Health and vigor depend upon the quality and quantity of the blood. HUMANITARIAN

The liver is the great secretory organ of the body and when it fails to perform its office, bile accumulates and the blood becomes poisoned, causing many unpleasant symptoms, such as: dull, heavy, languid feeling, indigestion to attend to dinner, pain in back or shoulders, sour stomach, constipation, dryness of the skin, restlessness at night, etc.

If these symptoms are not dealt with immediately, they become aggravated so as to induce severe illness. To relieve at once and cure permanently

LOUGHEED BILL

Report of the proceedings at the meeting of the committee of the Senate on Banking and Commerce dealing with Hon. Mr. Lougheed's Bill respecting the operations of officers of International Unions in Canada.

June 4, 1903.

Hon. Mr. Dandurand in the chair.

The Chairman—This bill was brought up before and held over on the suggestion of an honorable member, is it your pleasure to adopt it or what?

Mr. Lougheed—I might say that the promoter of the bill that at this stage I do not intend discussing its merits, but I understand that various representatives present from the various organizations, representing labor unions and employees, and I would suggest to the committee that these representatives should be heard as to the merits and demerits of the bill.

The Chairman—Anyone desirous of addressing the committee will be good enough to step up this way.

The Chairman—Is it your pleasure to hear them?

An Hon. Member—Traditions are to be respected, but I wonder if we could not abolish one of them and adjourn to the chamber. Traditions should not prevail when necessity commands us not to.

An Employer—I might say to the committee—

The Chairman—Who do you represent?

Answer—The Board of Trade of Montreal.

The Chairman—In favor of the bill or not?

Answer—In favor of it.

The Chairman—I think we had better hear the opposition first.

An Hon. Member—Pardon me, but I think it quite proper that those in favor of the bill should be heard as to their reasons for favoring it.

The Chairman—No, I say that we will hear those opposed to the bill first.

Mr. J. O'Donoghue—I am opposed to the bill, and represent the opposing interests. I was going to suggest that, in accordance with ordinary procedure, and so that we may know what we have in mind, I should hear those in favor of the bill first.

The Chairman—It is quite true that this bill would have to be passed in a week, only we waited to hear you, and, if course, you will have the right to a short reply.

Mr. O'Donoghue—Thank you. In order to save the time of the committee, and in order to avoid unnecessary talk, we have prepared a written statement, and we do not intend to bother you outside of listening to it.

The Chairman—I need hardly say to be as brief as you can.

Mr. O'Donoghue—That is why we prepared it in this way.

Mr. O'Donoghue—There is no restriction upon him whatever.

Q.—You speak for all the labor organizations?

A.—What position do you hold?

A.—I am counsel for them.

Q.—Legal counsel?

A.—Yes, legal adviser.

Q.—That may be taken as a confirmation of what may be said from a labor point of view?

A.—Yes, but, with your kind permission, we have a couple who might say a word or two on our subject.

Senator (Gibson)—Before the other gentlemen are called upon, I might say that this is a very important document, and before we discuss the matter, I think it should become the property of the committee, so that it might be printed, and assist us in reaching a conclusion, as it will then give us each an opportunity to study the cause. I do not want to presume on any committee here and see many features in connection with it, and speaking as an employer of labor, I know of the difficulties on both sides. I think that this beautiful essay should be distributed, not only to the members of the committee, but to the members of the various unions all over the country. It should become an official document of this committee, so that it can deal with it.

Mr. O'Donoghue—Mr. Hall, representing the railway organizations, might now be heard.

The Chairman—Before Mr. Hall speaks, might I ask the speakers opposite to this bill to address themselves to one feature, namely, the feature of international organizations, that is, the effect the bill would have on the financial arrangement between Canada and the U.S. in international organizations.

Mr. H. Hall—I might state for the information of the committee that I am the legislative representative of the railway organizations in Canada, including the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the firemen, brakemen, telegraphers, and other unions, and I might state that legislation of this description should not be placed upon the statute book. There is not a gentleman who would not ask why such was done, and who would dispute that labor organizations have conducted their business in a creditable manner, and in a way that might very well be copied by the manufacturing interests of the country. Now, sir, I want to say that, so far as the financial feature of this is concerned, that the bill itself strikes a blow at international organizations. In organizations that I have been connected with for the past 25 years, and which it has been our object to build up, there has been a benefit to the men belonging to them, and to the country as a whole. We have an insurance feature covering $47,000,000, of which $2,000,000 is taken up in Canada, and we have a protective fund of $250,000 that has been contributed to by Canadians for their protection in case of age or accident.

