Patrick Donahoe Dead.

The Famous Catholic Journalist is no More

Patrick Donahoe, the venerable founder of the Palot and the most widely-known Irish-American of his day, passed away at his residence on Shawmut Ave., Boston, at one o'clock of the morning of Monday, March 18, one hour after completing the nine-tioth year of his blameless and benefi-cent Med.

At his deathbed were his devoted wife, his sons, Patrick M., Joseph V., and J. Frank Donahoe, his daughter, Genevieve, (Mrs. N. D. Drummery), Dr. Drummery, Mrs. J. F. Donahoe, his confessor, the Rev. John T. Mullen, D.C.L., of the Cathedral, and his physician, Dr. James W. Ryder.

With his crucifix classed in his wasty de hands, and th. Apostobe Benediction of His Holmess Pope Leo XIII, upon him, the soul of the good old man quietly passed away.

Mr. Donahoe's last illness came upon him with the New Year and the new century. But such was his vitality

About a month ago, however, it became evident that he could not the dent that he could not recover; and botwithstanding some surprising rallies, his nearest and dearest realized that he would never again set foot or the familiar streets of the city he lov ed so much.

He went to school for a few years, and, while still, a lad in his teens, got employment in the of-fice of the Columbian Centinel, and lice of the Columbian Centinel, and later on the Boston Transcript. Here he became an expert type-setter, and acquired his knowledge of the power of journalism for good or evil.

Mr. Donahoe loved to tell of his boyish experiences, and of the time he nearly lost his place for not coming to work on Christmas Day.

Even in his early days, Mr. Donahoe was a man of foresight as well as of faith, and impracticable as it might appear, he knew he could build up in the stronghold of Puritanism, a journal for the Catholies of the United States.

He was not deterred by the failure of Bishop Venwick's venture of daring name, "The Jesuit."

This little paper, founded in 1832, struggled on for a bracf space, and was about to be discontinued, when Mr. Donahoe and Mr. Devereux came forward and bought it. They changed the name to the Literary and Catholic Sentinel, but it fared no better than its predecessor, and had to be whandered.

Finally, in 1836, Messrs. Donahoe and Devereux began the publication of the Pilot. The latter gentleman did not remain long connected with the enterprise. Mr. Donahoe bent all his energies toward making the Pilot a success. He make a personal canvass, not only of the New England and Middle States, but of the fa. West and South, never resting till he had built up for his paper a thoroughly national circulation, and expanded it from a small four-page to a largo and handsomely printed eight-page weekly. Meanwhile the founder of the Pilot was rapidly amassing a fortune, and had become the foremost man of his race on New England. In addition to Finally, in 1836, Messrs. Donahoe and

An carnest Catholic, he was most generous to Catholic charities. He added very largely in the building of the splendid Home for Destitute Catholic Children, on Harrison avenue, Boston: was a generous advocate of Catholic popular education; a steady benefactor to orphanages, asylums, etc. Indeed, scarcely a church in New England was built in his time without some gift from him; nor was any good cause an America or Ireland ever refused his assistance.

Through this dangerous form of generosity he lost a sum total of $250,000.

THE DAY IN PARIS

Celebration of the Seventeenth in the West

The LC S.U has a reputation for carrying out everything it undertake In the very best manner possible, and Monday evening's concert was no ex-ception to the rule. The large audience, which almost completely filled the house, was very pleasantly enter-tained for two and a half hours, and at the close there were many coupli-mentary remarks directed towards those who had charge of the affair. The lecture by Rev. Father Crinion, of Dunnville, dealing with a part of his recent European tour, was without any question one of the best ever delivered in Faris. The speaker possesses a fluent, graceful and happy style, with enough of the true Irish wit to relieve any danger of monotony and just a touch of the musical brogue. His description of the Paris brogue. His description of the Paris Exposition placed that great event in an altogether new and more interest-ing light to Laristans. Father Crin-ion will be eagerly welcomed when he returns to complete the story of his trip.

The musical part of the program while produced entirely by local artists, would be a credit to many affairs with professional entertainers. Miss Eva Ealand made her lebut as a singer, and her numbers caused a surprise that was pleasant indeed. Her appearance is graceful and pleasing, while her voice has a range and appearance is graceful and pleasings while her voice has a range and sweetness to an unusual degree.

