A Letter From London

LONDON, April 11.—London honored on April 8th the memory of her worthy merchant, tailor and historian John Stow, whose "Survey of London" was published in 1598, (when he was 70) is regarded as one of the most valuable of English books for anyone who wishes to learn what the Reformation was to those who lived through it, what London was like before the great changes, and what Elizabethan London grew to be. The Lord Mayor, with the Sheriffs and city officials, drove in state to the church of St. Andrew Undershaft, in St. Mary Axe, where Stow was buried in 1605. The commemorative service was conducted by the Bishop of London, and was followed by a procession, was followed by the Mayor, carrying on an old tradition, placed in the hand of the chorister's marble figure a new quill pen to replace that which was held for the past year. This monument, he the way, is said to be the work of the sculptor as Shakespeare's last at Stratford-on-Avon.

St. Andrew Undershaft is one of the few London churches which escaped the great fire of 1666. Its interior remains much as it was when Stow worshipped there. It gets its curious name because that of old time every year (on May Day in the morning) it was used that a high or long shaft was set up there before the south door of the said church. Stow himself tells how a certain curate, preaching at St. Paul's Cross, accused the parishioners of setting up for themselves an idol in this Maypole, which for 32 years had rested under the eaves of neighboring houses; whereupon they sawed it up and burned it, and never danced on May Day any more.

"Old Bill" Moves
Do you remember Old Bill, the baby whale who arrived not long ago at the London Zoo? He is now 10 months old, eats 25 lb. a day of prime fish and imported sea blubber, and is getting on for 400 lb. in weight. He is so frisky that the Zoo authorities have had to move him to a new and stronger home. Three times he had broken out of his old enclosure. At first he used to burrow under the fence, but as he grew heavier he discovered that no fence could stand being bent against by 350 lbs of whale. The intelligent creature was coaxed from one dwelling to the other by a keeper carrying lumps of blubber in a pail. With this inducement he travelled the 250 yards in 17 minutes, marching like Napoleon's army, on his stomach.

Another Zoo celebrity is Mickey, the senior chimpanzee, who has just bent the 26th anniversary of his arrival at the Gardens with a feast of rice and milk, lettuce, watercress, boiled potatoes, raw eggs, bananas, grapes, apples and oranges. Less talented ones shake the bars of their cages when they wish to produce a noise, but Mickey has a better plan, and bounces on all fours upon an iron trap door until sensitive people cover their ears and retreat.

Court Moves to Windsor
The Court has removed from Buckingham Palace to Windsor Castle, where it will remain until the end of the month. The Castle, which is a little over twenty miles from London, stands on an isolated hill above the Thames, where it looks more like a town than a house. It has, indeed, a larger population than some towns when the Court is in residence. In King Edward's time the enormous place was served by a staff of 2,000 persons, including the military guard, the women, the grooms and gardeners, with 120 footmen, the chef's staff of about 70, and more domestics than one could count.

William the Conqueror built the great castle-fortress, beginning it in the first year of his reign (1066) and kept Christmas, Easter and Whitsuntide there. Edward III. (1327-1377) practically rebuilt it, almost in its

RAW FRUIT CURE.

This is what it is: For seven days nothing at all must be eaten except pure, freshly picked raw fruit and salad. From the first meal, in the morning till the last, in the evening no other diet must be partaken of, the only drink permitted being cold water in the day, hot at night, with non-acidulated lemonade in between. It is claimed that, besides nourishing the body to the maximum extent required, the properties of the fruit are such as to eradicate from the system every impurity, "tone up" the blood, make fresh corpuscles and invigorate the brain.

In view of the astounding claims made by advocates of this diet of raw fruit, the experiment is worth trying for a week, when it can be decided whether it is a good one or not. In any case, fruit is well known to be a natural corrective for many ills, nourishing and invigorating, so no harm can be done by giving it a trial.

TWO DIFFERENT THINGS

Many people are puzzled about the wedding cake and have often wondered whether it is the same as the bride's cake. The wedding cake is a rich, dark fruit cake, warranted good for six months, frosted in white and usually given out in small white wedding-cake boxes, though it may stand uncut in all its glory till the bride takes a knife to it. The bride's cake is a white cake of some kind and has all such fortune favors in it as a symbolic thimble, penny, boat and ring.

FAVORITE RECIPES

Yorkshire Sandwiches.

Beat 4 eggs very light with 4 heaping tablespoonsful of sugar. Stir in 6 tablespoonsful of sifted flour—do this very lightly—add the grated rind of a lemon, and turn the batter into greased muffin pans. Bake quickly. When done, split and spread a layer of strawberry or raspberry jam or orange marmalade between the halves. Sift powdered sugar over them and serve. (If desired, 1-4 teaspoonful baking powder may be sifted in with the flour.)

Mince Meat.

One pound each of currants, suet, raisins, seedless raisins, chopped suet and brown sugar, 1-2 pound mixed peel, 1-4 pound sour apples, about 2 or 3 good-sized ones, half nutmeg, grated, the peel of one large lemon, one cup of good apple cider. To make, put all the fruit through the coarse vegetable chopper, add the sugar, suet and cider. Mix well and thoroughly put away in a covered jar.

Butter Tarts.

One tablespoon butter, 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1 egg, 1-3 cup sweet milk, 1 cup cleaned currants, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Mix butter, sugar and egg, beat well together, add milk, vanilla and currants. Line small patty pans with rich pie paste, put in above mixture and bake. Makes about 18.

THE GREAT DAYS.

There have been great days, and they are dead—
Are dead; and we remember them with pride,
That they were ours—and all the joy that died
With them, and glory. They are fled
Beyond our calling, and the tears we shed
Are unavailing. Like the flight of dreams,
They fade and vanish, and their passage seems
A sudden gloom about the ways we tread.

Now must we ever tread those self-same ways
In shadows—till the glory come again.
Though the great days are dead, yet shall re-birth
Renew their triumph in still greater days—
Some golden future, when this present pain
Is over, shall give back their joy to earth.

present form, and other monarchs, from Queen Elizabeth to George III. have left their mark upon it. When the Court is not in residence, the State apartments, the Round Tower and St. George's Chapel are open to the public about four days a week.

Wembley Wonders

The Canadian section of the Exhibition announces that all its exhibits will be in place by Saturday, April 12th, and other dominions preparing are almost equally advanced. Every day one hears of new wonders awaiting the visitor, from Australia's great pearl—said to be the largest yet discovered, and worth $50,000—to the largest single sheet of plate glass ever made, 14 ft. by 24 ft. Burma has sent a company of dancers and musicians; so has Ceylon. South Africa will show an ostrich farm; the stock of 23 birds has just arrived. It will be news to most people that ostriches produce anything but feathers, but we hear that ostrich leather, which does not stretch, is coming into use for upholstering motor cars and furniture. Plants for the Indian gardens are being kept at Kew through the rigors of an English spring, but before long they will be transplanted to Wembley in specially prepared earth underlaid by a network of hot-water pipes.