An Hon. Senator—I do not wish to interrupt you, but there is not a word in the bill respecting that.

Mr. Hall—I want to show you where it will affect us. I think there should be some reasonable argument in the matter, especially as it is a matter affecting the labor organizations we represent. As I was saying, we have a reserve fund of $250,000.

Q.—That is all trades?

Mr. Hall—The conductors alone. The other organizations are in a similar position. There are 30,000 men in the railway organization, with 2,000 Canadians, and the rest of the organization is distributed throughout the country.

Mr. Hall—It will interfere with international organizations?

Mr. H. Hall—I might state for the information of the committee that I am the legislative representative of the railway organizations in Canada, including the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the firemen, brakemen, telegraphers, and other unions, and I might state that legislation of this description should not be placed upon the statute book. CANADA AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The Forestry and Fisheries of that Country to Have Large Representation.

(By Louis Larive.)

St. Louis, Mo., June 26.—Canada will take part in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition as a nation. Such was the decision given by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, of Canada, from his seat in the House of Commons, to an enquiry made to the Government by one of the Canadian members of Parliament.

The great "silver-tongued" man of Canada meant what he said. The news just received from Ottawa, the seat of the Canadian Government, is to the effect that extensive preparations are being made to show to the world the immense resources possessed by the neighbors to the north.

Canada has grown and prospered wonderfully during the last decade. Its trade has increased to enormous proportions. Its crops have been such as to merit for Canada abroad the title of "granary of the world." Its mines and other fields, particularly those of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, have been developed in such a way as to set down the most pessimistic, and it is now generally conceded that the finest jewel of Great Britain's crown can more than amply make good for minerals, while it exports annually millions worth of grain, fish, lumber and timber.

Of the industries based upon natural resources, the fisheries rank second in demands were refused, and we believe they will have their charter cancelled. We could not on the same terms, but they would simply sever us from the international union.

An Hon. Member—And would you lose your insurance then?

Mr. Pelletier—We would then; that is what keeps us from doing this; under this proposed Act a man would be put in jail right off if he were to come here and center on labor troubles. Labor troubles are a bad thing, but we as railway circles have increased our salaries 100 per cent, and have added 300 per cent to the efficiency of the railway staff. We have added millions to the value of transportation facilities, and have built up besides a conservative organization, working for the betterment of its members and for the public as a whole. I remember, sir, when 90 per cent of our men were addicted to strong drink, and I might state that that is what started us on our road to success. We got together, and 30 years have passed, and you are lifting a club to strike at the men who were our strength, and we are now our own standard. We say, No, we want business methods. I feel so sure that you will not pass this bill, because you have heard what we have said against it, and I think that if we were to come here before we would understand each other better. For 25 or 30 years we have been building up, and all that time there have been just four strikes in this country, and we have been getting ourselves on being pretty good, when all of a sudden, in the midst of these jubileations, we have this bill thrust upon us.

An Hon. Member—It does not affect you?

Mr. Pelletier—Why not? If we go to a man and say, "You have not raised our wages, our hours are longer than they were, and we think we should get a little more per mile, because our trains are longer, and we do a great many more miles we used to. We have no recourse. This bill becomes law, and we cannot have the advice of the international office in the matter."

An Hon. Member—There is nothing in this to prevent him coming and discussing it with you.

Mr. Pelletier—But don't you see that as far as we are concerned, it makes us an unprofitable association.

An Hon. Member—No.

Mr. Pelletier—But we say yes. When I ask you a question, you must remember there is no protection of the international office in the matter. The fraternal and beneficial features of the organization are not necessary, but if you deprive us of a feature of protection, we will have to withdraw from the international organization. It will mean this, that we have not the number here to enable us to get good men. Fifteen hundred men cannot employ good executive officers and give good service to the international organization. It would throw brakemen, firemen, engineers and conductors and others all into the same organization, and trouble would commence immediately. It means that the A.R.U. is not for that. That if that bill becomes law it means that that will be repeated in Canada.

Q.—What does that mean?

A.—It means the American Railway Union. You cannot make a good organization running these men together any more than you can get a good garden by mixing potatoes, cabbage and everything else up together. I, therefore, must say in conclusion, that I hope you will not pass this bill.

