FOUR SONS OF MR. AND MRS. JOHN TAIT IN UNIFORM

CHESLEY

Three sons overseas on active service, another engaged in home defense, while awaiting his opportunity to get to the front, and the fifth not in uniform only because the doctors have refused to accept him; this is the proud record of the family of Mr. and Mrs. John Tait of 71 Somerset street.

The call of king and country found no closed ears in this family and, while today there are four vacant places around the board, the hearts of the parents are filled with pride when they think of the soldier record of their boys. To have such lads, willing to sacrifice everything in a just cause, is worth more to them than the safety of their sons would be if they were of less worthy material, willing to stay at home while others fought and died in their places.

Chesley left St. John under Captain Sturdee with the first contingent, and is now at the firing line in France. He is twenty-two years of age, and in a recent letter said he was well, and had up to that time escaped injury.

Robert is a member of the 40th Battalion, and is either at the front or en route there. He joined the battalion in Amherst. He is thirty years of age.

Charles, aged eighteen years, is with the 56th Battalion, and Lanzo, aged twenty-five, is a member of the home guards stationed at Partridge Island. He contemplates joining for active service.

The fifth brother has tried repeatedly to join, but was not accepted on account of weak eyes.

CANADIANS MAY GO TO DARDANELLES

Correspondent at Shorncliffe Writes That Veterinary Corps and Dragoons Expect to Go

AMHERST PRAISED

Members of 22nd Say That No Town in Canada Could Have Used Them Better—Training Camp at Shorncliffe Now Covers Large Area—Machine Guns Ready for Use on Transports.

London, June 1.—(Special correspondence to Montreal Gazette).—The last week-end in May was a very busy one in the Canadian camp in the Folkestone district, as it saw the arrival of several battalions, which, it is understood, complete the second division. Within two days three transports docked safely at Plymouth, or rather, at Devonport, which stands in relation to Plymouth as Maitland does to Montreal.

The Carpathians got into Devonport on Friday night with the 27th and 81st Battalions aboard, and it was quickly followed in the early hours of Saturday, May 29, by the 22nd, which carried the 22nd (Montreal) and the 25th (Nova Scotia) Battalions.

Later in the day there arrived the Misenables, carrying the 29th. With some months of experience in disembarking troops, everything now goes like clockwork, and by Sunday morning these four battalions had reached camp. Although there is a railway station known as Sandling Junction close to the camp, they left the train at another point more convenient for traffic, and had a march of six miles into camp shortly after midnight. Fortunately, they had the 24th (Victoria Rifles) had anticipated their arrival and were good enough to supply them with hot drinks and food, as well as to lend a hand in getting their new quarters in order. The official statement was that the voyage of both ships had been calm and without any undue incidents, the health of the men being perfectly satisfactory, and the discipline good.

Amongst the men, however, there seemed to be a feeling of relief at having escaped some great danger, and this was based on a rumor current among them that a transport had been sunk with 300 souls on board, of whom only one escaped. As the Megantic was the ship named by them, it is perfectly evident that the rumor had no foundation at all.

TENTH BATTALION.
Wounded.
Private Robert McAuland, Glasgow, Scotland.

THIRTEENTH BATTALION.
Slightly Wounded.
Private PETER JOHNSON, WOODSTOCK (N. B.).

Private Bernard J. Dahmann, Waterloo (Que.).

FOURTEENTH BATTALION.

Killed in Action.
Private Joseph Carriere, Hochelaga (Que.).

Wounded.

though it so happens that the Megantic outward bound as a passenger ship had a narrow escape on that Sunday.

Some of the men on the Carpathians asserted that they had seen the steamer Spennymore torpedoed, this being one of the acknowledged victims of enemy submarines at the end of the week. It is also asserted that the convoy of one of these two transports had failed to turn up in home waters, in consequence of which the voyage to Plymouth was made alone. For 26 hours the men were kept below deck with the exception of two companies fully armed, and four machine-guns were fixed ready for any emergency.

Good Words For Amherst.

The 22nd had very happy recollections of Amherst, the dictum of two men being that there was not a town in Canada which had done more to make the soldiers happy and comfortable. When the two battalions left Amherst they had a great send-off. It was announced that there would be a march, and the public reading the real meaning of the announcement evinced the liveliest interest and turned out en masse and accompanied the troops to the railway station. Within a few hours they embarked on the Sgawm. On board, the two battalions sailed very happily, the 22nd, composed largely of Scotsmen, native born or by ancestors, taught their French-Canadian compatriots singing Gaelic songs, and in return the Carpathians taught the Scots to sing L'Alouette.

There were also several small units arrived in camp, including the Signal Company, Division Cyclists, and Ammunition Columns.

Covers Large Area.
The Canadian camp now covers an area of several miles and is no longer confined to Shorncliffe Camp. Shorncliffe Camp (which in itself is divided into several sets of barracks) is two miles from Folkestone, and stretching further west along the main railway line to London are St. Martin's Plain, Digby Plain, and Sandling Camps. On Digby Plain are located the 2nd Divisional Engineers.

