AN OPPORTUNITY

There is money in fruit-farming. There is also health and happiness in the occupation. The owner of the property knows that with reasonable care and forethought he has an assured income. A climate suited to fruit-culture is a healthy climate in which to live. It is not subject to violent extremes of temperature. The fruit-farmer knows that he has a market which, if not always yielding large profits, is certain to yield an average profit sufficient to afford him a competence. He is a king in his own domain, undisturbed by political changes, the fluctuations of the stock market, the industrial war, or any other of the influences that worry less fortunate people. The man who is making money in the strenuous west dreams of a time when he can go to British Columbia and buy a fruit farm.

Why British Columbia? Why not New Brunswick?

Readers of the Times are advised to read with care the interview in this issue with Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, who has returned after a visit to the Okeanos country in British Columbia, convinced that our own people are not living up to their opportunities.

It will be remembered that some years ago the Pacific province had an exhibit at a St. John fair, in charge of Mr. R. E. Gosnell, who talked eloquently about the possibilities of the Okeanos valley as a fruit growing centre, just then beginning to attract attention. He had samples of the fruits to prove the truth of his statements. Since then fruit culture have made great strides, and one section of British Columbia is described as the "banana belt," although it does not produce that fruit.

Mr. Estabrooks tells us that New Brunswick men are engaging in fruit culture in British Columbia. Why go so far afield? There are orchards at Hampstead and elsewhere along the St. John, and in Kings and Carleton and other counties which have proved that it is not necessary to go west to engage in fruit culture. New Brunswick fruit shown at fall fairs tells the same story. One of the leading orchardists of the Annapolis Valley told this paper a year or two since that the apples which Nova Scotia ships to the British market will grow as successfully, and produce an individuality in flavor perhaps superior in quality to that of Nova Scotia apples, in several portions of New Brunswick, notably the St. John valley.

The Times believes that the people of New Brunswick would be taking a distinct forward step in the advancement of the material interests of the province if they would pay more attention to fruit culture. Proximity to the port of St. John, and through it to the great markets of the old country gives a special advantage to New Brunswick growers, enabling them to export their surplus from cold-storage warehouses here to the finest market in the world.

This subject should be taken up more vigorously by farmers' institutes, by the government and by the press. The development of a great fruit raising industry is one very effective method of increasing the population and attracting the most valuable class of new settlers to the province.

SWIMMING

Appropos of the series of articles on swimming, which begins in the Times today, it is worthy of note that the Toronto Mail and Empire advocates a public swimming pool in every public school in that city, so that every child could learn to swim. As already stated in this paper, there are such pools in many of the English public schools. Not only would this furnish the child with an additional safeguard to life, but the hygienic advantage of frequent baths would be valuable.

"Children," says the Mail and Empire, "should be taught to swim, and the responsibility for this part of their education should be placed individually upon the parents or collectively upon the state. There is hardly an argument that supports compulsory education that is not also in favor of the compulsory teaching of swimming."

While it is true that ability to swim does not always save life, it is nevertheless true that the swimmer has the best chance for life in a struggle in the water after an accident, and therefore all children should be taught to swim.

Those interested in the work of providing a new home for the Sailor's Mission in St. John will be glad to learn of the progress made in a like enterprise in Montreal. The Herald says:—"Of the $60,000 required for the enlargement of the Montreal Sailors' Institute, $32,150 has already been subscribed, and Mr. J. Ritchie Bell, the energetic manager of the institute hopes that when the new building is opened the balance of $28,000 will have been collected."

One hundred and thirty-eight new building permits were issued by the Montreal building inspector, during July, involving a total outlay of $643,503, on construction work. This, says the Witness, is a very high figure for the time of year, and it brings the total for new buildings under construction in the current year to $5,351,616.

The large, smooth, grass-covered Victoria playground, on which many hundreds of children might have indulged in free play all through the summer holidays, have been closed because money enough could not be raised to pay for a caretaker. Less than a hundred dollars would have done it.

The playground report submitted by Miss Mabel Peters to the National Council of Women is published in today's Times, and is worthy of the attention of all readers, for the value of supervised playgrounds is becoming more and more widely recognised.

