

ve can best appre-
with the stupen-
py are those who
salutary account,
illogical and absurd
oo small to be re-
immensity of the
ence, that He who secrets of the heart to which he hath intelligence, and is
eives a reverential
e Him !

On the 17th of June
we sounded, and
; the water being
titudes of Pintado
s, with a few alba-
e Table Mountain
into the south-east
St. Helena.

Helena is generally
wind as fair as it
ft, it is too fair for very much. How-
been well secured,
ed and reticulated
e dishes and plates
e a map. In this der, although when
f the top stud'n sail board side, a soup
as if intent on mis-

One night as we were all assembled at tea, we felt a smart shock as if we had struck the bottom, which jingled the teacups, and caused a small scream or two amongst the ladies. This was accounted for immediately after, for a whale emerged close to the side of the ship, and began to blow hurriedly and violently as if in great alarm. We had seen half a dozen near us in the course of the evening, and it appeared that the vessel had come right against one individual, probably enjoying his first sleep, and roused him from his soft slumbers by a rough nudge in the ribs. We did not stop to set his bones to rights, but proceeding on our course made St. Helena by day-light on the 5th of July, and anchored off James's Town at eight o'clock in the morning.

END OF VOL. I.