

lashes. "Then we'll walk straight into Heaven." He played with the dog's rough mane. "She'll keep on looking at the stars," he murmured. "But I'll keep on looking at her — Sheila."

But Sheila, having made her choice, had shut her eyes to the world and to the stars and slept like a good and happy child.

THE END