DISTRUCTION OF THE B. O. CO'S MILL AT

MIDLAND.
On Friday evening the 10th inst, the inhabitants of this prosperous village were thrown into a state of intense excitoment when it became known that the new mill was on fire. About half-past six many persons in different parts of the village noticed a small blare as if some rubbish was on fire in the mill yard. In a few minutes, however, it proved to be the engine house on fire. From there it spread rapidly to the fine mill, which soon disappeared. Few expected when the mill was burning to see the lumber go also, but by ten o'clock the last pile of 6,500,-000 feet was enveloped in the flames. Several attempts were made to make a break in the immense rows of lumber, but the fire raged so fiercely that the workers were driven back each time without accomplishing much. When the fire burned fiercest the illumination was so great that many at a distance supposed the whole village was on fire, and a great number hitched up their teams and drove into the village. The reflection of the fire was seen over thirty miles away. Had there been a north-west wind at the time the greatest portion of Midland would have disappeared as rapidly as did the immense piles of lumber. The mill property, after the fire, was visited by hundreds who felt keenly the loss of so great an enterprise. The scene of the fire is a desolate spot, the fire having zwept over four acres and in its course consumed seven dwellings with the mill and lumber.

At present it is not known that the mill will be rebuilt, as the board of directors in the Old Country will have to be consulted. In the meantime, however, the men who were employed in the new mill will not be long out of employment, for as soon as the electric lights can be got ready the old mill will be kept running day and night. This will take place about Monday next, and then the whole of the men will be employed. It is hardly possible to estimate what the loss will be to the village.

The loss on the mill, trains, &c., is estimated at $60,000, and the lumber in the yard at the time of the fire was valued at another $60,000. On the mill there is an insurance of something like $30,000, and on the lumber about $45,000. We understand that the dry lumber in the yard be longed to Messrs J. & F. N. Tennant, of Toronto, but we have not been able to ascertain the exact amount of their loss.

The fire it is supposed was caused by a spark from the boiler house.

Nonh's Ark Discovered.

A Constantinople correspondent announces the discovery of Noah's Ark. Turkish commissioners appointed to investigate the avalanches on Mount Ararat, suddenly came upon a gigantic structure. The Ark was in a good state of preservation. An Englishman saw that it was made of gopher wood which only grows on the Euphrates. The interior was divided into partitions. Into three of these only could they get, the others being full of ice, and how far the Ark extended they could not say. Says the Pall Mall Gazette, an American was soon on the spot, and negotiations have been entered into with the local Pasha for its transfer to the United States.