May Go to Dardanelles.
Major General Steele stated that he has only been in England a few days, but he had already had an important conference with Lord Kitchener, and he was expecting to take an early trip over to France to make arrangements for the time when he will take over the Second Division. Colonel Garnett Hughes has been recalled from France, and is on the general staff as general staff officer, 2nd grade.

No. 2 section of the C. A. Veterinary Corps, which is largely composed of French-Canadian soldiers, the bowels are camp, impatiently waiting for the day when cavalry will be called into action. Rumor has it that the corps may soon be sent to join the Dardanelles expedition.

In the meantime Capt. T. Charles Evans, of No. 1 section, is returning from the front and Capt. F. A. Daigault will take his place. Expectation also exists that the Canadian Dragoons will go to the Dardanelles, and King Edward's Horse at Maresfield Park, Sussex, both of which are now at the front.

Asquith's Two Sons Wounded At Dardanelles

London, June 10, 2.09 a.m.—Lieut. Herbert Asquith, who returned to London recently from the Dardanelles, where he was wounded, is expected shortly to return to the fighting line. His wounds consist of contusions of the face, made by a splinter of shell, which also knocked out several of his teeth and cut his lips.

Lieut. Arthur Asquith, another of the premier's sons, who was wounded in the leg in the Dardanelles two weeks ago, is convalescing in Cairo, and expects to return to active service within a fortnight.

DUKE HIGHLY PLEASED WITH 55TH BATTALION

His Royal Highness Inspected the Troops at Camp Sussex Saturday, and Complimented Officers and Men on Their Appearance—Governor-General Visited Recruits in Hospital Who Were Overcome by Heat During March Past.

Sussex, N. B., June 20.—A clear sky and warm sun gave favorable conditions for the review of the 55th battalion by the Duke of Connaught, and the event has passed, bringing the greatest degree of satisfaction to all concerned. The royal party reached Petford on a special train at midnight Friday and remained there until 9.15 in the morning.

Lieutenant-Colonel McLean, brigadier, was early at the camp and met the duke and his party, who arrived at 10.10. Those composing the party, besides the governor-general, were Lieutenant-Colonel B. A. Stanton, military secretary; Major A. D. Duff, Gordon Highlanders; A. D. C., and General Rutherford.

On arrival at the camp the battalion, under command of Colonel J. B. Kirkpatrick, were drawn up facing the saluting point and presented a royal salute. Major H. S. Jones was second officer in command, and Major S. M. Wetmore, adjutant. Officers in command of Companies were A. Company, Major Bull; B. Company, Captain Woodbridge; C. Company, Captain Campbell; D. Company, Captain Carr.

After the salute the duke passed along the ranks and addressed some words of interest to nearly every man. The recruits who were not in uniform were also drawn up and the royal visitor went through them, and addressed them in the same way.

Major General Steele stated that he has only been in England a few days, but he had already had an important conference with Lord Kitchener, and he was expecting to take an early trip over to France to make arrangements for the time when he will take over the Second Division. sergeant. Twenty men were attested and posted to the different companies on Saturday. Several recruits also arrived. For Monday a special item of interest will be a baseball game between the company playing The Chocolate Soldier and a team from the battalion. Lieutenants Simpson, Murdoch and Fisher have reported for duty.

Many favorable comments are still being made regarding the visit of the Duke of Connaught. The day was very warm and several men were struck by the heat and fell from the ranks, and in each case the duke gave personal directions in their care. He made a visit to the hospital and spoke a kindly word to each patient.

The weather was wet this afternoon, and the time was spent by many of the men in the Y. M. C. A. reading and writing room, others gathered in bell tents and their singing could be heard all over the camp grounds.

WANTS CANADIAN OFFICERS BACK FROM THE FRONT

Ottawa, June 20.—Major General Sam Hughes has sent a special request to the authorities in England, asking that Col. A. A. Currie, M. P., commanding the 4th Toronto Highland Battalion and Col. Frank S. Meighan, commanding the 14th Battalion, Montreal, be allowed home on a month or so furlough in order that they may visit the various camps in the Dominion and instruct the officers and men upon the experience of warfare, which they have gained in action in Flanders. It is expected that the request will be granted. Both officers were through the St. Julien battle and the subsequent actions in which the Canadians have been engaged and have earned the name of veterans.

If Colonel Currie and Colonel Meighan return, Colonel Dave Marshall will take command of the 15th and Colonel Burdall of the 14th. It is possible that this system of granting furlough to Canadian officers may be further extended later so that not only will a well earned rest be given, but the Canadian troops will benefit from the instruction which they are able to impart.

Colonel Chadwick has resigned his command of the Mounted Rifles and has been appointed to assist Colonel Helmer, director of musketry, on the headquarters staff in Ottawa. The reason for Colonel Chadwick's resignation has not been divulged. He will assist at the school of musketry now being conducted at Rockfield.
