. His customers were Wall street bankers, well-known lawyers and businessmen.
