It is not a pleasing or reassuring a street car or an approaching team, thought for Canadians that at a time when the money trusts and other trusts Why should Canada subsidize fast they are tightening their grip on this country, under the government of a party which has always helped them to play their game.

Neither is it assuring at a time when great reforms for the benefit of the common people are in progress in England, under a government which does not fear in the public interest to assail the citadel of special privilege, to have in Canada a commons. government which refuses to lift the If the American embargo on potato burdens from the people, and which is in close alliance with the interests which profit by the existence and accumulation of those burdens.

If the American embargo on posterior is not removed, New Brunswick farmers will raise a smaller quantity, instead of enlarging their operations as they had planned to do. That will be bad for the established.

The Borden government is allied with the interests which profit from existing conditions, and we find that the actual burden of the tariff has been greater in the last year than it was under the Lauring in the sea-board province as in the Philadelphia Record.

Dr. Michael Clark, M. P., told the people of Nova Scotia he was sorry he did not stay in that province instead of settling in Alberta. He believed he could make as great a success of farming in the sea-board province as in the Philadelphia Record.

What the country needs is tariff reduction downwards, and a lightening of the burden of taxation. The lowering of the American tariff has not resulted in a flooding of that market with cheap forflooding of that market with cheap foreign goods. The attempt of the manufacturers and the money trust to create a panic has failed. When they are convinced of its failure they will resume business activity, at a lesser margin of profit perhaps, and a lesser proportion of quickly made millionaires; but with more advantage to the consumers. The new work has chear and the will resume the colder weather that came on the event of Yew."

Presently it was seen that the dust was being raised by an enormous herd of buffalo, stretching over a wide space o country and being hunted by Blackfeet Indians. Colonel Steele and his party formed a barricade of carts and took refuge behind them. Fortunately they succeeded in breaking the herd in two or else they would have been trampled out of existence.

Tubercular germs always attack when the system is weakened from colds or sickness, overwork, overstrain, confining duties or any drain which has reduced the resistive forces of the body. But nature always provides a corrector and the best physicians emphasize that during changing climate our blood should be kept rich and pure and active by taking Scott's Emulsion after meals; the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion warms the body by enriching the blood—it peculiarly strengthens the lungs and upbuilds the resistive forces of the body to avoid colds and prevent consumption. WILSON'S INVALIDS' a la Quina du Pérou

The natives of Peru, South America, discovered the tonic qualities contained in the bark of what they called the "Kin Ki" tree. Some time later, in 1638, the Countess of Cinchon, the wife of a Spanish Viceroy, was cured of a malignant fever by an infusion of this bark, afterwards called Cinchona Bark, in wine.

This discovery has been of inestimable value to Medical Science, and this value has never been more emphasized than in its introduction to Wilson's Invalida' Port (à la Quina du Pérou).

Expert knowledge and chemical skill of a high order were required to combine in this palatable preparation the necessary active constituents, which on account of its nourishing and digestive properties is especially useful in the treatment of extreme weakness after operations, nervous disorders, sleeplessness, etc.
