

CHAPTER X

"Our friend J. Q." — His varying views on various subjects — His estimate of Webster and of Hayne and of the great debate	PAGE 227
---	-------------

CHAPTER XI

Hayne's speech on the public lands — Webster's assault upon Hayne	235
---	-----

CHAPTER XII

Hayne's reply to Webster	241
------------------------------------	-----

CHAPTER XIII

Webster's rejoinder to the reply	253
--	-----

CHAPTER XIV

The debate closed and the record set straight	260
---	-----

CHAPTER XV

Some Northern estimates of Hayne — Charleston's appreciation of Webster — The mechanics of Charleston — Their belief in the Union as well as the locomotive	268
---	-----

CHAPTER XVI

D. E. Huger defeats the attempt to nullify in 1830	278
--	-----

CHAPTER XVII

The breach between Calhoun and Jackson — McDuffie precipitates nullification against the approval of Calhoun — Hayne expounds its practicability from its previous use — Calhoun's logical exposition — Sumter's solemn appeal	286
--	-----

CHAPTER XVIII

The struggle for control of South Carolina — The last appeal to reason at Washington	297
--	-----