R SEVEN YEARS I LINGERED

But is your watch or your money the most valuable of your possessions? Not by a wide margin. Unless one owns himself, what's the good of his owning anything else? And what is yourself? Why, your health, your self-respect, your liberty, your happiness. What is wealth compared to these? or, anout them? Poor Robin-son Crusoe on his island had a heap of propped up with pillows. What a miserable fate was this for a girl only fifteen years old. To be sure, there are thousands and thousands of others no better off, yet how is any consolation to be got out of that?

Writing about this experience recently she says: "I was so pale, thin and springing a leak. She lies in a dangerous position, and will undoubtedly be a total wreck. The crew is safe.

That is, the doctor thought she would never live to be eighteen. No doubt he was honest in that opinion, and her appearance seemed to justify him in it; but, all the same he should have done his best for her and kept his gloomy forebodings to himself. For, you see, all ill persons hope to be bet-ter soon, and although it doesn't al-ways cure, hope is nevertheless a good

Then came great pain between the shoulders, and a sinking, all-gone feeling. Later on abscesses broke out on various parts of my body, and I rapidly got so weak I was unable to walk. As for food, I couldn't swallow anything solid; it seemed to stick in my throat, and I was fed on beef-tea, port wine and cod-liver oil."

At this point in her letter she states

At this point in her letter she states the facts we have already given in the third paragraph of this little narra-

She concludes in the following words: For seven years I lingered on in this way, power being able to do anything for myself. During all this time I was fed wholly on slops. No one imagined I should ever get better. When I was twenty-one I took a slight turn for the better, but was never well, being always feeble and scarcely able to get about. With many ups and downs I continued to suffer until July of last year. (1992) when I heard as Selected. year (1892), when I heard of Seigel's Syrup, and made up my mind to try it. I got a bottle from Mr. Edmor chemist, Rawmarsh, and after taking chemist, Rawmarsh, and after taking it for a fortnight my appetite improved and my food agreed with me. I kept on with the Syrup and gained strength daily. Soon I was so much better that friends from a distance did not know me. Now I take an occasional dose of the Syrup, and keep in good health. I praise Seigel's Syrup to all." Yours truly, (signed) (Mrs.) Louisa Barsby, Rose Hill, Rawmarsh, near Rotherham. May 19th, 1893.

Little is needed to complete this in Little is needed to complete this interesting story. Of its absolute truthfulness the reader may rest assured. The disease so fortunately cured by Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup was not consumption but its counterfeit (but often its cause), Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Parents will do well to make a note of this fact, as thousands of young persons are swept away by being wrongly treated for a disease they do not have.

Even good doctors may be mistaken and prophesy falsely. But they should never quench the light of hope.

AMHERST Amherst, N. S., Dec. 30.-This after noon the new parish house in connection with Christ church was formally opened by Bishop Courtney in the presence of a large number of parish-ioners. Tonight Rev. V. E. Harris, rector elect of Christ church, was, by public institution, made rector of that church by Bishop Courtney. Rev. Mr. Wiggins of Sackville was present and took part in the service. The sermon was preached by the bishop.

The meeting held here night under the auspices the board of trade, appe the necessary stock to start a v factory in Amherst. T. E. Bunker of Kingston, Ont., the originator of the scheme, proposed the organizing of the company with $50,000 capital, fifty per cent paid up.
Rousing meetings are still being held by Evangelists Crossley and Hunter, at several of which many were un-

THE BLACKMAIL CASE.

The Case of Rev. Mr. Brown Against Mrs Davidson Before the Police Court.

San Francisco, Dec. 30.—The case of Mrs. Mary Davidson, charged with extortion by Rev. C. O. Brown, whom she accused of intimacy with Miss Mattle Overman and from whom it is claimed she obtained $500 as hush money, was called in the police court today. Dr. Brown claims that he paid the woman the money to secure evi-dence on which to insure her convic-tion, while the woman's allegation is that the money was for another wo-man, a Mrs. Baddin, who cannot be man, a Mrs. Baddin, who cannot be found, but who, Mrs. Davidson claims, rented a room to Dr. Brown to meet Miss Overman. The attorney for Mrs. Davidson applied for a change of venue on the grounds of prejudice, finally explaining that Police Judge Campbell was unfriendly to Dr.Brown. This statement coming from the defence caused general surprise. The ence caused general surprise. The court denied the motion for a change of venue, stating that he had no quar-rel with Dr. Brown, whom he be-lieved to be a truthful and upright gentleman. Dr. Brown, in the course of a sermon on Corruption, read a of a sermon on Corruption, read a grand jury report, scoring the courts and judge severely. On this occasion Judge Campbell, who was in the church, remained in his seat and asked permission to correct Mr. Brown. The latter invited 'the judge to the pulpit, when Campbell explained that the observe was the work of a lying. charge was the work of a lying grand jury, absolving Dr Brown, however, from any imputation of untruthfulness. Mrs. Davidson's attorney appeared for a reduction of the prisoner's ball from $3,000 to a lower sum. The court reduced the bail to $2,000, with the occurrence of Brown's attorney, who stated that he would consent to a still further reduction provided the court was satisfied the woman would be in court when needed.

Mrs. Davidson addressed the court herself, dramatically stating that no sum of money would induce her to leave town and that she would be on hand "until this unholy thing should be exposed in the light of heaven."

now cleared up. The Rydal Holme's cargo has gone into consumption, but a good proportion of that by the Nether Holme has been put into stock, and, no doubt, it will command very good prices. The stock is unusually low, and, with only the smallest average sale, must be cleared long before the spring arrivals. There is likely to be a great demand for timber in this district after the New Year (many important contracts are already let), and we are sure to have a lively time of it in our particular line. Lumley, Lloyd & Co. have the Vanloe in port with spruce from St. John N. B., but as this cargo is all going forward ex "ship" it does not affect the stock. harge was the work of a lying grand

The case then went over until Friday. The court room was crowded with friends of both Mrs. Davidson and Mr. Brown.

BRITISH LUMBER MARKET

The British lumber market is sent, but continues firm. The Livertreal and its neighborhood and in a general election, with the fiscal policy of the country at issue, such a reverse would not occur. The party leaders, in view of the two defeats, ought to take measures to restore harmony and to heal differences."

Montreal, Dec. 30.—The Herald will say editorially tomorrow morning: "The opposition and the government have met again face to face and the government has been again defeated by a large majority. In Jacques Cartier, a constituency which, like Montreal and the stock of spruce on hand in this country, and the probability of a small import for some time to come, there appears every probability of a sill further advance in prices for these goods during the winter months."

APPLES IN LIVERPOOL. Messrs. Woodall & Co. report from Liverpool on Dec. 14th regarding apples: Arrivals this week, 37,276 bbls.; arrivals last week, 21,741 bbls.; arrivals to date, 248,183 bbls.; against last season, 593,437 bbls. Receipts this week are the largest of the season and are mostly from Canada, the bulk of which again showed excellent quality and as very attractive. A new feature is acking this fruit in boxes, which is istinctly a non-success. They realized from 5s. to 8s. 3d., and similar fine descriptions such as King's ship-ped at same time in barrels, realised proportionately higher prices (say 21s. to 27s.), and it has repeatedly been lemonstrated that the barrel is unoubtedly the best package for ap-les. There has been an excellent denand throughout the week, and at yesterday's sales the market closed rm on all good sound varieties at an advance of 1s. per barrel, but out-of-condition and inferior were difficult to sell. The supply of Newtown and Albemarle Pippins has been moderate, ter prices for all qualities have been obtained, up to 27s. being touched for a choice barrel of the latter.
