

"It Saved My Life"

To a common expression, often heard from those who have realized by personal use, the curative power of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, we cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, believing as I do that, but for its use, I should have succumbed to that fatal lung trouble...

Poetry. BY CHARLES POLLEN ADAMS.

At home, "His eyes were blue and his hair was fair. I was altogether young—hair, eyes, skin, all brown alike. And I had called him copper-colored—I had called him young—what else had I called him? I blushed back my brown hair tightly and severely, hid my right eye with a handkerchief, and hid my left eye with a handkerchief, hoping to escape from my thoughts...

Select Literature. Cicely Chrysal.

The lecture was standing, not looking in hand, in a little group in the corner, talking in subdued tones, consulting one another on a hobby point in the history of grand jury. The lecturer, however, bowed gravely as he passed, and went on to the next point in his lecture. He was silent until he was gone out of sight; then our tongues were loosened, and we no longer spoke in subdued tones.

"I am a man," I groaned, for a girl who has graduated over eight smiling brothers and has been treated all her life with deference by fond fathers and uncles has an angelic scorn for men. I had had no such mother and uncles and sisters to teach me humility as a booming womanly virtue.

After that day his eyes ceased to twinkle when he looked at me; he passed me over in silence, and put the puzzling questions to Nell and Claudia, and was almost gentle when I went alone to him. He gave up talking to me and expounding this theory and that argument which he had called to follow; and, when he was forced to condemn my work, he would do so mildly and looked away as he spoke.

"I have forgotten you," she said, and she looked at me with a smile. "I have forgotten you," she said, and she looked at me with a smile. "I have forgotten you," she said, and she looked at me with a smile. "I have forgotten you," she said, and she looked at me with a smile.

"I have forgotten you," she said, and she looked at me with a smile. "I have forgotten you," she said, and she looked at me with a smile. "I have forgotten you," she said, and she looked at me with a smile. "I have forgotten you," she said, and she looked at me with a smile.

Consumption carries off its thousands of victims every year. Yes, thousands of human lives are being wasted that might be saved, for the fact is now established that consumption in its early stages is curable. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will, if used in time, cure the most obstinate cases. It has no equal as a remedy for bronchitis, coughs and colds. Its efficacy has been proved in thousands of cases. All druggists.
