I mean that the language he habitually uses implies some kind of belief in formulas he no longer holds. He hardly dares to disinter the formulas themselves—that would be erous. onvenient for him-but he goes on flapping the shroud as energetically religion of Jesus is commonly pre-sented are inadequate and misleading. What is wanted is freshness and simof statement. Our objection is not so much to the venerable creed of Christendom as to the ordinary in-terpretation of those creeds. The old idea of the fall, the antiquated pres-entation of the Scriptural basis of revelation, of the atonement, salvation, the punishment of sin, heaven and hell are not only misleading, but are also unethical. It is quite true there are many social activities in connection with the churches, and they are increasing, and if it were not for these the churches would have to for these the churches would have to be shut up. They are all admirable in their way, but they imply another gos-pel than the one preached from the pulpit. The new theology is an un-trammelled return to the Christian puint. The new theology is an untrammelled return to the Christian sources in the light of modern thought. The new theology is not primarily a moral and spiritual movement which will send civilization back to God. Jesus never conceived of salvation as the fleeing from a City of Destruction. The church has nothing to do with getting men into heaver to do with getting men into heaven. Her business is to get heaven into them. Many Unitarians are preaching the new theology, but the new theology is the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, and the churches exist for the realization of this kingdom and they exist for that alone. New Theology Outlined Again At a recent theological conference Rev. R. J. Campbell proposed to give a brief outline of what he conceived a brief outline of what he conceived to be the new theology. It had been urged against him, he said, that he had not had any theological training He wished to draw no attention to his own academic qualifications, but lest some of them should think that he did not know how the English language was spelt, he might tell them that he was a graduate in honors of the largest college in connection with Oxford university.

In following the lines of his new book on the new theology, Mr. Campbell spoke first of God and the universe. God is that mysterious power that is finding expression in the smallest at infinding expression in the smallest at infinding expression in the universe. I am not outside God. There cannot be anything outside God. There cannot be two infinities. Our theology is a great deal too homocentric and geocentric.
