"If examinations were made of everyone, people would be surprised at the number of persons walking about suffering from heart disease."

This startling statement was made by a dootor at a recent inquest. "I should not like to say that heart disease is as common as this would imply," said the expert, "but I am sure that the number of persons going about with weak hearts must be very large."

"Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that kills them that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is made apparent."

"But undoubtedly heart weakness, not disease, is more prevalent newadays. I should think that the stress of living, the wear and rush of modern business life, have a lot to do with heart trouble."

There is no doubt but that this is correct, and we would strongly advise any one suffering in any way from heart trouble to try a course of Milburn's Heart and Norve Pills.

Sammy. In a month the feud had accounted for two—Elsie's long, lanky brother; Simon, and Sammy's sullen father, Jonas Grant. And Mr. Sammy wrote this note to Elsie Latham, so that there might be no more misunderstanding on his account: "Deer Elsie: Me and you aint in enny fude are we Elsie. I love you like sixty your true hart." "SAMMY."

"SAMMY."

MURDERER PARDONED

AFTER ELEVEN YEARS Montreal Man, Whose Sentence Was Com-

muted to Life Imprisonment on Eve of When the patient, long-suffering teacher announced recess, the mountain children scampered out upon the playground and fell to at their noisy games. There were tops and leapfrog and marbles, but the greatest interest hung about the twirling tops. Elsie Latham, the slim, dark, solemn elf-child, had the hightest top and lost it. Sammy Grant, who was fair, blue-eyed and curly-headed, found the gaudy toy and restored it to Elsie, while the girl was still weeping for the bauble. Elsie's bly brother, Tom, thing, Sammy had caused the tears, struck the lad. Then a still larger Grant struck back—and the Latham, Grant feud was on, a thing grim and fearful. And that night Elsie Latham, who was given overmuch to tears, cried her little heart out, for she feared that harm would come to young Sammy.

In a month the feud had accounted for two-Elsie's long, lanky brother. Execution, Now Goes Free.

on his cot, head in hands, too overcome to answer.

An hour later, still hardly believing it could be true, Mann walked through the prison gate, free.

Mann was arrested after a quarrel in his home on Poupore street. He had been drinking, and after an altercation with his wife, became enraged and drew a revolver. In the attempt to save her daughter, the mother of Mrs. Mann stepped between the crazed husband and cowering weman, and when the smoke cleared, the elder woman lay dead on the floor. The wife was uninjured.

It took the jury but a short time to bring in a verdict, and the judge applied the severest penalty.

A few hours before the death sentence was to have been carried out it was commuted to life imprisonment.

TESSION OF

THE CONFERENCE

TORONTO, Ont., June 21.—Whether there was collusion between Charles McGill and the directors of the Onturio Bank in connection with the holding of a block of the bank's stock
which appears in the name of McGill, is being investigated by Official Referce George Kappele. The inquiry began today in Mr. Kappele's office.
McGill claimed that he had purchased the stock under instructions of directors. He declared that Mr. Cockburn, the president of the defunct bank,
knew as much about the transactions as he did. The late A. M, Smith, who was a director and held 10,000 shares of stock, he said, was also cognizant of what was going on and he (Mr.
Smith) had on one occasion refused to advance money for certain transactions unless Mr. Cockburn would confirm the deal.