Two new features will interest readers of today's Times. One is the beginning of a new series of articles of a series of articles on swimming by an English expert now in this city.

Men who refuse to accept work now when it is offered them will be begging dimes next winter and complaining that they cannot get anything to do. Or perhaps women will be working to support them then, as some are doing now.

It is pleasing to note that the mayor and aldermen are carefully considering a much needed change in the conduct of the civic departments.

JUMPED INTO SEA
FAR FROM THE LANDNorwegian Sailors Leap From Their Ship to Escape Trouble

Moncton, N. B., Aug. 2.—With their ship five miles from the nearest land, two Norwegian sailors yesterday jumped from the bark Auguste Leffer into the Straits of Northumberland. A little later they were rescued by a passing boat and taken to Shediac, where they have been given employment.

The escape of the two men was a dramatic one. With another sailor of the same ship, which was at Point du Chene for several days, they deserted some time ago and ran away. Constable Belyea, of Shediac, was sent after the trio, catching them with some difficulty and they put up quite a stubborn resistance before being taken back to the vessel which was bound for Preston (Eng.), and sailed from Point du Chene yesterday morning.

When the ship was some five miles out, two of the sailors, though wearing their heavy boots and usual clothing, jumped overboard into the sea. A ship's boat was promptly lowered by orders of the captain but was swamped by the heavy seas and the two men were left struggling in the water.

ASPIRATION

How should I be the master of my ways
When every nerve is vibrant to the sweep
Of dreams that fill the measure of my days,
Too rare to lose and past all power to keep?
When every path has its alluring strain,
How should I know what it is alluring strain,
Each towering crest its world-revealing view
Of realms for him that has the will to reign,
And while I waver, lo! this earthly shard,
Wherein is breathed the swift compelling
fire,
Breaks with the order it was shaped to guard
Yet, ever striving, humbly I aspire
Ere all be spent, with reverent hands to
A guiding star on some hope-kindling height.

IN LIGHTER VEIN
NOW THEY DON'T SPEAK.

Farmer Cornish—Fine; I've got ten cows for the railroad to run over and any number of hogs for the auto feller. I oughter clear $300.

TOOK THE BAIT.
She (setting the trap)—I heard yesterday that you are to be married in the spring.
He (walking into it)—Help me to make the report true, won't you, dear?

A POLITE SUGGESTION.
"I dreamed last night that I proposed to you."
"Oh! What did you dream that I said?"
"I dreamed that you said no."
"I don't believe in dreams; do you?"

ESTIMATE AND COST.
"Ah, that's pretty!" said Mr. Snooks, looking over a number of architectural designs. "What is that?"
That," said the architect, "is a fifteen-hundred-dollar bungalow."
"What will it cost to build it?" asked Mr. Snooks.
"About $8,000," said the architect.

CONTENTMENT.
"Who is the happier: the man who has a million or the one who has seven children?"
"The man who has seven children."
"But why?"
"Because the man who has a million desires more, and the man with seven children has sufficient."

WANT CITY
TO BUILD ITC. P. R. Asks City to Build
Grain Conveyor to New York

At a meeting of the board of works yesterday afternoon a communication from the C. P. R. to the effect that the city was expected to erect the grain conveyor to the new wharf was considered. It was decided that as the Empress steamers would likely use the new berth the company should be asked to do the work.

A complaint from Clark and Adams that the site for the new warehouse was not ready was referred to the west side committee. On the application of William Thomson & Co. for berths 1 and 2 for next season it was decided to ask the firm for a list of the sailings the Allen line would guarantee with the dates. It was the sense of the board that if the reply was satisfactory the request should be granted.

Francis Kerr was heard with reference to a request to widen the wharf at Sydney slip, and the matter was referred to the director and recorder.

The director was requested to see what could be done toward filling in the pond at the eastern end of Broad street.

It was decided to recommend the council to ask the I. C. R. to move their tracks from the outside to the inside of the D. A. R. warehouse. The director will report on the cost of an extension of the wharf there by means of cribs.

Some minor matters were discussed and the board adjourned.
