LITTELL'S LIVING AGE FOR 1894.—As a channel through which we receive the richest fruits gleaned from the vast field of foreign literature, the ripest productions of the most brilliant intellects, this standard weekly magazine is the most generally useful one that is published, and has become almost a necessity.

In addition to the productions of the leading British writers, The Living Age will publish during 1894 selected works of other noted European authors, translated expressly for it. A story of great interest, from the French of Paul Perret, will be begun in the first January issue, which is the opening number of a new series and begins the 200th volume of the magazine. Its prospectus for 1894 is well worth attention in selecting one's reading matter for the coming year.

Special and generous offers are made to new subscribers. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.
