

The ADVERTISER'S PICTORIAL PAGE

Fighting for possession of the ball in an Army-Navy polo match at Governor's Island.

Vanity seems to be inherent in all womankind. A Toronto mite refuses to discard her "pearls" even on the beach.

Clearing away the wreckage of the Brooklyn elevated smash where six were killed was a slow job even in New York.

Miss Laura Gerber, Minnesota co-ed, has a penchant for stock raising. She is shown here with two of her thoroughbred Belgian horses.

Counted the superlative among a trio of sisters famous for their beauty, the Contessa Piccolomini is one of the most ardent of Fascists.

Julia and Mary Ragin, twin daughters of Mrs. May Little Ragin. Their mother, a stenographer, married Asa G. Candler, 72-year-old soft drink king and the richest man in the south.

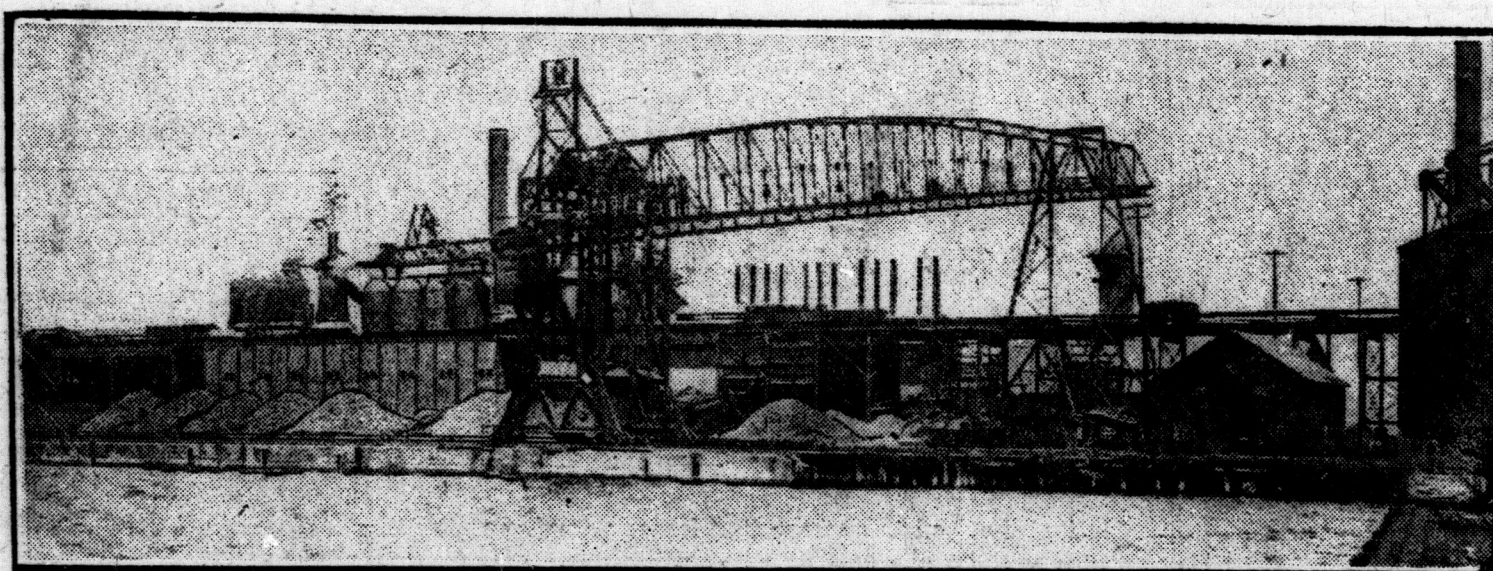

Mrs. Charles Lind of New York, is suing Sterling Calder, artist, for $200,000 charging he made a sculptured study of her without permission.

Toronto school children prepare to dump their books in the attic till September. A trio photographed after the last lesson on the last day.

Fishing in mass formation. A scene on the Don river near Toronto.

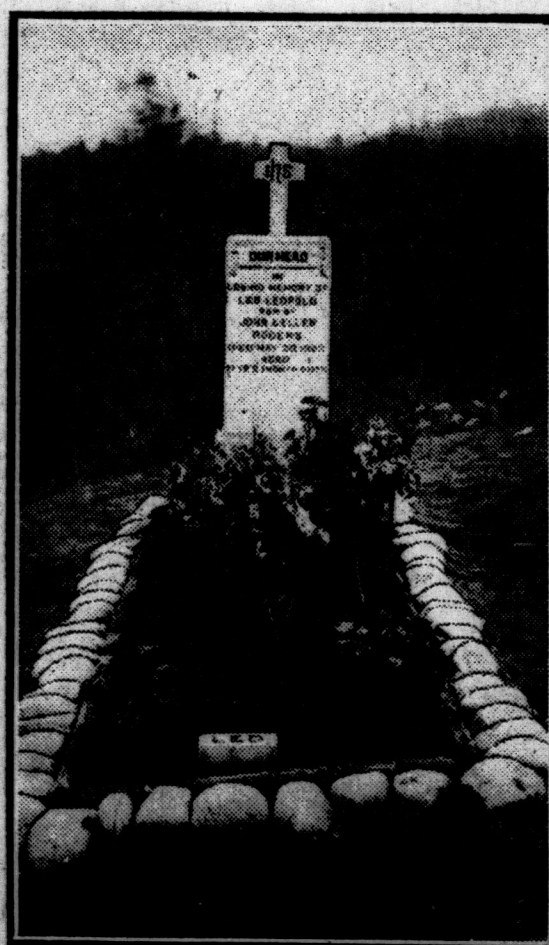

One of the reasons why Sault Ste. Marie is one of the most thriving of Ontario cities. The coal docks about one-half mile from the locks.

Three members of Swedish royalty on a visit to London. Left to right, Duke of Vasterbotten, the Duke of Uppland, and the Swedish Crown Prince.

Some fair New Yorkers taking part in a golf tournament during the heat wave arranged to take dives between drives.

Grave of Leo Rogers, the North Bay desperado. The wording "our hero" was afterwards removed by order of the town authorities.

Mabel Withee, stage star, reported to have charmed the Prince Mohammed Ali Ibrahim of Egypt.

Miss Gladys Walton, movie star, wearing a slip-on golf sweater of unusual design. Note the long panel front.

Rev. Chas. Taylor, pastor of an East Orange church, clearing away the woodland to make a playground for his Sunday school children.