THE rebel President is thus described by a correspondent of an English paper:—'Jefferson Davis is a slight, light figure, little exceeding middle height, and holds himself erect and straight. He was dressed in a rustic suit of slate-colored stuff, with a black handkerchief round his neck; his manner is plain, and rather reserved and drastic; his head is well formed, with a fine full forehead, square and high, covered with innumerable fine lines and wrinkles, features regular, though the cheek-bones are too high and the jaws too hollow to be handsome; the lips are thin, flexible, and curved; the chin square, well-defined; the nose very regular, with wide nostrils; and eyes deep set, large and full—one seems nearly blind, and is partly covered with a film, owing to excruciating attacks of neuralgia and tic. Wonderful to relate, he does not chew tobacco, and is neat and clean-looking, with hair trimmed and boots brushed.'

NEW STYLE OF SHIRT COLLAR.—Enamelled steel shirt collars are advertised in England. When they become soiled, you merely pass a sponge over them, and they are as good as new. If the wearer sits down in a damp room the collar begins to rust immediately; this corrosive admonition frequently protects sensitive people from colds. On a pinch the garment may be made to do duty as a razor or as a carving knife. If it be lent to a friend it will in all probability cut his throat. For these and other excellencies it bids fair to supersede the linen and paper articles now in use.

THE right honorable and sable Minister from Hayti, represented his colored Court, at the party of the Brazilian Minister, at Washington, last week, with great dignity of diplomatic darkness. The ladies are all turning to the books on heraldry, in which it is stated that 'sable is the most valuable of furs—equal to diamond among precious stones and to Saturn among the planets.' Colonel Roumain (the baptismal name of the distinguished Haytian) is a man of very high birth and breeding, of most approved courage and courtesy, thirty-three years of age, and, at present, quite an Othello of attraction to the dramatic eye of the ladies.

ONE perverse disposition will destroy the peace of a whole family.
