

1
6
1
f
c

And so I gather up into one word the message of that strong heroic soul. It is a word of warning and appeal and reassurance. Having lived a good man's life, he was not afraid to die. He lived that life by faith in the Son of God, and if from the unseen holy he regards us in this place to-day, this is his message to our fainting hearts: "Quit you like men; be strong."