Mr. Nelson assumes the role of an unloved husband, whose wife left for her home in Centerville, Ill., on Thursday for the purpose of procuring a divorce, avowing that she did so to enable him to marry the object of his affection, now his companion in his flight. Their statement is that they drove out to St. Thomas on Thursday evening, the day of the departure of Mrs. Nelson, and early on Friday morning took the train for Lansing. They drove directly from the train on arriving here last evening to the office of Judge Smith for counsel, after which they took quarters at the hotel, where they were arrested on the strength of a diswere arrested on the strength of a dis-patch from the chief of police at Port Huron, and are now in the custody of the rity marshal. Both of them are thoroughly frightened, and are here without even a change of clothing. He was formerly settled as a Baptist preacher at Centerville, Ill., where he married his wife.

MISS TEETZEL.

A St. Thomas correspondent says: "The poor misguided young woman was engaged to be married to a respectable young man, the son of a Malahide farmer. He arrived in the city Saturday, and left for Detroit in quest of the clopers."

None of the members of the church seem to have any knowledge of who Nelson was or where he came from. Expressions of sympathy were heard on all sides for the young woman and her family. She was brought up in the Presbyterian faith, and was a bright, nodest girl, and a good teacher. Nelson secured an influence over her at his revival meetings, and maintained it by representations of his deep interest in her spiritual welfare, his arguments in time inducing her to sublice the set. sentations of his deep interest in the spiritual welfare, his arguments in time inducing hor to publicly enter the Baptiat Church, and finally surrender her future into his handa. It would appear that Nelson also deliberately set to work to aliente his wife affections from him in order that she would relieve him of her presence. Three days ago Mrs. Nelson went to Iliidois, a heart-broken woman, to again take up her residence with her parents. He allowed her to take with her some of the household goods, but these goods were not of much value to the wife, for when she arrived in Aylmer they were seized by Nelson's creditors, and Mrs. Nelson was forced to proceed without shem.

LASENO, Mich., Nov. 24.—Walter Kelmon, the Port Burwell preacher, and Miss Rosabel Teetzel, the school teacher, who

Dr. Newman added that he had seen the testimonial which Nelson said he bore from Rev. Alexander Grant, of Winnipeg, and that it was not a ministerial testimonial at all, but merely a statement of the fact that he had baptized him into the church. Rev.
