Both meetings commence at eight o'clock.

Ladies specially invited.

To the Pastors of City Churches, Compliments of G. Barbour.

Gentlemen:
In a few days you are going to mark your ballot on some very important issues now before our people.
I have no doubt you fully realize this.
Pardon this suggestion:
I know something of the difficulties that confront us in our church work, also the fact of the closing up of many country churches brought about largely by rural depopulation which is already affecting our villages and small towns.
We believe our supply of men for the ministry is thus cut short.
The economic condition of both church and state is brought about by so many of our people going to the urban centres.
I have been urged to accept the candidature in this constituency as one who will support independent of party affiliations any measure introduced for the bettering of our people.
I solicit your influence and co-operation.

Chinese Calligraphy.
The Chinese, according to a Canton paper, recognize the extreme complexity of their written language. About twenty years ago, in the days of the Empress Dowager, a scholar and reformer named Wang Chao, who held the highest obtainable literary degree, conceived the idea of a simplified form to Chinese writing. He invented a phonetic system of symbols, which was promptly handed out revolutionarily and suppressed, while its "radical" author was banished. Later, however, the idea was reintroduced, and the Government has tried a system of the same kind, but more complicated, without much success. Two missionaries of Shanghai have fared better in an effort to revive Wang Chao's phonetic script, which is based on the fact that, although the number of characters is vast, there are only three hundred and eighteen "words-sounds" in the Chinese language—Family Herald.
Pigeons in Londg
The pigeons of London are one of the sights to which the attention of visitors is always drawn. St. Paul's churchyard is a great place of gathering, and here the birds flock down for the more lavish midday meal spread for their benefit, now that rats are less vigorously controlled. They feed out of the hand of their benefactors, perch on their shoulders and flap and glitter to the sunshine as they fly up and down.
At the call of the American Manufacturers Export Association a special conference is to open in New York today to consider practical plans for establishing and maintaining favorable trade relations with the new nations created by the peace treaty.

IN MEMORIAM.
In loving memory of my dear husband, Alfred V. Roth, who died Oct. 16th, 1918.
One year has passed since that sad day.
God took the one I loved away.
Forget him! No, I never will.
As year's roll on I love him still.
Calm and peaceful is thy sleep
In thy cold and silent bed.
Freed from sorrow and from illness
Resting sweetly with the dead.
Friends may think I have forgotten
When at times they see me smile.
But thy little know the sorrow
Which this smile hides all the while.

something like Adam's apples. From the primitive forms of the ancient seas are believed to have come the mammals from which sprang the human race.
It is a long story, but the fact remains that as the human race developed and became more civilized the Adam's apple in men became more prominent. The ancient Greeks depicted their strong heroes and highest types of beauty with prominent "apples," although modern artists and sculptors rather ignore it in their works. As a matter of fact, the wearing of high stocks and collars would seem to point to the fact that man is not altogether proud of displaying his badge of bestiality—Tit-Bits.
