AN EMPIRE ARMY IS HALDANE'S HOPE

British Secretary of War Submits to Colonies a Scheme Which He Thinks Would Work Out Well for All.

Montreal, Feb. 16.—A special London cable says: Seeing the apparent misconception in some quarters in Canada I asked the Right Hon. Mr. Haldane, secretary for war, to say whether the following report was correct:

"We are negotiating with the dominions overseas with a view to the creation and constitution of an army of the empire and not this country merely. I am a believer in the policy of keeping up to the necessary standard of the day, whether in national policy or naval, and such adjustments and movements as are from time to time made by the world must be met by the component countries of the world on the same footing and with due relation to each other."

Mr. Haldane, replying to my question, does not deny the correctness of the report but adds his regrets that he cannot authorize me to publish any explanation.

Inquiries in authoritative quarters, however, enable me to say that Mr. Haldane's remarks do not refer to any proposals which were beyond those outlined in the resolution of the Imperial Conference of 1907. It has been at no time suggested by the imperial authorities that there should be any interference with local control of the actual work of training and the imperial authorities have insisted that the principles of training and organization be the same. In this sense the army of the empire would be an army of the empire, not of this country alone.

A reference to the official reply in the conference shows that the British Empire is at once accepted to secure complete Canadian control of the Canadian forces into regional units, brigades and divisions on a regular army plan, as is the case with the British army, each having its own ammunition, columns, field engineers, medical companies, supply, transport companies, field ambulances and all services to place troops directly into action under their own trained leaders. Thus the military organization of the empire would be identical, while Canadian and other colonial forces would be each contained under complete Canadian control and in the event of Canadian participation in an empire war the Canadian force would consist only of those who offer their services voluntarily.

AMUSEMENTS

NICKEL HAS GREAT NEW PICTURE FEATURE TODAY

What is promised as the most elaborately costumed, extravagantly staged and richly tinted motion picture ever shown upon the Nickel's curtain will be the star feature of the new programme today, starting at the matinee. This is Pathe's "The Whistling Borey Boys," a straight unalloyed fairy tale of the most wildly improbable type, but, allowing nothing but scope for the artist's imagination. The Oriental splendor of the picture, the gorgeous coloring, etc., will, it is promised, prove absolutely bewildering.

The other pictures are to be "The Tenderfoot," a western comic; and "A Tyrant vs. Cupid," something unusually pretty with a real live Cupid in the cast. There will be some extra fine travel views for educational worth. Miss Holmes and Mr. Buchanan will conclude their waltz-song duo from Leharr's Merry Widow and will also sing "Love Dreams," a charming little number. Mr. Courtman will sing "Shine On O' Harvest Moon," for the last day. Last night in all the storm the Nickel had large crowds.

CHANGE OF PROGRAMME FOR THE CAMERAPHONE

The Old Stage Door on the Paramount Stage Johnny's efforts will be the cameraphone headliner for today. Mulvey and Moulton, the whistling boys, will render "The Whistling Borey Boys," a charming little number. Mr. Courtman will sing "Shine On O' Harvest Moon," for the last day. Last night in all the storm the Nickel had large crowds.
