

wick may show particular interest include agriculture and translation, because of the University of Moncton's deep involvement in legal translations.

Rioux refers to the politicians question of what New Brunswick hopes to gain specifically from the summit.

For his part, Rioux says that since it is the first summit, the results are hard to predict.

"We can always hope for some things, but at this point I don't know. "It's a matter of being known outside Canada, getting our expertise out and getting experience from outside within New Brunswick."

"The role of New Brunswick will be what it makes it out to be on subjects that concern it most.