"Cheap" Shops.—As an instructive instance of the evils of underselling, it may not be uninteresting to some of our trademen to be informed that the books of a green of Leeds, who failed the other day, prove that he lost no less than £30 per week by selling "cheap sugar"—Leeds Times.

THE CHARTIST PETITION.—The Spectator, in allusion to the number of men (500,000) who it was stated were to proceed to the House of Commons with the Chartist petition, says, "if they marched in ranks of twenty a breast, and as close as operand from hoel to heel, they would reach fourteen onides long."

Curran, cross-examining a horse-jockey's servant, asked his master's age. "I never put my hand in his mouth to try," answered the witness. The laugh was against the counsel, until he retorted, "You did perfectly right, friend, for your master is said to be a great bite."

A Yankee editor, speaking of poultry, saya, "Much attention has been paid to the rearing of poultry in the West, and the method now in use of hatching chickings I consider far superior to the Egyptian node of hatching them in ovens. It is simply to fill a barrel with eggs, head it up, and set a hen upon the bang."
