ST. JOHL N. B. SEPTEMBER $, 1900 INDEPENDENCE OF PARLIA-

MENT Five years ago Mr. Mulock, now postmaster general, became troubled about the demoralization of parliament. He saw danger and wrong in the acceptance of office by members of the house, and introduced a bill to make such appointments unlawful. Not only did he propose to forbid the appointment of members to the senate and other desirable positions, but set about to provide that no member should be eligible for office until twelve months after the dissolution of the house. Speaking in support of his measure,

Mr. Mulock said : · · · ·

Not less than seventeen memters chosen by the people were taken from their places in parliament and put "into preitions of emolument.

After stating that men then in the house had the promise of office, Mr. Mulock proceeded :

If the government of today can dangle public offices before their followers, and induce a few, and perhaps an increasing numter, to aspire to these positions instead of representing their constituents here, and exercising an unbiased judgment and a wholesome influence upon the administration of the day, they become mere parasites upon the administration, and cease to' voice the cpinion of their constituents. Not only do they do that, but moving about among their colleagues, they become; as it were, corrupting agencies within their own ranks. So it has become, in my opinion, a crying evil, and parliament is cast down from its high resition. There is even a worse evil growing out of this abuse.' All through the country the electorate, noticing these things, are oming to the conclusion that the highest aim a man can have 'in' seeking public life is that he may, through parliament, find his way into a comfortable position for life, Thus we have coming into; public life, office seekers, place hunters, instead of those. ready to make sacrifice for love of their country.

He has often sounded the praises of Sir Charles Tupper, and still does so in his candid moments. The real opinion of Dr. Hannay, the historian, was expressed not long ago in words like these: "Sir Charles Tupper is one of the

Mr. Mulock's view was supported in still stronger language by Mr. Lister, who afterwards sat in the present parliament with the promise of office, and is today a judge.

SENATOR ELLIS.

The announcement, that Mr. J. V. Ellis has been appointed to the senate will not be so much of a surprise to the readers of the Sun as to those few unfortunates who confine their political reading to the government press. It has been well understood that Mr. Ellis would not again be a candidate in St. John with Mr. Blair's consent. It was equally certain that he would not be easily crowded out against his own will. On the whole, it is creditable to Mr. Ellis that he has stood out alone in the house of commons among the New Brunswick supporters of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as one who was not controlled absolutely by the minister of railways. Mr. Blair has little use for a member of parliament who is not properly submissive to himself as minister, nor properly appreciative of the class of opportunists, contractors, go-betweens, and political bargainers, who swarm in Mr. Blair's vicinity.

It will also be learned at an early day whether the removal of Mr. Ellis from the political field will make a place for Mr. Blair as a candidate or for some other man who satisfies the requirements of the minister.

Mr. Ellis has a large number of personal friends in St. John who will rejoice that he has reached a position presenting maritime province constituwhere he can yet enjoy the pleasure of public life and be free from much of its anxiety. He has rendered much service to his party, and has earned to the others there are no signs of a his rest and reward. He was a native of Northum-berland. England. He is survived by six sons, four daughters and many grandchildren. He was well and favorably known, and in his younger years took an active part in church and public affairs.

The death occurred at an early hour on Wednesday of John McFadden, one of the most popular members of the police force. The deceased, who was born at Buctouche, was 29 years of age and had been on the force about two years. He was a good officer and his death will be deeply regretted by the force and by all who knew him. The death occurred Wednesday at Sackville of Mrs. Powell, widow of the late Edmund Powell of Richibucto, and mother of H. A. Powell, M. P. of Westmorland.