Mr. Pelletier, M.P.—With your permission, I will withdraw these men together, brought up whether this same class of legislation was operated in the United States. A sufficient answer to that is that there are many in this room who go across and argue the other side of the bill of the line. There are men here now who are head officers in the international organization. In addition to that, I have the honor to belong myself to an international organization, and I am glad to see their good sense, for they chose a Canadian for five years for their head officer. Of course he removed to the United States, but he did the business representing 40,000 printers on this continent. I want to say a word about the unwisdom of the state of mind in regard to this matter. There are strained relations between employer and employe at this time, and it becomes our responsibility. We have heard a large number of the leading labor representatives of this country, men representing labor organizations, and I say it becomes our responsibility to understand our responsibility. We have heard a large number of the leading labor representatives of this country, men representing labor organizations, and I say it becomes our responsibility to understand our responsibility. Canada. This country has over 5,600 miles of sea coast, in addition to inland seas, innumerable lakes, and a great number of rivers. The exports of the fishery products in 1897 amounted to $22,783,546. The home consumption is estimated at a value of $15,000,000, giving a total yield from the fisheries of nearly $38,000,000 annually, exclusive of the catch by foreign fishermen.

The sea, inshore and inland fisheries of Canada furnish cod, mackerel, halibut, haddock, herring, hake, salmon, alewife, striped bass, smelt, lake trout, mackinnow, whitefish, sturgeon, pike, perch, black bass, brook trout, pike, eel, gold eye, bass, cisco, herring, hake, seal, walrus, and walrus.

The richest whaling regions in the world are said to exist in the Hudson Bay and Arctic regions of Canada.

The Pacific Coast fisheries furnish halibut, black cod, oolichan, anchovy, herring, smelt, and many species of salmon and trout. The salmon of British Columbia are worth over $5,000,000 annually, and the total yield of the fisheries of that province exceeds $6,000,000.

Lumbering ranks third among the extractive industries of Canada, and the forest wealth is very great. It is stated that 123 species of trees grow in that country, 94 occurring east of the Rocky Mountains, and 29 on the Pacific Coast. The forest belt extends a distance of about 4,000 miles east and west, with a breadth of some 700 miles. The trees consist principally of the following species: Black and white spruce, bank spruce, balsam poplar, aspen, canoe birch, birch, cherry, white cedar, black ash and mountain ash occur sparingly in the southern part of this belt.

British Columbia is thought to possess the greatest compact reserve of timber in the world. The wooded area is estimated at 285,000 square miles, and includes many kinds of timber. The Douglas spruce is the show tree of British Columbia, and in excess of Canada.

The forests of Canada contain pine, spruce, hemlock, oak, elm, maple, beech, birch, butternut, hickory, basswood, etc. Nearly 35 per cent of its whole area is forested.

In 1899 the capital invested in the pulp mills of Canada alone was about $15,000,000. The capacity of the mills was over 1,200 tons per day. The value of the forest products exported in 1901 was nearly $33,000,000, and their total must have been at least three times that amount.

It will readily be seen that, indeed, Canada has something to show, and she intends to spring a universal surprise next year. Mr. William H. Hatcher, Canadian Exposition Commissioner, is just back in Ottawa from Japan, where he represented his country at the Osaka Exposition. Mr. Hatcher's trip to Japan is certain to be of considerable future benefit to Canada, and already shipments of wheat and flour have been made to the Far East country just visited by him.

The Canadian Commissioner is now actively engaged in making preparations for the World's Fair at St. Louis. On his way home from Vancouver to Ottawa he made preliminary arrangements for a thoroughly representative exhibit of timber, fisheries, and mining industries of Canada. British Columbia will furnish the forest monster and an effort will be made to obtain the largest and longest tree of Douglas fir ever shown.

The salmon canning industry of the Pacific Coast and the numerous kinds of fish from the Maritime Provinces will be well represented at the Exposition in St. Louis. Canada is second to none in her natural resources, and her showing of next year will prove it.

AN APPEAL

To Organized Labor to Assist the C.A.R. Trackmen in their Struggle for Justice.

Ottawa, June 15th, 1903.

Brothers—You all know of the struggle now going on between the C.A.R. and the P.R.R. and the struggle between the trackmen, and it is not necessary to recount here the details of the efforts put forth by the Trackmen's Union to get a settlement on peaceful terms. Arbitration was offered; a reduction of the original demand was made, but all was of no avail. The company steadfastly refused to make any concessions, and have lately decided that they will not recognize the union in any form. The demand of the men for a wage of $1.30 per day for section men, and $1.85 for foremen, can