Miss Annie Benning was well received, and encored each time she appeared, her pieces being exceedingly well rendered.

Messrs, Thos. J. McCabe and Melvin Tufford never sang better than on. Monday, and the audence was not satisfied without double numbers from each. Miss Kate O'Brien opened the program with a well-played instru-mental, while Mr. Will Buckley act-

KINGSTON CATHOLICS

Quiet and Religious Observance of the Seventeenth.

In St. Mary's cathedral the festal of the patron saint of Ireland was observed as only waim-hearted sons of Erin can celebrate. At an early hour the members of varieus Irish and religious societies partook of holy communion. High mass was celebrated, by Rev. Fr. Meaghet. The culogy of Ireland's saint was delivered by Rev. Fr. Salmon. He said, To those wandering in foreign lands as exiles, the day avakened memories and associations of their native land. The song that recalled those memories was no other than the old familiar air of "Home, Sweet Home!" It was his message to them. In that air men "Home, Sweet Home!" It was his message to them. In that air men read of iov and sorrow, gladness and relief all expressed. When they heard that strain that hearts were unconsciously touched. This strain cones to them from afar, from the beginning to them from afar, from the begin ning of their existence, and bringing them ever nearer to the source of light and truth. The sound of music brings to all the strains of the angelio orings to all the strains of the angelio choir, but how much more was they glory and gladness as they were gathered together as they were to-day. Music and poetry were the means whereby they endeavored to realize that higher light that they gathered in their pilgrimage here below. #### THE DAY IN MONTREAL

The Annual Parade of the Irish Societies.

As on every recurrence of the feast of freland's patron saint, the Irish-men and women of Montreal and the inch and women of Montreal and the descendants of the Irish race, were out in faige numbers on Sunday, to do henor to the great sain, of the Green Isle. As if fitting in a race whose attachment to country is surpassed only by that to the faith implanted in their hearts by St. Patrick, the religious ceremony was the first feature of the celebration of the day. day.

The mass of the day was that celebrated at St. Patrick's church by His Grace Archbishop Bruchesi. The spacious edifice was altogether inadequate to accommodate the immense throngs which flocked to the entrance. The sanctuary was crowded with clergymen from the different patishes in the city. Among those present were Rev. Father Luke Callaghan, who acted as deacon of honor to His Grace the Archbishop with Father Luke Callaghan, who acted as deacon of honor to His Grace the Archbishop with Fa-ther Labrosse, of the Seminars, as sub-deacon, Father Levlerc, of St. Patrick's, as assistant priest. which exist in the Catholic Church be-tween those living on earth, and those members of the Church in Heaven who have been raised to the dignity of saints. The streets along the route of the procession were lavishly decorated the prevalent color being green. Among the most remarkable flags noticed, was one on John Murphy's Co's building. This was the flag designed at the time of the late Queen's recent vesit to Ireland. The original large lush flag, with the golden harp and the Union Jack inland on a field of erreen. green.

The wearing of the green was general throughout the city.

Rev. Father Strubbe, was on Monday evening the recipient of a muniquicent gift at the hands of his parishdiners. A very large number of these had gathered in the Monument National, where Mr. M. J. F. Quinn, K. C., 'endered the reverend gentleman a purse containing $2,000, in recognition of his services as pustor of St. Ann's parish for the last seventeen years, Father Strubbe was deeply moved by such a testimony of esteem, but he said that his vow of poverty as a Redemptarist priest prevented, him from accipting any money, but he was glad to say that this princely amount would be expended in improving the parish church. He added that Rev. Father Strubbe, was on Moning the parish church. He added that he could proudly say in his parish there was not a single immoral house, thanks to the efforts of his colleagues of the Presbytery, and the good people of Point St. Charles.

The numerous friends of the late Father James Callaghan will be pleased to hear that his name is to be perpet-uated in Montreal's famous cathedral, St. James. The memorial will take the form of a marble sanctuary rai-ing and will cost in the vicinity of $1,-500. The immediate friends of the deceased priest have the arrangements in hand and they have obtained the approval of the Archbishop.
